THOMAS DEATH CAUSE SOUGHT BY PHYSICIANS

Discovery of Broken Jaw Brings Autopsy to Sudden Halt.

CORONER TO RESUME INVESTIGATION TODAY

Relatives Scout Theory of Suicide or Foul Play in Case.

BELIEVE REALTY MAN KILLED IN ACCIDENT

Crumpled Body Discovered in Small Ravine Near Chain Bridge.

An autopsy will seek to determine this morning by what manner J. Benson Thomas, 42 years old, Washington real estate man, met his death. His body was discovered late yesterday lying crumpled in a ravine a short distance west of Chain Bridge, just across the District line in Maryland.

Discovery of a broken jaw brought an abrupt end to a scheduled autopsy last night by Dr. C. E. Hawkes, who was deputized to act in the absence of Dr. W. T. Pratt, Montgomery County coroner. Severe lacerations on the right side of the man's face had been discovered earlier.

The finding of the body ended a four-day search folowing the real estate man's disappearance about noon Tuesday from his office at 1 Thomas circle. While decomposition had begun, identification was made by means of papers in his pockets and a Masonic ring on his finger.

Lieut. Edward J. elly, chief of the Washington homicide squad, and Seventh Precinct policemen, who were called, made a cursory examination and then turned the body over to Warren E. Pumphrey, Rockville undertaker and assistant coroner.

Murder or Suicide Discounted.

Theories of foul play or suicide were vigorously discounted last night by Donn Thomas, of 129 Kentucky avenue southeast, brother of the dead man and an associate in business.

While he declined to talk to a Post representative over the telephone, his wife, speaking for him, said that they were convinced that Mr. Thomas came to his death accidentaly. Any other belief is absurd, she asserted, as the real estate dealer had appeared in good health and spirits prior to his disappearance and had no known enemies.

"I suppose he was temporarily unbalanced," she said. "He had never fully recovered from an accident he had last May."

Lieut. Kelly advanced the belief that Mr. Thomas had taken his own life, though no weapons were discovered near the body.

State's Attorney Robert P. Peter and Mr. Pumphrey will be present at the autopsy today together with Dr. Pratt.

The lifeless form was discovered face-downward by John J. Keane, 34 years old, of 5310 Carolina place northwest, manager of the Cantilever Shoe Co., while walking near the banks of the Potomac River on the Maryland side.

"I had been fishing in the C. and O. Canal just above Chain Bridge, and having no luck, I had started to walk through the woods to the river," declared Mr. Keane. "Beside the ravine I walked over an object, and turned around to find that it was a dead man. The clothing was water-soaked and it was in the process of decomposition. I went back at once to a nearby store and told the man in charge, who called police."

Seventh Precinct Policemen J. G. Arendes and L. D. Phillips and Detective J. E. Burke responded, with Lieut. Kelly arriving a few minutes later.

The body was discovered approximately four blocks from the spot on a road near District end of Chain Bridge where the abandoned automobile of Mr. Thomas was found Wednesday night by by his brother, after police were notified by relatives of the man's disappearance.

The ignition of the machine had been locked and the keys removed. The gas tank was found empty. An extensive search in the vicinity of Chain Bridge had failed to reveal any trace of the missing man.

Mr. Thomas left his home at 3710 Military road northwest Tuesday morning, apparently in the best of health, according to relatives. He worked with his brother in their offices at No. 1 Thomas Circle during the morning, and about noon was last observed walking at Fifteenth and H streets northwest.

Worked Long Hours.

SAFE DEPOSIT BOXES YIELD GANG SECRET

GUNMEN CLAIM VICTIM

Chicago, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—Underworld secrets that gunmen sought to seal in Jack Zuta's grave were seized by authorities today after forcing open two safety deposit boxes used by the slain gang leader.

It was rumored that the boxes contained sensational records of Zuta's dealings in the liquor and vice rackets, and that they implicated several political leaders and officials in the payment of graft. State's Attorney Swanson refused to disclose the exact nature of the records, but issued a formal statement making known their seizure and saying they "contained much of interest."

An intensive search had been made for the boxes since Zuta was shot to death August 1 by five gunmen who stalked into a Wisconsin dance resort and assassinated him as he fed nickels into a mechanical phonograph. Zuta, reputed chief of operations for the Moran-Aiello gang, was supposed to have ordered the killing of Alfred Lingle, Tribune crime reporter, and a previous attempt on his own life had been made on July 1.

The boxes it was rumored, contained a complete record of Zuta's underworld transactions, but Mr. Swanson said that it would frustrate further investigation if details were made public. In addition to the records, the boxes contained many diamonds, several gold pieces and other items of jewelry.

Finding of the boxes followed by a few hours the killing of Joseph Giovingo, an alleged bootlegger, in Rockford. Giovingo was shot to death by gunmen in an automobile as he stood talking to two policemen. Nearby at the time was Thomas Abbottini, alias Abbott, Chicago gangster, whose name had been linked with both the Zuta and Lingle killings, and police said it was likely that the bullets had been meant for him.

Abbottini disappeared after the shooting, but later gave himself up for questioning at Chicago detective headquarters.

The Zuta records were kept closely guarded and photostatic copies were made of each and every item. Authorities said they would oppose every effort made to have the records impounded. Swanson was not prepared to say whether he would present his findings to a grand jury.

TSINAN BATTLE TURNING POINT FOR NATIONALS

Victory in Shantung and Honan Places Them in Advantage.

REBELS ARE DRIVEN TO YELLOW RIVER

Chiang Kai-Shek Asserts Troops Will Possess Two Provinces.

LOAN OF $1,700,000 BOLSTERS FINANCES

Eight Emmitsburg Nuns and Four Priests Reach Safety in Canton.

Nanking, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—Victory for Nationalist arms in Shantung and Honan Provinces, including the recapture of Tsinan, capital of Shantung Province, was claimed by the government today in what some observers say may prove the turning point in the civil war.

Rebel forces which had occupied Tsinan for nearly two months were driven out and hurled northward. At other points in the two war-ridden provinces the insurgent forces were overwhelmed and flung back toward the Yellow River.

Large quantities of war supplies were left by the northerners in their hasty retreat from Tsinan, said the official communique of President Chiang Kai-Shek, issued at his headquarters at Liuho, Honan.

Decisive Nationalist Thrust.

Although some quarters accepted the Nationalist claims with reserve, it was generally believed government troops had entered Tsinan or were near the walls.

So decisive was the Nationalist thrust along the Haichow-Tungkwan Railway in Honan Province that Chiang claimed his forces "shortly would be able to drive the rebels from Honan and capture Kaifeng and Chengchow."

The situation at Tsinan resulted in representations from foreign diplomats to the Nanking government to protect foreigners and their property in the city. Recently Nationalist air forces bombed the city and killed a score of Chinese residents. Many foreigners fled at the first rebel threat in June.

Government Announces Loan.

There was a lull in the Yangtze Valley, where formidable Communist forces have threatened Hankow, Nanchang and Kiukiang.

Seeking to bolster its dwindling finances, the government's ministry of finance announced a domestic loan of $5,000,000 Mexican (about $1,700,000 gold) had been secured, based on customs revenue.

The government announced $100,000 Mexican had been appropriated for relief of Chinese sufferers in Changsha recently looted and burned by Red armies.

From south China the news was less favorable to the government. Communists were continuing their months of depredations in Kiangsi Province.

Worn by the Red siege of Kanchow, which had lasted since March, and fearing the small Nationalist garrison would be withdrawn, twelve Catholic missionaries arrived at Canton today. They described many Red attacks upon the city walls, and believed they were to be renewed.

Priests and Nuns Safe.

Canton, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—Four Catholic priests and eight nuns, forced to flee Kanshow, Kiangsi Province, when Communist depredations made it unsafe to remain, arrived here today after an eleven-day journey

Calvin Coolidge

Says: The right to vote is the very essence of the right to self-government. It is a privilege we are too prone to assume, is self-existent and therefore unimportant. It is the foundation of our liberties. If this source be defiled, the whole body politic becomes contaminated.

At this season we are engaged in selecting candidates. Many of them are chosen by direct vote of the people. Those now nominated will dominate the Government in a few months. They will then have charge of our destiny. If we wish to be in the hands of competent and worthy officeholders we must act now. Election day may be too late. The beginning of good government is in good nominations. It is time we gave serious and conscientious attention to our right to vote by nominating the best qualified candidates.

The people may not always understand complicated questions, but they do know men. They can judge of character, ability and experience. Our Government never needed good public officers more than now. The people can have them if they will take them. Unless we make our nominations on merit, public questions will not be decided on merit.

R-100 DUE AT HOME PORT EARLY IN DAY

WATER WRECKS STOVE

London (Saturday) Aug. 16 (A.P.). The air ministry announced early this morning that it expected the British dirigible R-100 to moor at Cardington between 8 and 8:30 a. m. (British summer time) today (2 and 2:30 a. m., Eastern standard time).

The ministry at the same time made public a message sent by the R-100 at 10:30 o'clock last night (G. M. T.) (5:30 p. m., E. S. T.), giving the position of the airship at that time as 52:05 degrees north latitude and 16:30 west longitude, or about 280 miles west of Fasnet Rock, on the southwestern tip of Ireland. The airship said it was making good time through dull weather, with some rain and overcast clouds.

The dirigible proposed to cross the first Irish soil at Fasnet Rock and then proceed directly to Cardington. Previously the officers of the dirigible had notified the air ministry they intended to make Landfall, at Galway Bay, but weather condition changed their plans.

An earlier message said the R-100 was speeding along at 60 knots through fine weather at 6 p. m., G. M. T. (1 p. m., E. S. T.). Conditions had improved greatly during the past six hours and the airship was maintaining an altitude of 1,300 feet.

The messages received prior to that time said that the dirigible was bucking wind and bad weather part of the time, with her average speed reduced to 55 miles an hour.

Although rain fell here tonight and a 30-mile-an-hour gale was swirling around the 200-foot mooring mast, the unfavorable weather was not expected to interfere with the anchoring operation.

RADIO PSYCHOLOGIST MISSES DAY ON AIR

LAW VIOLATION CLAIMED

Gayle Norman, self-styled radio psychologist, who has been answering personal questions twice daily at the rate of $1 apiece for the last month over Station WOL, did not go on the air yesterday as scheduled either at 10:30 a. m. or 6:30 p. m. The Post yesterday revealed that the fraud squad of the Metropolitan Detective Bureau was investigating his program.

Officials at the radio station said they did not know whether he would broadcast this morning in what was to be his farewell appearance and they were not certain what would be done about the numerous questions paid for but left unanswered.

The Federal Radio Commission's legal division joined the District authorities yesterday in investigating Norman's question box. While no official statement was made, it was learned that the "psychologist" could be prosecuted for two alleged violations of the radio law and that the license of the station could be withdrawn if the charges were substantiated.

It is illegal under the radio law, it was said, to transmit any point-to-point or person-to-person message over a broadcasting station, and no one is permitted to use the station for soliciting money for personal gain.

Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, who instituted the inquiry, said that Norman could be prosecuted for prophesying the future for gain without a license if any one who paid him $1 for any answer to such a question would appear as a complaining witness.

Phelan Will Leaves Mrs. Moody $20,000

Status Question Raised; $10,000,000 Estate Is Disposed Of.

San Francisco, Calif., Aug. 15 (A.P.). Californians who achieved fame in art, literature and athletics were rewarded and charitable institutions aided by the $10,000,000 will of former Senator James D. Phelan, filed for probate here today.

Helen Wills Moody, world's woman tennis champion, was bequeathed $20,000 in appreciation of her "winning the tennis championship for California." She also was given a portrait of herself painted by the Polish artist, Sigal, two years ago.

The bequest immediately raised the question of whether Mrs. Moody's amateur standing would be endangered if she accepted the money. Mrs. Moody declined to comment because she had received no legal notification.

Recognition for work in literature won a $20,000 gift for Gertrude Atherton, California writer whose book, "Black Oxen," created Nationwide discussion several years ago.

The largest single bequest was $1,000,000 for the creation of the James D. Phelan Foundation in San Francisco, city of his birth. The former senator willed the income from this money for nursing the needy and poor of the city in their homes.

Another large gift was the beautiful Phelan home, Villa Montalva, near Saratoga, south of here, to the San Francisco Art Association. The home and grounds are to be maintained as a public park with the income from $250,000 set aside for the purpose.

More than 130 bequests to individuals and institutions were made. These included $100,000 to his sister, Mary Louis Phelan, and sums up to $50,000 to nephews and nieces. All employes were remembered, their legacy depending on their length of service.

Schools, churches and charitable organizations of San Francisco and California were given amounts up to $50,000. Included in these was $50,000 to old St. Mary's Church for the Senior New York Gangster 'Rubbed Out' With Partner

New York, Aug. 15 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Pietro Morello, otherwise known as "Clutch" from the odd circumstance that a counterfeiting machine had chewed off all but the forefinger of his left hand and celebrated not merely as one of the four survivors of the once-famous Morello brothers' "Stable Gang" but as the step brother of Ciro Terranova, the favorite bogeyman of the Whalen police commissionership, was rubbed out, as the boys call it, this afternoon after a criminal career of 36 years.

One young man with a .38-caliber revolver and another with a .32 pistol walked into a third-floor office on East 116th street a few minutes before four o'clock and pulled their triggers gently several times.

When they departed, three minutes later, Mr. Morello was lying over a window sill in a thoroughly defunct condition, with most of his left hand shot off, a bullet through his head, and three through his body; Joseph Parranio, his partner in several building and real estate enterprises, was dead upon the floor, and Joseph Pollaro, Parranio's uncle, was tumbling downstairs bleeding from three bullet perforations and calling loudly for assistance.

DROUGHT AREA AIDED BY RAIN; RELIEF PUSHED

Governors on Way Back to Formulate State Committees.

BANKING DELEGATES THEN TO COME HERE

War Department Moves to Help Situation in Two Districts.

FARMERS' LEADERS BACK HOOVER PLAN

Project Is Most Workable Yet Proposed, They Tell President.

(Associated Press.)

Reports of continued rains in many sections of the drought area reached the White House yesterday as President Hoover received assurances from representatives of three farm organizations of support in his program for relief.

Meanwhile the governors or their representatives from thirteen States who Thursday formulated with the Chief Executive a far-reaching program of relief, were en route home to complete the State committees for dealing with the situation. As soon as the banker representatives upon these committees are named they are to be called to Washington by the President to discuss the financing of relief measures.

Mr. Hoover feels little can be done until the State, county and local committees are selected to deal directly with conditions in communities where distress already exists.

War Department Busy.

The War Department, however moved yesterday to help relieve the situation in two States. Diversion of greater quantities of water from Lake Michigan by the sanitary district than the amount fixed recently by the Supreme Court, was authorized by Secretary Hurley to diminish the health menace. He also informed Gov. Pollard, of Virginia, that several thousand acres of Artillery ranges would be turned over to the State for private grazing.

Mr. Hoover was told by Louis J. Taber, master of the National Grange; C. C. Talbott, chairman of the board of directors of the Farmers Union, who also represented the Farmers National Grain Corporation, and Sam H. Thompson, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, that the relief organization outlined at the governors' conference was the most workable plan yet presented.

They pledged the Chief Executive the whole-hearted support of their organizations and said they were prepared to begin immediate cooperation.

Montana in Great Need.

The conditions in Montana were viewed yesterday as among the most difficult at this time, and Secretary Hyde already has initiated steps to provide aid. Several million sheep and about 500,000 head of cattle soon will need feed in the central part of the State, reports indicated, and immediate activity to move the cattle to better grazing land or to ship in emergency food to be initiated.

Hope of general relief throughout the drought area was revived by the reports of additional rains. Secretary Hyde saw in these not only a helpful psychological factor for the farmers, but said also the rains probably would rejuvenate much pasture land.

Agreeing with this view, Mr. Thompson said the cooler weather also would be a great aid, as the pastures would not deteriorate so fast.

ROVER SPURNS BAIL PROPOSAL FOR CAMPBELL

DISTRICT GRAND JURY RETURNS INDICTMENT

Witnesses Understood to Have Told of Attack in Ellipse.

DEATH WAS PLANED, TRUE BILL CHARGES

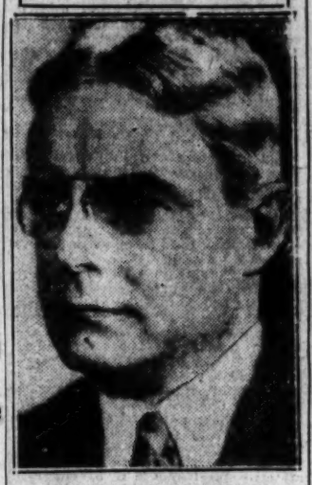
RESENTFUL



GOV. ALBERT C. RITCHIE.

An offer of Attorney Charles H. Smith to waive his fight against the removal of Herbert M. Campbell to the District, providing that his client be admitted to bail upon arrival here, was refused yesterday by United States District Attorney Leo A. Rover.

Soon after the Arlington county real estate man was indicted by the Grand Jury yesterday on a charge of murdering Mary E. Baker on April 11, Mr. Smith appeared at the office of Mr. Rover with his proposal.

The substance of his offer was that he agreed to waive the hearing before United States Commissioner J. Barton Phillips in Alexandria, scheduled for Wednesday morning, on the condition that Mr. Rover, upon bringing the suspect to this jurisdiction, would accede to his request for bail.

Release Held Out of Question.

This offer was rebuffed by Mr. Rover, who asserted that Campbell would not be released with his permission. Ordinarily first degree murder in the District is nonbailable. In some cases, however, where the circumstances permit and with the approval of the Government attorneys, a judge has the discretion of fixing bail on a prisoner charged with murder.

So far as Mr. Rover is concerned he will make no recommendation for bail. Mr Rover, together with his assistant, William H. Collins, intends to continue the fight for Campbell's custody.

Mr. Smith last night declared his intention of fighting the removal of his client. So far as he is concerned, he said, the situation is unchanged.

Long Jail Wait Claimed.

One of Mr. Smith's objections to the removal of Campbell is his contention that he will have to wait in jail for months before the case is moved for trial. To this Mr. Rover has declared that Campbell will be brought before a jury in October and that his continuous fight against removal is further prolonging his imprisonment.

If Commissioner Phillips, after the hearing on Wednesday, rules against the suspect and recommends that Federal Judge D. Lawrence Groner execute the removal warrant, Mr. Smith has indicated that he will bring the case before Judge Groner for review.

More than five months after the body of Miss Baker, Navy Department worker, was found in a culvert near the Arlington National Cemetery, a District of Columbia grand jury returned the indictment charging Campbell with first-degree murder in connection with her death.

Not to Rush Matters.

Miss Baker's body was discovered in the culvert on April 12th shortly before noon and shortly before noon yesterday the summer grand jury, reporting before Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat, returned the indictment.

Action of the grand jury will not precipitate efforts to return Campbell to the District of Columbia, according to Mr. Rover and Assistant United States Attorney William H. Collins, who brought the case before the inquisitorial body.

"The status of Campbell's return remains the same," said Mr. Rover.

PARLEY OVERSIGHT KEPT RITCHIE OUT

Maryland in Past Has Been Foe to Much Federal Aid for States.

CLAIMS BIG NEED NOW

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Maryland, like Senator Hiram Johnson, who did not get an invitation to the White House dinner that time, was the victim of an inadvertency in not being invited to the President's drought conference, it was authoritatively explained yesterday.

Gov. Ritchie's public complaint that his State had been neglected was brought to the President's attention, and while he did not comment publicly, it was explained on his behalf that no slight had been intended.

The conference of governors was not intended to be exclusive at all, it was made clear, and the door is still open to any stricken State to come in and receive the same cooperation from the Federal Government that the other States are to receive. Several States who were not represented at the conference are to come in, it was said, so Maryland need feel no hesitancy in doing likewise.

The failure to invite the Maryland governor loomed as a major topic of conversation in political circles in the wake of the governors' conference. But none of the attending governors, not even the genial Gov. Pollard, from the neighboring State of Virginia, asked, so far as known, "Why, where is Ritchie?"

This, is was pointed out, should be taken as an extenuating circumstance for the White House.

It could not have been a case of partisan politics, it was pointed out, because at least two Democratic governors were invited, those from Virginia and Arkansas.

It may be that the administration, with Maryland right here under its nose, did not realize the seriousness of the drought condition in that State. Weight to this possible explanation was given in one remark in the authoritative statement on the matter. Maryland should have been invited, it was agreed in this statement, because the understanding is that there are "two or three" distressed counties in the State.

This in a way was heaping insult to injury because Maryland, according to reports, considers it is one of the hardest hit States in the Union. The indications are, though, that the White House has not had

St. Louis Plane Forging Toward 1,000-Hour Mark

Jackson and O'Brine Show No Sign of Weakening; Pass 25th Day Aloft in Endurance Flight; Motor Running Smoothly; Takes More Gas.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 15 (A.P.).—Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brine showed no sign of weakening tonight as they unfalteringly circled Lambert (St. Louis) Field and hourly made the world refueling flight record less and less inviting as a target for rival endurance fliers.

The good ship Greater St. Louis, now in its twenty-fifth day aloft, had been in the air 615 hours at 10 p. m., 61 hours longer than the Hunter brothers, from whom the St. Louis airmen regained the record Wednesday morning.

The motor of the endurance plane is running as smoothly as ever, the refuelers, Percy Chaffee and William Brewster, asserted today after the 135th contact.

The duration of the flight depends entirely on the motor, Jackson and O'Brine said in a note dropped to earth, and observers were wondering if the two might not be able to carry out their plan of keeping the wheels of the plane off the ground for 1,000 hours, so well was the motor running.

The only sign that the engine is beginning to wear is the fact that more oil and gas is being consumed than when the flight began. It takes 10 gallons of gasoline to keep the plane aloft an hour now, whereas it required about 8 gallons three weeks

NEWS of SUBURBAN Washington and the Surrounding States

Appears on Pages 2 and 16 Today.

"We will not attempt to rush matters. We will send a certified copy of the indictment to Alexandria, where next Wednesday Campbell is scheduled to appear to fight efforts to remove him to the local jurisdiction.

"We believe that the indictment will bolster our case, and that our efforts to bring Campbell here for trial will be rewarded."

Warrant Sworn Out.

Only recently it was decided that the young woman had been slain in Washington, and no time was lost in swearing out a warrant charging Campbell with the offense. Since then a battle to bring him back to Washington has developed, and already has been reviewed in the Federal Court of the Northern District of Virginia, the judge of that tribunal referring the matter back to the commissioner at Alexandria when the question of venue was raised.

While testimony before the grand jury was not revealed, it was understood that witnesses had testified to seeing a woman in an automobile being maltreated near Seventeenth and B streets northwest on the afternoon of April 11. Other witnesses are said to have related hearing three pistol shots in that neighborhood shortly after the time of the alleged attack.

Premeditation Is Alleged.

Under the indictment Campbell is charged with wilful premeditation in the carrying out of the crime. The bill contains two counts, one fixing her death through strangling and choking, the other by pistol wounds. The indictment charges the real estate man with shooting the girl in the back, in the neck and in the head.

Action of the United States attorney's office in presenting the case to the grand jury Thursday afternoon came as a surprise and followed reports that Campbell was to be released from Arlington County Jail where he has been held since first taken in custody by Virginia authorities.

Campbell entered the case several weeks ago when, without warning, he turned over to authorities a pistol which he said belonged to him, but which had been mislaid and just found. At that time he indicated that Herman Barrere might know something about the case. Barrere was apprehended in Canada and when returned to Virginia proved an alibi. Persons who were called in to identify Barrere as the man seen attacking the Baker girl in the Ellipse at that time partially identified Campbell, and he was immediately locked up.

Gun Positively Identified.

Since then ballistic experts have positively identified the pistol as the gun from which the bullets found in Miss Baker's body were fired. None of that evidence, however, was presented to the grand jury, the Government being content with presenting testimony of Sam Hardy, Department of Justice agent, who took the alleged murder gun to Northwestern University, where Col. Calvin H. Goddard made tests which confirmed those made formerly at the Bureau of Standards.

Four witnesses were heard by the grand jury yesterday.

Fred Wilson, Treasury Department architect, the first questioned in the case, was a surprise witness, being ushered in secretly and permitted to make his exit in the same manner.

Sheriff Howard Fields of Arlington County was another witness, while concluding testimony was given by Olga Skinner and Mildred Sperry, who shared a house in Lyon Village, Va., with Miss Baker.

R-100 SPEEDS EAST; NEARING HOME PORT

from 15 miles an hour to 100, was shown by the R-100 today as it first bucked squalls and bad weather in general, but later sped into ideal conditions with a pleasant wind behind it.

The ship was tortured by heavy rains and wind last night, the gale reaching a speed of 45 miles an hour and cutting that of the airship to 15.

The rain indirectly was responsible for a mishap which spoiled the hope of hot beverages for breakfast by putting the electric cook stove out of commission. About 3½ tons of rain which had collected in reservoirs for the refilling of ballast tanks poured into the kitchen through a valve vent and caused a short circuit in the stove.

Some of the swirling water also came through the gangway, but it did not bother the passengers. They slept peacefully through the terrific storm, and their first intimation that anything had happened came this morning at breakfast.

Fog Lasts Till Noon.

A heavy fog lasted until noon, but then it cleared and, with a favorable wind, the gigantic airship roared toward the Irish coast and Cardington at 100 miles an hour.

The passengers did not mind going without hot coffee or tea for breakfast, but they all are craving a smoke.

Despite the high speed reached after the fog had cleared, it now is considered doubtful that the R-100 will establish a record crossing. The storm is to blame for that.

Officers of the royal air force remained on duty all night while members of the landing crew were sent home to sleep until called. One officer stayed all night at his post in the control room on top of the tower, while three others in a room below charted the course of the R-100 on a map.

Gang Executions Enigma to Police

Three Victims of St. Paul Slayings Identified; Theories Sifted.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 15 (A.P.).—State and county authorities, plunged into scurrying activity by the triple gangster executions near here Wednesday night, completed identification of the victims today, then turned their efforts tonight toward learning who ambushed the trio on a lonely country road.

Nearly a dozen theories were expressed by the authorities to account for the sudden outbreak of gang warfare which claimed the lives of Frank Coleman and Mike Rusick, Kansas City gangsters, and Sammy Silverman, alias Stein, Minneapolis bank robber and slayer of a Kansas City policeman. One was that the victims had been slain because of double dealing with other gangsters.

Both Gen. W. F. Rhinow, head of the Minneosta Crime Bureau, and Sheriff Thomas Maher, of Washington County, in whose jurisdiction the slayings took place, expressed the belief the gangsters were slain by Kansas City gunmen or by members of their own gang.

HOOVER CONSIDERS AIR PLANS AT CAMP

Lindbergh Is Taking Part in Discussion Along With Four Officials.

PRESIDENT'S SON GUEST

Orange, Va., Aug. 15 (A.P.).—President Hoover, his drought-relief organization under way, turned to aviation problems at his mountain lodge here tonight with a view to determining what economies may be effected in the various military and civil air branches.

With Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and four Government aeronautic officials among his guests, the President hoped to develop in conferences over the week-end some definite plan of eliminating duplication of effort in the Government's air services.

If this can be accomplished without impairing efficiency, Mr. Hoover believes a long step will have been taken in the advancement of aviation.

Guests Arrive Before Hoovers.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh came here with other week-end guests ahead of the President and Mrs. Hoover, after the aviator had been presented in Washington by the President with a special congressional gold medal commemorating his aviation achievements.

Other guests participating in the aviation conferences were F. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War; Davis S. Ingalls, Assistant Secretary of the Navy; Clarence M. Young, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, and W. Irving Glover, Assistant Postmaster General. All supervise the air activities of their respective departments.

The aviation conferences follow closely on the news that the Chief Executive has requested the Bureau of Efficiency to make a study to determine whether there is an overlapping of effort in the War and Navy Air Services in connection with the coastal defenses.

Military Aspects to Be Ignored.

This investigation, however, is to touch only the economic phases and will not go into the military aspects of the ten-year-old controversy between the War and Navy Departments over which departments should control the Nation's coast defense from the air.

Allan Hoover accompanied his parents on the trip today.

The presidential party also included Adolph Ochs, publisher of the New York Times; Will Durant, the author; Everett Sanders, who was President Coolidge's secretary, and Mrs. Sanders; French Strother, research secretary to the President, and Mrs. Strother; Mrs. Dare S. McMullin, of Palo Alto; Lawrence Richey, secretary to Mr. oHover; Capt. Joel T. Boone, the President's physician; oCl. Campbell Hodges, military aid, and Capt. Charles R. Train, naval aid.

Only Farmers Are Wanted From Continent of Europe.

Ottawa, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—W. A. Gordon, minister of immigration and colonization, today announced a government policy of discontinuing immigration from the continent of Europe, with the exception of "experienced farmers of suitable type," who possess means to establish and maintain themselves on farms, and the wives and children of persons already established in Canada.

"This policy," said Mr. Gordon, "is rendered necessary by reason of the unemployment in Canada. The purpose is to prevent persons coming to this country who will not be able to find work on arrival, and to protect the people of Canada from the burden of such unemployment. We regard the present situation as temporary, but we propose to apply an effective remedy until employment conditions have improved and to control any immigration movement in the future so that immigration will not again be a contributing factor to unemployment conditions."

Two Watches Are Stolen.

Two persons yesterday reported to police that watches had been stolen. A wristwatch worth $30 was taken from Frank R. Tauber's home at 1235 Randolph street, he said. The theft of another watch, valued at $65, was reported by Charles E. Turner, of the U. S. S. Cormorant, docked at the Navy Yard. It was taken from the ship.

COL. AND MRS. LINDBERGH GUESTS AT WHITE HOUSE

LINDBERGH RECEIVES MEDAL OF CONGRESS

WEEK-END CAMP GUEST

(Associated Press.)

A slim, smiling young man, upon whom three years of fame have left no apparent impression, was honored by his country again yesterday.

It was the same self-conscious Charles A. Lindbergh of 1927 who stepped forward to receive from President Hoover the special Congressional medal voted to him two years ago, and his replies to the brief remarks of the President were hardly audible.

The presentation took place in the President's office, with Mrs. Hoover, Mrs. Lindbergh and a group of Government officials looking on.

Others at Ceremony.

Secretaries Hurley, Adams and Davis, and F. Trubee Davison, David S. Ingalls and Clarence M. Young, Assistant Secretaries for Aviation of War, Navy and Commerce respectively; Warren Irving Glover, Assistant Postmaster General in charge of air mail, and Walter Hope, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, composed the group that surrounded the President.

The ceremony was brief.

"It is a real pleasure," the President said, "to present you this Congressional medal on behalf of Congress and in commemoration of your achievement in aviation. I am sure the sentiment expressed by Congress is shared by the whole American people."

Obviously embarrassed, Col. Lindbergh reached out his hand and took the medal, hesitated momentarily and then said slowly:

"Mr. President, I thank you and wish to express my thanks to Congress, and my appreciation to you."

As Lindbergh arrived at the White House he was met by more than 100 persons, mostly women. Gathered in front of the White House, they rushed to his automobile as he alighted. Later he and Mrs. Lindbergh were luncheon guests of President and Mrs. Hoover and then left to spend the week-end at the presidential lodge in Virginia.

Guests at Luncheon.

In addition to the hosts and Mr. and Mrs. Lindbergh, the White House luncheon was attended by Secretaries Hurley and Adams, Postmaster General Brown, Assistant Secretaries Davison, Ingalls and Young, Mr. Glover, Mr. Hope and his daughter, Miss Helen Hope; Capt. Charles R. Train, the White House naval aid, and Col. Campbell B. Hodges, military aid.

The medal was the third distinction conferred upon Lindbergh. It is faced with a profile view of the flier, and on the reverse side is a lone eagle, wings stretched in flight, with the rays of the sun and a group of stars symbolizing the day and night transatlantic flight.

SIX OTHERS SOUGHT IN MINE'S BOMBING

Six Are Under Arrest, Four Being Free on Bond; Two in Jail.

AVIATOR STAYS IN CELL

Murphysboro, Ill., Aug. 15 (A.P.).—With six men already arrested in connection with Monday's bombing of nonunion coal mining properties at Providence, Ky., six others were still being sought tonight by State and Government officials, Sheriff William Flanigan announced.

The sheriff, however, refused to divulge the names or say whether the men were sought in Illinois or Kentucky.

Four men have been arrested in Kentucky and released under bonds. Paul Montgomery, local aviator, who confessed he piloted the bombing plane, and named others, and James "Spike" Malone, Duquoin, Ill., aviator, were still confined in the county jail here in default of bond.

Montgomery is held in default of $15,000 bond on State and Federal charges, and Malone, alleged go-between for Montgomery and the men who plotted the air raid, is held under $5,000 bond, also on State and Federal charges.

Authorities had determined tonight that the aviators would not be returned to Kentucky, but they had not decided whether they would be tried first in State or Federal courts.

Authorities said two of the four men held in Kentucky, Essel Grant and Ewing Riley, were named by Montgomery as his companions on the bombing trip.

Montgomery and Malone waived preliminary hearing when arraigned late today on the Federal charges.

State's Attorney Fletcher Lewis said he expected "two important arrests" within the next few days.

Edward Cecil, who for many years was active in political affairs of the Fourth District. The other women candidates are Mrs. Elizabeth M. Baldwin, Republican, of Millersville, who would go to the Legislature, and Mrs. Bessie D. Moss, Democrat, of Annapolis, for convention delegate.

Other candidates who filed certificates with the board of supervisors of elections today are Severn K. Arnold, Democrat, who seeks election as commissioner from the Third District, and William H. Moreland, Republican, East Port, Second District, for sheriff.

ago. About 10 gallons of oil are used each day, slightly more than was used at first.

Life for Jackson and O'Brine apparently is becoming more monotonous. Their messages are less frequent than in the earlier part of the flight, and their cheerful bantering over the radio has almost ceased, their communications being little more than orders for what they need.

Much of their time for the last few days has been spent in reading congratulatory telegrams and autographing photographs, for which they receive $1 each.

The Rotary Club at Sparta, Ill., home of the Hunter brothers, today sent Jackson and O'Brine a telegram, wishing them well.

Stage and movie offers will not be considered when Jackson and O'Brine land, William Pickens, their manager, said today. A tour of fairs with the veteran endurance fliers making 12 to 14 hour flights to demonstrate refueling of planes in the air is being contemplated, the manager asserted.

HIGH CHURCH IRATE AT LAMBETH ACTION

One Bishop Disowns Decisions to "Clean Soul;" Talk of Secession Rife.

BITTER DISPUTE BEGUN

London, Aug. 15 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—From the Anglo-Catholic wing of the Anglican Church today came a plain indication of what is likely to be a long and bitter controversy over two of the decisions of the Lambeth conference—its declaration permitting the use of contraceptives for "good moral reason" and sanction for intercommunion between the Anglican Church and the proposed United South Indian Church, which will include non-Episcopal bodies.

One bishop has already dissociated himself with certain conclusions of the Lambeth conference. It is expected that a statement expressing the view of Anglo-Catholics will be issued.

Talk of Secession.

There is even talk of "secession" by them from the Anglican Church and it is recalled that a group of leading Anglo-Catholics, including Bishop Gore, signed a manifesto last year declaring that if the South Indian scheme went through in its present form, they would be unable to remain within the Anglican communion.

The first bishop to make a public statement on the decisions of the Lambeth conference is Dr. Walter Carey, Bishop of Bloemfontein, an Anglo-Catholic and one of the 67 bishops who opposed the birth control resolution. In a letter today to "The Church Times," organ of the Anglo-Catholics, he wrote:

"When you issue the Lambeth report I wish to say, in order to clear my soul, that there are statements in it from which I conscientiously and vehemently dissociate myself."

The publication itself characterizes the birth control resolution as a "positive revolution in Christian moralty."

On the other hand, writing in the "Church of England Newspaper," the Bishop of Ripon, who represents Evangelical opinion, said:

"It is the tradition of the conference to sacrifice almost anything for the nearest possible approach to unanimity. But it involves the risk of rating the shadow higher than the substance and forgetting that even unity comes second to truth."

The daily lay press on the whole approves the conference report, though there is some criticism on the ground that its decision show too much "compromise."

Shaw "Not Surprised."

George Bernard Shaw, in an interview here today, said:

"I am not surprised by the report. On the subject of birth control the bishops have given way under the overwhelming pressure of an accomplished fact. The whole thing is just an attempt to see whether the church can be brought into some relation with modern views.

"I do not think the church will gain any new ground or make up the ground it has already lost. I do not see how the church's attitude to this question can be reconciled with its attitude on divorce. The bishops ought to have discarded the prayer-book and the articles of religion and a few other things. Then they would have got near the twentieth century.

W. H. Howell, Triple Slayer, Electrocuted

Little Rock, Ark., Aug. 15 (A.P.).—W. H. (Bill) Howell, 64-year-old triple slayer, was electrocuted at the State Penitentiary here this morning.

Howell, in whose behalf a long, legal battle had been waged, was strapped in the electric chair at 7:05 a. m., and four minutes later was pronounced dead. He went to his death calmly.

MAN FACES ATTACK CHARGE OF GIRL, 17

MORE CANDIDATES FILE

Raymond Windsor, of Potomac, Md., will be given a special hearing in police court at Rockville today on a charge of criminal assault brought by 17-year-old girl of Potomac.

Windsor was arrested yesterday and held without bond in the Montgomery County Jail at Rockville after the girl charged that he had attacked her during an automobile ride several days ago. Court was not scheduled to open until Monday, but Judge Woodward made special arrangements to hear the case today.

With Monday as the final day for filing certificates of candidacy in Montgomery County for balloting in the primary elections September 8, nineteen more candidates filed with the supervisor of elections at Rockville, Md., yesterday, five being Republicans, one Progressive Democrat and three organization Democrats.

The Republicans were Leon C. Burns, of Olney, for sheriff; Hiram Harvey, of Brookville, register of wills; John W. Coffman and Morris M. Browning, for delegates to the State convention, and Frank H. Karn, of Rockville, for county commissioner from the Fourth District.

Bates Etchison, of Gaithersburg, was the Progressive Democratic candidate, filing for the State central committee, while Z. M. Waters, of Laytonsville, filed for the same office on the organization ticket. Samuel A. Lewis, of Frederick, also filed as the organization Democratic candidate for associate judge of the Sixth Judicial Circuit.

Robert G. Hilton, of Rockville, filed as the organization candidate for the State Senate, thereby terminating persistent rumors current in recent days that he would not run.

Mrs. Merritt Randall entertained the members of Mothers Club of Woodside at her new home in North Woodside. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the proposal to organize a baby clinic to be conducted at the Woodside M. E. Church, beginning in September. Dr. W. L. Pratt, county health officer, was extended an invitation to address the club at an early date.

Monday night at 8 o'clock Mayor Ben G. Davis and members of the Takoma Park, Md., council will hold their joint public monthly meeting at the fire house and community center. It is expected that Councilman Royal G. Sherburne, chairman of the ordinance and judiciary committee of council, will present a much-discussed dog ordinance. The proposed ordinance has many drastic features, including heavy fines and jail terms for infraction of the law, which is aimed to control the stray dog nuisance.

The proposed ordinance also includes provision for a town dog tax in lieu of the present county tax, and the establishment of a dog pound and appointment of a dog catcher. The tax proposed in the new ordinance is the same as now exacted by the county, or $1 for each male dog and $2 for each female dog.

Woman, Sought, Called Pickpocket

Annapolis Nurse Believes Person She Aided Took $32 From Purse.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 15.—Police are searching for a woman described as middle-aged, attired in dark clothing and wearing glasses, believed to be a professional pickpocket, who is said to have robbed Miss Eva Croft, nurse at the Emergency Hospital here, of $32 yesterday.

The woman feigned being crippled, Miss Croft told police. She was en route to the postoffice when she noticed the woman limping along. Asked for assistance, she gave it.

Miss Croft was carrying her purse in one hand and a package to be mailed in the other. The woman told the nurse she had twisted her ankle in alighting from a Washington car. Abreast of the postoffice, the supposed cripple said she felt she could get along all right. The nurse then went into the postoffice and found that her money had been stolen.

Cabman's Killer Hangs; Reprieve Effort Fails

San Quentin, Calif., Aug. 15 (A.P.). John Gomez, slayer of George Jones, Livermore, Calif., taxi driver, was hanged at San Quentin prison today. Warden James B. Holohan declined to delay the execution two hours as requested by William Shea, public defender, of Oakland, who sought time to reach Gov. C. C. Young and request a reprieve.

Gomez and George Ryley were sentenced to death for the murder of Jones several months ago. Ryley was saved by a writ of habeas corpus granted by the appellate court in San Francisco yesterday.

CENTRALIZED POWER URGED UPON STATES

Institute of Public Affairs Speaker Advocates New Reforms.

LAUDS VIRGINIA POLICY

Charlottesville, Va., Aug. 15 (A.P.). Centralization of State and Government control in the hands of the governor was advocated before the Virginia Institute of Public Affairs here today by Thomas H. Reed, University of Michigan professor of political science.

Answering the criticisms that comparative expenses of government have have not declined in the States that have reformed their governmental system, Dr. Reed said: "Additional expenditures have been for constructive services to which people are entitled. Overhead expenses have relatively decreased, which is a consummation devoutly to be desired."

Virginia Government Sound.

Dr. Reed has conducted roundtable discussions at all four institutions held here, and said that it was the consensus of his round table on "Administration of Public Business" that recent improvements in Virginia's State government have been sound.

He predicted success for governmental reform in Virginia, saying that with the teachings of Thomas Jefferson as a background, "it is going on to higher things."

The theory that steady work at satisfying wages automatically creates more consumers than a steady flow of goods at reasonable prices was advanced by Donald Randall Richberg in discussing the relationships between employe and employer.

Preservation of Liberty.

Mr. Richburg, a Chicago lawyer, said the business of America is the preservation of liberty and the improvement of human life.

"A work-a-day world in which 25 per cent of the workers are constantly menaced with unemployment and in which over 50 per cent do not earn a decent living might reasonably be more concerned with improving its methods of production and exchange than in increasing the number, or even improving the quality of its products," the speaker said.

Other speakers today were Dr. M. F. Haygood, Tennessee State health officer, and Dr. L. L. Lumsden, medical director of the United States Public Health Service.

POLICEMAN IS FOUND DROWNED ON BEACH

Portland Man Handcuffed; Death Cause Veiled in Mystery.

SUICIDE THEORY HEARD

Portland, Me., Aug. 15 (A.P.).—The drowning of a policeman while his hands were manacled together with his own handcuffs, and with no evidence of violence apparent, has provided a mystery that county and city officials were attempting to solve tonight. The body of Patrolman Michael T. Connolly, in full uniform, but with the cap missing, was found face down in the sand this morning in a little cove, a few hundred yards from the Grand Trunk docks.

An autopsy showed that death was due to drowning. Medical examiners said bruises and cuts about the head were probably caused by the washing of the body against rocks. They contended that none of the marks could have been made by blows severe enough to have knocked him unconscious.

The possibility of suicide was expressed by some officials, who said the manner in which the handcuffs were placed on Connolly's wrists indicated they were fastened by one accustomed to use the manacles.

Connolly, who was 49 years old and had been on the force twelve years, is survived by a widow and five small children. He had reported to headquarters from various boxes on his beat early this morning.

Connolly's coat was buttoned and none of his clothing showed any signs of a struggle which would have been expected from the 190-pound officer if he had been set upon by criminals. His revolver, fully loaded, was in his pocket.

Alabama Leads 12 States In Employment Percentage

Nevada Has Most Unemployed, 3.1 Per Cent, in Partial Survey; New York City at 3.4; Everyone in Liberty County, Montana, Works.

(Associated Press.)

A twelve-State sample of the national unemployment count thus far completed by the Census Bureau showed two Southern States—Alabama and Georgia—freest from that condition of citizenry officially described as "without a job, able to work, and looking for a job."

By percentages, lowest to highest, unemployment in the widely scattered States ran: Alabama, 0.8; Georgia, 0.9; New Mexico, 1; Idaho, 1.4; Vermont, 1.5; Maine, 1.7; Arizona, 1.7; Oklahoma, 1.8; Indiana, 2.1; Colorado, 2.2; Montana, 2.2, and Nevada, 3.1.

Minor laurels for low score went to Liberty County, Mont., where the unemployment round-up was a fat zero. Not one of the 2,203 population complained of being jobless when the enumerator called, nor could the census-takers find a single stray situation-seeking cowboy or sheep herder silhouetted against the sky. No other county in the United States thus far has reported no unemployed.

Liberty, a top-tier county touching the Canadian border, had for its nearest rival Greene County, Ala., where but two of the 19,765 population were out of a job and looking for another.

The partial returns, considered by States and by counties, and occasionally, by cities, showed unemployment to be capricious, visiting the country as well as the city; the sequestered mountain and desert district as well as the seaboard industrial centers.

Nevada, least populous State, of far-flung area, with the highest unemployment percentage (3.1) of any State thus far reporting, came close proportionally to that congested center, New York City, where the unemployment count totaled 3.4 per cent of the population.

Alabama boasted eight counties in which unemployment was less than one-tenth of 1 per cent; 51 more counties in which unemployment was less than 1 per cent, and only eight counties in which more than one person in 100 was jobless. In Jefferson County, where Birmingham lies, two in every hundred were looking for work.

Georgia, with 161 counties, had 131 in which less than 1 person in 100 was unemployed. Chatham County, containing Savannah, had 2,895 jobless in its 105,350 population, or 2.7 per cent.

In these two Southern States and in Oklahoma unemployment percentages were highest in the larger cities. Tulsa County reported 11,991 unemployed in her 187,405 population, or 6.4 per cent—a higher figure than New York City.

But in Idaho, Arizona and Montana counties containir the largest cities showed less unemployment proportionately than some country districts. Ada County, Idaho, which includes Boise, and Bannock County, which includes Pocatello, had but 0.4 and 1.1 per cent unemployment, respectively.

Only 3.3 per cent of the 287,644 people in Denver County, Colo., were unemployed, while San Juan County, population 1,930, had the highest unemployment in the State, 8.7 per cent.

Four of Vermont's fourteen counties tallied less than 1 per cent unemployed and four showed more than 2. Four of Arizona's fourteen counties tallied less than 1 per cent unemployment and four tallied more than 2.

Indiana, Midwest specimen of the group, had 66,390 unemployed among 3,225,600 inhabitants. Marion County, which includes Indianapolis, had 4 per cent unemployment—a total of 16,804 jobles in a 416,250 population.

Saloon Listed as Business Opportunity in Want Ad

But Berger County, New Jersey, Solicitor Figures on Throwing Place Into Receiver's Hands After Finding Things as Advertised.

Hackensack, N. J., Aug. 15 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—"For sale—saloon with property; old people want to retire; doing $40,000 a year business; never any liquor difficulties; caters to a select trade; a live wire can clear at least $20,000 yearly. This is one of the outstanding opportunities of a lifetime. Bergen Business Brokers, 221 River street, Hackensack."

The above advertisement in the Bergen County Record was called to the attention of Prosecutor E. O. West, of Bergen County, today.

If you are looking for a good buy in a speakeasy (they still call them saloons over in jersey) here is your chance, because Mr. West has made a personal investigation and reported that as far as he can learn, the place is just as advertised. It is in an exclusive section of Carlstadt.

It isn't quite as good a buy, however, as it was before Mr. West found out about it. He has agents watching it for evidence of liquor violations, and as soon as that evidence is procured the prosecutor plans to throw the "old people" into the hands of a receiver, who probably will be the warden of the county jail.

Louis Cannel, manager of Bergen Business Brokers, Inc., admitted today that the property was for sale. The price is $60,000, of which $20,000 must be paid down in cash. Cannel was quite enthusiastic about its possibilities.

He denied that it is necessary for the owner of a high-class place to pay police protection in Carlstadt. He said the present owners never have had any trouble, and added that he hoped that "whoever takes the property over will run it as nice a place."

SEIZED LIQUOR SHIP GUARDED IN CANADA

Cargo Is Reported to Consist of 10,000 Cases; Crew Not Arrested.

FLED FROM U. S. VESSEL

Windsor, Ontario, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—Seized by Dominion customs preventive officers, the Canadian steamer Vedas, which authorities allege had a large cargo of liquor, was tied up this afternoon at Windsor Dock. The seizure was made near East Sister Island, Lake Erie.

Unofficial estimates said there were 10,000 cases aboard, although no liquor was in evidence this afternoon, the cargo being stored below decks. Customs officers stood guard over the boat at the dock.

The ship was believed to have been turned back by the United States Coast Guard when it attempted to run the cargo into the United Sates and was captured by the Canadian officers in Canadian waters.

Although officials refused comment, the crew apparently was not in custody, and several members remained aboard the ship.

Toronto, Ontario, Aug. 15 (Canadian Press).—An official of the customs preventive service told the Canadian Press today the seizure of the British vessel edas in Lake Erie was not of much importance, and was the result of a "slight irregularity."

No charges have been laid against the crew. The irregularity occurred, the officer said, when the vessel obtained a coastwise clearance from Montreal to a Canadian port and discharged part of its cargo en route in violation of the coastwise shipping law. The official was not certain of the port of clearance, but he believed it was Port Arthur. He did not know the ownership of the vessel, he said.

Ottawa, Aug. 15 (Canadian Press). Officials of the department of national revenue were informed today of the seizure of the steamship Vedas on Lake Erie. The ship apparently has been under close watch by the preventive force of the department for some time. She was formerly the Shearwater and was remodeled in Halifax Harbor. It was understood she was being fitted out to carry beer from breweries in Quebec and Ontario to government dispensaries along the Great Lakes.

En route from Halifax to Montreal she was kept under surveillance, it is understood, the preventive force, which suspected she was bringing liquor from Miquelon, searching her on the trip up the St. Lawrence.

She was found, however, to have no liquor aboard. She proceeded to Montreal, where she loaded a cargo of beer and cleared for Port Arthur, according to information received by the department. She is alleged to have discharged some 3,000 cases on Lake Erie to United States craft. The seizure was made on the grounds her master had made out a false "outward," declaring she was going to carry her cargon to Port Arthur.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

AH, HA! What is there to this gentle zephyr that blows up from South Carolina with the word that that picturesque fellow townsman of ours, Senator Coley Blease, is not to be with us for another six years? Quaint character, he is—know him well. Is he what you call one of those old Southern gentlemen about whom one hears? And is it true that the Southerners can't read and write and that they don't wear shoes? Well, I'll declare.

One hears now about this venerable Southern gentleman, that is, Senator Blease, he of striking utterances and forceful language—one hears that he erred in voting for the confirmation of Judge Parker for the Supreme Court.

* * * *

IT IS a quite plausible story, whether true or not, Blease's support has heretofore come from the cotton mill workers of the State and what the Charleston bluebloods call the poor white trash. The cotton mill workers have constituted the bulk of his strength.

They are, for the most part, unorganized, and to the extent that they are, will continue to support him. But it seems that the American Federation of Labor has gone into the State and succeeded in organizing several of the mills around Aiken and Columbia. Organized labor is, of course, fighting everybody who voted to confirm Parker.

The story that comes here is that the race between Blease and his opponent was close anyway and with the defection of the group of organized mill workers Blease's defeat is assured. It may be so. One will know after the primary, August 26.

* * * *

THE issue around Blease has been pretty tightly drawn all through his public life. It is the fight of the people on one side of the railroad track versus those on the other side.

The lines have always been definitely described in South Carolina this way. There is no middle ground. You live on one side of the railroad track or on the other side.

Blease has always been the banner carrier for the unblooded stock, the Charlestonians would say. And he has been very successful because there are more people on the unlettered side of the track than on the other side.

* * * *

IN an expansive mood off the Senate floor once, the senator drew heavily on a cigar and observed that he was a very happy man.

"I've got plenty of money and a seat in the United States Senate," he declared and blew a clould of smoke up to the ceiling.

Yet there are times when one gets the impression that the senator is not wholly happy. One perceives his inward yearning then to be accepted on the other side of the track. And it is the realization that this can never be that causes him occasionally to make a show of power. Frequently he has held up the Senate when in this mood, and, of course, there was the time when he made the street car stop in the middle of the block.

MARYLAND LEFT OUT OF DROUGHT PARLEY

the situation presented in this serious light.

The indications are that no one regretted the incident more than the Maryland Republican leaders who are to contend for the gubernatorial plum this fall. It is taken as a foregone conclusion that the Democrats will make capital of the inadvertency.

Yet, it was pointed out, it was an easy thing to happen. Maryland has such an air of independence that one is inclined to dissociate it from the other States as being a sovereignity apart. It is from that State that one most frequently hears the demand that the States keep their hands out of the Federal trough.

With the State standing off by itself all the time, it is easy to see how it might not be invited to a parley of States.

Coal Crisis Recalled.

It was recalled, too, that Gov. Ritchie is one of those fellows who, when he goes to a party, becomes the life of it; dominates it, so to speak.

President Harding one time was threatened with a coal strike in the bituminous-producing States. He sent telegrams to the governors of the States concerned asking them to hold their militias in readiness.

Gov. Ritchie came back with a ringing retort to the effect that "Maryland does not settle its strikes by bayonet."

Then President Coolidge's prohibition conference of governors is recalled. It was a grand and glorious move. All the governors were called here to confer on how prohibition should be enforced.

Ritchie Disparaged Effort.

Gov. Ritchie attended, and as he left the White House he issued a statement intimating very strongly that the conference was the bunk. In each of these instances where a front page move was initiated by the President, Gov. Ritchie got the headlines.

It may be, of course, that it was not thought that he would be good at this conference. At any rate, he was not invited, but he can get in now. All he has to do is to comply, as a matter of fact, with the nine-point program; that is, name a committee of agricultural, railway and county officials in every county and a similar one for the State, the latter to hook up with the Federal authorities.

Woman Ordered To Leave Capital

Texan Placed on Probation if She Complies With Rule of Judge.

Convicted in Police Court yesterday on a petit larceny charge, Ethel O. Gibson, of San Antonio, Tex., was placed on probation with the provision that she leave Washington within two days. The woman was specifically charged with taking a $5 sweater from the Woodward & Lothrop's department store.

Judge Mattingly was unable to learn from the woman any particular reason why she had left Texas to come to Washington and questioned her particularly about several prominent political figures in the Lone Star State.

Notables mentioned were Senator Sheppard, father of the eighteenth amendment, and "Ma" Ferguson, former governor. The woman said she knew both of them, but expressed a dislike for them because of their prohibition tendencies.

VICTIM DESCRIBES TERROR OF GANGS

BROTHERS ARE 'MARKED'

Cleveland, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—Terrors engendered by the deadly underworld feud connected with the corn-sugar racket here, were described tonight. Raymond Porello, one of five brothers who believe they are "marked" for murder victims, commented on the explosion which today wrecked his pretentious home here.

Two other Porello brothers, Joe and Vincente, were slain a month ago in a hail of bullets from gangsters waging war for control of the racket, and many others also have been slain in the strife. Joe and Vincente were known as "barons" in the racket.

Victims Blame Enemies.

Police were uncertain tonight whether the explosion in Raymond Porello's home was an accident or committed by enemies. The owner and his family were not at home when gas or some other explosive completely demolished the structure with a blast that shook the entire neighborhood.

The Porello's believe, however, the explosion was another act of violence by their enemies and admitted they have been living in a virtual seclusion of terror since the two brothers were khled.

Were Staying With Relatives.

The escape of Raymond Porello, his wife and two small children from the blast was due to that seclusion. They have been living with his parents and the other brothers also have spent most of their time recently in that place, which they seem to believe is a temporary haven of safety.

Raymond, who like the others, believes enemies intend to snuff out their lives, one by one, said unless he could have police protection, his last resort would be to flee to some place "where no one can find me."

Alleged Holdup Victim Accused of Embezzling

Charles T. Seymour, 45 years old, of Bates street near First street northwest, was charged with embezzlement of $103 and making a false police report by Detective Sergts. John Dahlgish and Leo Murray yesterday. Seymour, manager of a Lord Baltimore filling station at Florida and Rhode Island avenues, telephoned police on Thursday and said that a colored man entered his office, snatched $103 and fled.

Under questioning Seymour confessed that he lent the money to a colored man to pay for a load of liquor and was to receive $130 in return within fifteen minutes. He said that when the man did not return he decided to report the loss as a robbery. Seymour is being held in the First Precinct for arraignment today.

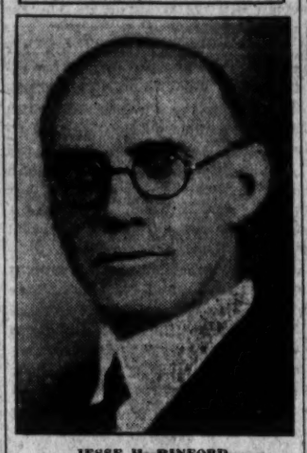
CLUB SPEAKER



JESSE H. BINFORD.

MANASSAS KIWANIS CLUB GIVEN PRAISE

J. H. Binford, of Richmond, Governor of Area, Tells of Work Done.

CAPITAL GROUP VISITS

Special to The Washington Post.

Manassas, Va., Aug. 15.—Service to the community, rather than more clubs and more members, is the goal of Kiwanis International, declared Jesse H. Binford, of Richmond, Va., in paying an official visit with Washington Kiwanians to the Manassas Kiwanis Club at its weekly meeting tonight.

Mr. Binford, governor of the Capital Kiwanis district, embracing clubs of the organization in the District, Virginia, Maryland and Delaware, pointed out that smaller clubs frequently render greater service than larger organizations.

In this connection he lauded the achievements of the Manassas Club. He particularly praised its efforts in locating 100 underprivileged children of Prince William County, requiring removal of tonsils and adenoids; and in paying for this medical work in a Washington hospital. He also cited its activity in employing a nurse, who later was appointed by the county as its official nurse.

Kiwanians were invited to a rally of Prince William farmers to be held Wednesday at Bentsville. Farmers of the county also have been invited to a meeting of the Manassas Club on August 28.

In attendance tonight were James B. Edmunds, president of the Washington Kiwanis Club; Charles W. Pimper and Edwin F. Hill, both of the Washington Club.

Boy, 5, Is Plaintiff In $50,000 Crash Suit

Howard Brummett, 5-year-old son of Mike Brummett, of 643 I street northeast, through his father, is the plaintiff. The boy tells the court he was struck down and injured by an automobile piloted by Maude Roberts on May 17 at I and Sixth streets northeast.

The child, through his father, alleges he suffered a fractured skull and other injuries. Attorney James D. Cunningham appears for the Brummetts.

Robert E. J. Whalen, Washington attorney, who is under $10,000 bond on an indictment charging embezzlement of $23,000 alleged to have been entrusted to him by Miss Annie J. Hurley, of Hyattsville, Md., yesterday answered the suit recently filed against him in District Supreme Court in which the woman seeks to recover the sum.

Whalen admits receiving the various amounts enumerated in the woman's declaration, but declares that with the exception of $350, received as a retainer when employed by the woman, all the money was returned to her on June 6, 1930, at her home in Hyattsville. He asserts that he holds her receipt for the sum. Attorney Joseph A. Cantrel appears for Whalen.

Fliers Here Enter Women's Air Derby

Hoover Field Manager Is Made Timer for Contest to Start August 22.

Jack Wynne, manager of Hoover Field, has been appointed official timer for the Women's Dixie Air Derby from Washington to Chicago, leaving here on the morning of August 22, according to an announcement made yesterday by A. K. Barta, president of the Aero Club of Washington.

Several Washington aviatrices and three women from Chicago have already entered the contest, which is expected to attract most of the women fliers of the country. Among the Washington entrants is Miss Nancy Hopkins. Chicago entrants include Phoebe Omlie, Vera Dawn and Laura Ingalls.

Planes starting from the Washington Airport will leave in the order of their race number, but at all control points thereafter they will leave in the order of arrival. Richmond, Va., will be the first stop. The planes are scheduled to arrive in Chicago in time for the national air races planned for that city.

Judge Holds Case Open After Sentencing Boy

Charged with petit larceny in connection with the theft of an automobile battery, Raymond Colvin, 16 years old, was sentenced by Judge R. E. Mattingly in Police Court yesterday to serve six months in jail. Similar charges against Horace Gensey and Robert Simpson were dismissed.

After passing sentence on the Colvin boy, Judge Mattingly was advised that the boy was 16 years old. The judge then ordered the case held open pending presentation to the court of records as to the boy's age.

GARRISONS IN INDIA HEAVILY REINFORCED

Menace to British Is Grave Still, With Disaffection Widespread.

TRIBESMEN ARE BOMBED

Simla, India, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—The powerful garrisons on the northwest frontier today were reinforced with formidable contingents of British and Indian infantry, fully equipped to meet an attack threatened by fierce Afghanistan tribesmen from beyond Khyber Pass.

With the arrival of heavy reinforcements under command of Brig. Gen. Robertson, martial law was proclaimed during the day throughout the entire Peshawar district, where the situation was described officially as "one of considerable gravity and danger."

How dangerous the border status was could be told only by military and political authorities on the spot.

Dangers Are Apparent.

The average layman, however, felt today he had only too clear a view of the situation in the news that one British and three Indian battalions were moved from Jhansi to Rewal Pindi, and that a full infantry brigade was sent to Nowshore, 25 miles east of Peshawar, with a considerable force of other units going to Kohat.

It apparently is true that many of the Afridis have left Peshawar, but, so far as could be judged from the guarded language of the official communique, the problem of expelling the gangs of raiders from the district remained tonight almost as formidable as ever, although there still was nothing to indicate that Peshawar itself was in peril.

Meanwhile the action in the air in the locality continued unceasingly. Two squadrons of the Royal Air Force were engaged yesterday in bombing along the edge of the Kajuri Plain and elsewhere. Troops of cavalry have been cooperating.

What remained as uncertain, as it has been for days past, was the extent to which the propaganda of the Afridis had influenced neighboring tribes. That the Orakzais were seriously affected became clear today. From the Bajur district also came the report of a resumption of activities of that old firebrand, the Haji of Turangzai, whose agents long had endeavored to induce tribesmen to come to the help of the Afridis, although until recently with indifferent success.

Civil Resistance Problem.

A different kind of drama was being enacted far to the southward. Civil resistance leaders, who for the last three days had been debating the possibilities of a cessation of their program with the Mahatma Gandhi at the Yeroda Jail at Poona, concluded their discussions.

As the outcome of their deliberation, two of the conferees, the "peacemakers," Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru and Mr. Jayakar, tonight were bearing a letter to Viceroy Lord Irwin, which, nominally addressed to themselves, apparently was intended for examination by Lord Irwin. Neither of the moderates would disclose the contents of this letter. Nor would they indicate the result of their parleys. Mr. Jayakar remained in Poona and left it to his companion to deliver the important letter.

Two Ohio Convicts Held in Fatal Fire

Men Taken From Columbus Penitentiary to Jail Secretly.

Columbus, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—Warden Preston E. Thomas, of Ohio Penitentiary, admitted late today that at least two prisoners are being held secretly at the city jail suspected of being among those responsible for the disastrous penitentiary fire April 21 in which 320 convicts lost their lives.

Information leaked out today that six penitentiary prisoners had been transferred to the jail with utmost secrecy and were held under strict surveillance.

The two prisoners mentioned by Thomas are Bernard K. Campbell and James H. Yeager. The arrests followed an exhaustive investigation by Joseph Clear, deputy State fire marshal.

criminals, for Morello had attained the ripe age of 50 a few days before his knocking off and had thereby established what was believed to be seniority among the gangsters and gang graduates of the city.

It was not entirely Morello's fault that he had lived to such an age, for he and his brother Ignazio were released only two years ago from Atlanta prison, where they had done time since 1909 over a matter of attempting to manufacture United States currency on a home printing press.

But despite his long absence from these parts he possessed a considerable distinction in the underworld, as one of the Morellos whose "murder stable" used to be the headquarters for all varieties of Mafia terrorism, blackmail and counterfeiting in the good old prewar days and, latterly, as a half-brother of Mr. Terranova, whose activities in connection with the "welcome home" and hold-up for Magistrate Vitale last winter resulted not merely in that jurists's forced resignation, but also in a series of sensational and entirely unsubstantiated charges by Grover Whalen that Mr. Terranova had contrived the murders of Frankie Yale and Frank Marlow, two other ambitious Italians.

Latterly, the detectives thought—and a boy from the excited crowd outside the building picked up a little notebook with many names set down, and large aums set down beside each, which they thought might have something to do with the case—Morello and Perranio had been engaged in some species of racketeering in the building trades.

Whether Pollard had been associated with them they were not so certain, though they had his own assertion—takep from his bed in Harlem Hospital—that he had met the other two to talk business when the two gunners stepped in and started shooting. About all they did know was that witnesses had seen the two murderers jump into a car waiting at the curb, that Pollard had no idea of what they looked like though he was clear enough about other details, and that some of the names in the note book sounded familiar to them.

The detectives guessed that the gunners took the book from Morello's pocket, but that in their excitement they dropped it on the sidewalk between the doorway and the motor car. This fact was regarded as interesting rather than helpful.

Morello and Parranio had gotten theirs, and that, things being the way they are, was that.

through a country infested with brigands and reds.

The party included the Rev. Fathers MacGillicudy Glens Falls, N. Y.; McClimont, Brooklyn; Corbett, Boston; the French bishop Dumond and eight American sisters, the majority of whom were from Emmitsburg, Md.

Members of the group said it became necessary to evacuate Kanshow as a result of the Nationalist government's persistent efforts to withdraw the meager defense forces there and move them further northward to assist in the defense of Nanchang against the red hordes besieging that city and surrounding territory.

Safety Request Nullified.

They declared efforts of foreigners to ask the American consul at Hankow that demands be made upon the Nationalist government for retention of the troops in the city where they were stationed were nullified. The Chinese military refused to allow foreigners use of wireless equipment, this action causing them to decided to withdraw.

On August 3, the missionaries said, three red flags were seen across the river from Kanchow, and it was believed the reds were preparing an immediate attack on that city, but the onslaught failed to materialize. The following day, the defense garrison succeeded in repulsing the Communists, killing 50 and later capturing a dozen of the red force.

A captured spy, the missionaries said, revealed a letter saying the reds planned an attack August 4. The same letter asked the defense forces to join the Communists in raiding the city.

City Reds Fully Armed.

The missionaries said it was considered many reds were in the city, all fully armed, awaiting opportunity to join the attackers. On August 4 merchants sounded alarms indicating the reds were preparing to renew their efforts to capture the city. The missionaries, therefore, decided to leave at once, and did not learn the outcome of the anticipated red attack.

A number of Protestant missionaries were urged to accompany the Catholic group to Canton but the Catholic fathers said they refused.

Bishop O'Shea, Deep River, Conn., one French priest, two German Lutherans and five English Protestant missionaries remained in Kanchow despite the danger of the city's capture, they said.

The Rev. Fathers Cahill, Philadelphia; Stabil, Syracuse, N. Y.; Erbeb, Erie, N. Y., and Curtis, Baltimore, were staying at Taiwoli, a small town southwest of Kanchow, while Fathers Young, Smithtown, Long Island, and McLaughlin, Brooklyn, were staying at Nanan, Kiangsi, and Father Moeringer, also of Brooklyn, was at Lungnan, both of which places were in the midst of a red-infested country.

(Associated Press.)

Pending a request from the Chinese government for a shipment of munitions, the State Department yesterday declined to permit the Du Pont interests to release a consignment of munitions to the Nationalist government, scheduled for shipment today to China.

Department officials said permission would be withheld until the Chinese legation here requested clearance of the shipment. Thus far licenses for munitions shipments have been granted when requested.

Meanwhile, reports on activities in three widely scattered areas of China were received last night by the State Department from American consular officers.

Planes Bomb Tsinan.

The American consul at Tsinan, Carl Meinhardt, reported government aircraft flew over the city and dropped a few bombs and fired machine guns Thursday. He speculated that their objective probably was the public buildings in the middle of the city and both railway stations in the settlement. The planes, however, remained at too great a height for accurate firing. There were several casualties, nearly all of whom were civilians.

Meinhardt added that the Pu Tso Yi army on the Tsingpu front fell back on August 13 to within 30 miles of Tsinan but was now advancing. Some fighting, he reported, occurred on August 13 about 12 miles from Tsinan, machine gun firing having been heard distinctly. Some 2,500 foreigners are estimated to reside in Tsinan.

The American Legation at Peiping upon receiving report of this battle made representations to the Chinese Ministry for Foreign Affairs at Nanking requesting anew that care be exercised to prevent injury to American life and property in Tsinan.

Additional Troops Expected.

The State Department was notified in a message dated August 15 that foreign troops at Shanghai included 1,243 United States Marines, 3,169 British troops, 1,230 French troops and 400 Japanese troops, with additional forces expected to land within a few days.

The American Consulate at Hankow in a telegram dated August 13, reported it had reliable information that Communist newspapers widely distributed in Changsha contained the following slogan:

"Down with Chang Hsueh Liang (Manchurian war lord), running dog of the Japanese;" "Down with Chiang Kai-Shek (nominal president of China), running dog of the American;" "Down with Wang Ching Wei, running dog of the British."

The consulate reported that slogans also censured the northern coalition generals Feng and Yen and stated that a Soviet government uniting the provinces of Hupeh, Hunan and Kiangsi is contemplated.

TRAMP 'CONFESSES' KILLING OF BUCKLEY

PIZZONI HEARING IS SET

Toledo, Ohio, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—Detroit detectives were on their way to Stryker, Ohio, near here, tonight, in an effort to identify a man who said he killed Gerald E. ("Jerry") Buckley, radio announcer of station WMBC in Detroit several weeks ago, after being hired to do it.

The man, who gave his name to Marshal Ben Farber, of Stryker, as Edwin L. Miller, of Detroit, wrote out a brief confession in pencil: "I killed Jerry Buckley, Detroit radio announcer and friend of the people."

The man, tall, of dark complexion and fairly well dressed, had "thumbed" a ride into the town and asked where he could find an officer of the law. He was referred to Farber.

The man was nervous, according to Farber, and said that his conscience had bothered him. After the crime, the prisoner is said to have told the marshal he went West as far as Nebraska and then returned to this section of the country, sleeping in barns and "thumbing" rides from motorists.

He did not reveal what he had done with the money or how much there was, but said he had been paid well, according to Farber. Farber did not question him at very great length, but said he believed the man's story is authentic.

Detroit police were notified and a squad of detectives left for Stryker. Police at Detroit said, however, that they did not know any one by the name of "Edwin L. Miller" there.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 15 (A.P.).—Announcement was made at the executive chambers today of a hearing next Wednesday afternoon on the application for extradition to Detroit, Mich., of Ted Pizzoni, suspect in the slaying of Jerry Buckley, radio announcer.

An application for Pizzoni's extradition was brought here yesterday by Lieut. John Hoffman, of the Detroit police. Pizzoni was arrested in New York Saturday.

RADIO ADVICE GIVER MISSES BROADCAST

The questions and answers were read for the audience at large, he said, and not merely for the inquirer. He also issued the following statement:

"Mr. Le Roy Mark, president of the American Broadcasting Co., operators of Radio Station WOL, states that Prof. Norman approaches the station for the purchase of time to broadcast his feature, producing letters from many reputable stations throughout the country recommending him in the highest terms. These letters he left with the broadcasting company and they were shown to Mr. Arthur Batchieller, United States supervisor of radio, on August 7, who read them all very carefully and stated that he could see no objection to such a feature.

"The day Prof. Norman went on the air, Mr. Mark called a prominent official in the District Government with ample authority, over the telephone, told him the facts of the broadcast and asked if it was necessary for Prof. Norman to obtain a license, that he was only going to be here temporarily, probably two or three weeks, and if it was necessary for him to be licensed he would be glad to send him down there to comply with the law, that he was selling a booklet for $1 and answering questions. This official informed Mr. Mark he did not think it would be necessary, owing to his short stay and its being radio broadcasting. The broadcasting company then proceeded to put on his talks.

"Mr. Mark said the broadcasting station is primarily interested in the sale of its time as a newspaper is in its space.

"Prof. Norman arrived here from Baltimore, presented these splendid credentials and asked the broadcasting company the price of their time on the air, signed a contract for it and, with the telephone approval of the official of the District Government, he was put on the air. And with the station taking the extra precaution of bringing the matter to the attention of the radio inspectors, we are inclined to believe that WOL has not broken faith with the public or put anything over their microphone that is not entirely in keeping with the dignity of the station which enjoys the confidence of the Washington public."

FINANCING DROUGHT RELIEF.

Some of the governors who conferred Thursday with President Hoover are displaying extraordinary enthusiasm in favor of drawing upon the Treasury for money with which to deal with drought relief in their States. One or two of the governors hint very strongly that they think this Federal money should be given outright. Others veil their desire for a gratuity by suggesting that a Federal loan be made, while others urge the Government to make available at once the appropriations for aiding State highway construction.

President Hoover's statement following the conference makes it very plain that he expects the States to look after their own necessities, to the extent of their ability. He favors Federal aid only in the event drought conditions can not be remedied by the resources of a State.

There is no evidence as yet to indicate that any State will be in need of national assistance. The hardest hit State, it is believed, is Kentucky, but belated rains there have already helped to repair drought ravages, and the fields will yield partial returns after all. Farmers who feared that they would be without potatoes and other vegetables next winter are now assured of home-grown supplies in many cases. They are chiefly in need of help in feeding their cattle. This situation will be met by reduced railroad rates on feed, and in some cases cattle can be shipped to pasture at reduced rates. It does not appear that these conditions constitute a national emergency justifying a drain upon the Treasury.

Swift steps are being taken to relieve all human suffering throughout the drought belt. If there is any such suffering, beyond the power of the States concerned to provide instant relief, the Red Cross is ready to step in. It has several millions available, and can obtain any needed amount by a public appeal. The country does not begrudge any amount that may be needed to prevent suffering. It is best, however, that help from the country at large should be given in the form of public subscriptions to the Red Cross, rather than drawing upon the Treasury by strained interpretations of law.

No doubt enlarged construction programs applied to public roads would give much relief in the drought districts, where unemployment adds to other hardships. If the Department of Agriculture is warranted by law in making available at once the money appropriated for highway aid, this action should be taken, provided the States concerned will meet the situation halfway.

In view of the prompt organization of relief measures, there is no excuse for emotional appeals to the United States Government for money with which to fight the drought. Probably it will be found that every drought-stricken State is easily capable of handling the emergency that has arisen within its borders. If it is not, the general public will stand by with subscriptions to the Red Cross.

CHAIN STORE SURVEY.

The Senate passed a resolution two years ago, calling upon the Federal Trade Commission to investigate the chain store system for the purpose of determining the extent to which such consolidations had been effected in violation of law, the extent to which they are susceptible of regulation under existing law, and what new legislation is necessary or desirable to effect the regulation and control of chain store distribution. The commission has not had funds with which to prosecute this inquiry, but appropriations made in the last session have enabled it to augment its staff, and the chain store inquiry now is being pushed. The commission is inquiring as to unfair competition and the financial operations connected with chain store expansion. It is expected that the commission will be able to make its report within a year.

When the study is completed, the chain store controversy will come to a head. There is no disputing the fact that the system is based in sound economic principles. But the chain store has become a political issue in many sections; candidates are running for office on a pledge to do something to destroy the so-called monster that drives the independent merchant out of business, and drains money from the community and transfers it to the financial centers. It is not likely that the report of the Federal Trade Commission will silence the critics of the chain store. It promises, rather, to provide ammunition for further attacks.

TARIFF BOLSTERS CORN PRICES.

Representative Will R. Wood, of Indiana, has brought a new slogan into the congressional campaign. Only a few days ago Jouett Shouse, Democratic executive chairman, announced that his party would exploit that well-known but opprobrious phrase, "the billion dollar Grundy bill." But Mr. Wood comes back with a resounding shibboleth about the "$500,000,000 corn duty," that means something quite different.

Democratic sharpshooters depend upon their "billion dollar" slogan more for its popular appeal than its accuracy. It is intended to convey to the mind of the gullible public that the increased duties will take $1,000,000,000 out of its closely-guarded purse. On the other hand, Mr. Wood's new slogan is based on facts and figures which indicate that the tariff puts money into the pockets of the corn farmers. The tariff act allows 25 cents per bushel protection on corn. If corn had been left on the free list it could be imported from Argentina for 65 cents. The present price, 90 cents, represents a saving of millions to American corn raisers.

This incident of direct benefit from the corn tariff suggests the advisability of looking into other fields where increased duties have become effective. World markets are in a state of depression. It is reasonable to assume that, were it not for the tariff, American price levels would have been pushed down to equal those of foreign countries.

It is idle for Democratic campaigners to keep up their pretense that the American tariff is responsible for the 1930 depression. A survey by the Department of Commerce shows that slack business extends throughout the world, and that the trade of South America has suffered more than that of any other continent. Exports from North America, which means chiefly the United States, held up as well as those of Europe and Asia, and imports into this country remained closer to the normal level than in either South America, Europe or Asia.

Apparently the additional protection that Congress extended to American enterprise came just in time to fend off undue competition from cheaper foreign goods. When prices are falling and market conditions begin to be slack, it is a good time to strengthen the domestic producer against competition from foreign cheap labor. In the face of a general depression protective duties are a stabilizing influence in agriculture, industry and labor. It might be worth while for the Republican national committee to investigate the total saving that has been made possible by the tariff during this time of slump prices. Indications are that it would far overtop the "billion dollars" of which tariff critics prate.

MOVIE ADVERTISING.

Last April the motion picture producers and distributors of America announced, with a fanfare of publicity, the adoption of a new code of ethics designed to purge the movies of objectionable practices. The announcement was followed in June by another describing a code of ethics for advertising and publicity managers, the principal provision of which was subscription to the general code of ethics "based on truth, honesty and integrity." Nineteen leading organizations, in subscribing to the code, pledged that good taste should henceforward be the guiding rule in their advertising, that illustrations and text should faithfully represent the picture itself, that false and misleading statements should not be employed directly or implied by type arrangements or by distorted quotations, and that nudity "with meretricious purpose" and salacious posters should not be employed. In this fashion were the movies to be purified and the need for public censorship avoided.

The movies that have been exhibited since April differ in no essential respect from those that were exhibited prior to the signing of the producers' code. This, perhaps, is explained by the fact that the code merely outlined practices that already had been accepted by the reputable producers. It was pointed out when the producers' code was signed that the need for improvement was chiefly with respect to the way in which movies are advertised and otherwise exploited. Now it is becoming apparent that the advertising and promotion managers' code is having little effect on prevailing practice.

Examination of movie advertising as published in newspapers and magazines gives evidence that the industry has no intention of making illustrations and text faithfully represent the picture itself, and, particularly, that nudity "with meretricious purpose" is depended upon to draw throngs through the doors of movie palaces. Disgusting advertising is alienating many potential patrons from the movies.

LIPTON, ETERNAL YOUTH.

When Sir Thomas Lipton sailed from London to have another try at winning the America's Cup the Prince of Wales bade him farewell with the assertion that "a win for Sir Thomas will be as popular in America as here." The prince may have overestimated the generosity of Americans, but it can be said without equivocation that no sportsman is more welcome in the United States than the owner of the graceful yacht, Shamrock V.

For 31 years Sir Thomas has been trying to gain possession of the America's Cup. So far as international yacht racing is concerned, he is Britain's single-handed challenger. Again and again he has crossed the Atlantic to wrest the famous cup from American yachtsmen, each time bringing an improved "Shamrock" on which the hopes of Britain rested. His green racers have gone down to defeat, but the ardor of Sir Thomas lives on, in spite of his 80 years.

During these years of competition Sir Thomas has endeared himself to the American public. He has come to be the embodiment of a quality that every American admires, namely, sportsmanship. "The Americans have always beaten me fairly and squarely," he radioed from the Leviathan "but I hope to turn the tables with the best boat yet." His perseverance, his buoyant hopefulness and his sense of fairness reveal an admirable character.

Americans would hardly hail with delight the transfer of the famous "old mug," as Sir Thomas calls it, to the other side of the Atlantic. Nevertheless, they will find keen interest in the performance of the Shamrock V in the international races a month hence. Whether he wins or loses, the gallant British veteran may be assured of the enduring regard of the American sporting public.

TALKIES FOR VETERANS' HOSPITALS.

The installation of sound motion pictures in all hospitals maintained by the Veterans' Bureau will be a potent factor in improving the well-being of sick and disabled veterans. Early in the spring of 1929, Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of the Veterans' Bureau, became interested in the project of placing sound pictures in veterans' hospitals. Silent movies have been a regular feature of recreation at the hospitals for a number of years, but sound equipment has only recently been adapted to the needs of the bureau.

Gen. Hines detailed his chief of construction, Col. L. H. Tripp, to study the matter, and an electrical engineer was sent to visit the various manufacturers in order to obtain first-hand information as to the best type of equipment, costs, &c. After an exhaustive survey of this field, specifications based upon the engineer's report were drawn up, covering a special type of nontheatrical equipment suitable for institutions. This synchronized sound equipment is complete in every detail and is augmented by attachments which make possible the playing of phonograph records through the amplifiers, so that music for dancing or for religious services may be available to the patients at any time.

Installations are under way in a number of veterans' hospitals, and it is anticipated that all those having recreation halls or other suitable facilities will be equipped by Christmas. Eventually this feature of entertainment may be installed in all the institutions now under the veterans' administration, which include the eleven national homes for disabled volunteer soldiers.

FORD'S THEATER

Washington Letter to St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The old Ford Theater on Tenth street in the Capital—a structure which is as melancholy in appearance as its history is tragic—may be facing its ultimate destiny.

On the calendar of the House of Representatives, listed as unfinished business, is a bill which would make of this historic building a Lincoln Museum. Under the measure $100,000 would be appropriated for the work of reconstruction.

It is planned to reconstruct the interior to some semblance of the way it looked when John Wilkes Booth killed the Civil War President.

The extensive collection of Lincoln relics, now housed in the Oldroyd residence on the same street, where Lincoln died, after being brought across the street from the theater, would be moved to the old playhouse. Offices for patriotic societies also would be provided.

The proposed new use of the theater would climax a history of a century. The building was erected in 1832 as a Baptist church, and remodeled during the Civil War period as a theater.

There never was a play given in the theater after Lincoln's death. "The Octoroon" was billed, but public sentiment against the showing was so intense that the promoters were forced to cancel the engagement. Subsequently Congress purchased the building.

Later another tragedy was enacted within the old walls. Used as a War Department office, the interior collapsed June 9, 1893. Twenty-two men were killed, and 168 injured.

During the World War period, the building housed Government overflow. There was an Army recruiting office there until two years ago.

But it is desolate now. The only life within its dim-columned interior is the Government watchman. One is on duty at all hours of the day and night.

Perhaps the most keenly interested person in this latest move to establish the status of the theater is Charles S. Wilson, 83 years old and a resident of the Capital.

Wilson claims, and as yet he has not been challenged, to be the only living eyewitness in Washington of the tragedy within the walls of the theater on Good Friday night, April 14, 1865.

He was 18 years old at the time, and remembers the incident vividly. There was the report of a revolver, he said, and in the great confusion, he was forced to the street.

"I was dazed," said Wilson, describing the event. "As I waited for transportation home to where I lived on Capitol Hill, I remember hearing rumors that Grant and Seward, too, had been killed."

MURDER HERE AND IN LONDON.

As murder becomes increasingly popular as a national pastime on this side of the Atlantic, says the Houston Post-Dispatch, the English continue to prove that it can be prevented with the righ kind of police officers and a stern sysem of justice. According to the news, only ten cases of murder were reported in London, the world's largest city, in 1929. One of these murders was committed in 1928 and not discovered until 1929. The Nation quotes Lord Byng, London police head, as apologizing because his men failed to solve two of the ten murders and because two suspects who were tried were acquitted. In addition to the murders, London had 37 manslaughter cases, a total of 47, as against 357 murder and manslaughter cases for the same period in New York City alone.

Citizens of London are essentially the same as those of New York. Both are humanly susceptible to emotions of fear, rage, lust and greed, which tend to provoke violence. Firearms, billies and butcher knives are just as plentiful in London as in New York. Yet murder is a rare crime in London because it is punished quickly and drastically. The moral is clear, but we refuse to apply it.

JUST FOLKS

THAT FIRST KISS.

When Nellie was a winsome miss
I watched her on the sly
And thought: If I should steal a kiss
I wonder would she cry?
And would she call her sleeping dad
To hurry down the stairs
To kick outside a youth who had Embraced her unawares?

She was so lovely and so fair
So rosy was her cheek,
I wonder if I kissed her there
If she for help would shriek?
And would she raise a fearful din
And maledictions shout
Or call her several brothers in
To grab and throw me out?

Oh, oft I thought the problem o'er,
But ne'er the answer knew.
If I should kiss her at the door
I wonder what she'd do.
I wondered would she slap my face
Or would she turn and run
And tell her mother, in disgrace,
The awful thing I'd done?

Time came when I could not resist
Her charms one moment more.
That radiant face of hers I kissed,
Then waited for the roar.
But from her lips there came no cry,
No dreadful scene occurred.
She took it just as nice as pie,
And never said a word.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

MY DEAR LOUISE:

Do you remember the time when good fortune descended on you in bunches and you had so many boxes of candy you didn't know what to do with them?

As I remember it, you got so fed-up that for many weeks thereafter any mention of sweets brought to your eyes the dismal expression peculiar to those of a gold fish that has been too long out of water.

I was reminded of the incident yesterday when I observed your growing enthusiasm for a certain family new to your acquaintance.

They are, so far as I know, fine people. I see no reason why you shouldn't cultivate and enjoy them. In fact, it would please me if your present relation should ripen into a solid and enduring friendship.

But your present tactics are designed to accomplish a result exactly opposite.

At the rate you are going, another month or two will find you regarding this family with the disfavor commonly bestowed upon something the cat drags in.

It is just as easy to get fed up on people as it is to get fed up on candy.

And the process is the same in both cases.

Too much of a good thing makes it an abomination, and the finest of people lose their charm if you have them as a regular diet.

Perhaps you think you aren't with them enough to risk boredom, but that is only half of the danger.

Your present high regard for them is an enthusiasm and enthusiasm is an abnormal state that can't last. Nature causes it to burn out quickly because it is too much of a strain.

Friendships that ripen slowly usually keep well, but the ones that develop in a day usually spoil as quickly.

When you begin by being "crazy" about people, your affection is certain to cool within a month. No runner who sprints at the beginning can hold the pace.

You must learn the art of repression—and suppression.

In short, don't get too thick with anybody, for the more intimate you are the sooner you will get fed up.

Love those who are worth it; but when you find friends worth keeping, don't risk losing them by jading your appetite.

THE COURT AND THE GOLF LINKS.

(Judge rules that miniature golf course activities do not constitute the game of golf."—News item.)

Judge—Just what makes you believe that people on a Tom Thumb course are playing golf?

Lawyer—They use golf sticks and golf balls, your honor.

Judge—Don't be silly. Millions of Americans use golf sticks and golf balls and never play golf. There is only one proof that a man is playing golf.

Lawyer—And what is that, your honor?

Judge—His score card. And even that is open to suspicion. Have you any other argument to advance in support of your contention that the game played on a tabloid course is golf?

Lawyer—The game is publicly advertised as golf.

Judge—Are you spoofing me? Everything done with a golf ball is publicly advertised as golf. Your contentions are getting very exasperating.

* * * *

Lawyer—Your honor, as additional evidence that it is golf, I point to the fact that thousands of people engage in it in the belief and conviction they are playing golf.

Judge—That's no proof. What seems to be the attitude of these people when playing? Do they enjoy the game?

Judge—Then, of course, it can't be golf they're playing.

* * * *

Lawyer—But, your honor, in Tom Thumb golf there is a definite reason for this enjoyment and happiness.

Judge—What is it?

Lawyer—It is impossible for any golfer to take a full swing.

Judge—No wonder they're happy! If I could play the game without trying a full swing I'd enjoy it myself. But if they don't take a full swing how do they lose golf balls?

Lawyer—In the Tom Thumb game they don't lose golf balls.

Judge—Then, obviously, it isn't golf! Losing balls is the very backbone of the ancient and honorable pastime. I'm surprised at the stupidity of your contentions. What other curious practices prevail in this demitasse game? For instance, what about winter rules permitting teeing up in fairways?

Lawyer—We have no such thing as winter rules on these Tom Thumb courses.

Judge—No such thing as winter rules! You mean to say no player ever insists upon the right to tee up in fairways?

Lawyer—I think not, your honor.

Judge—Case dismissed! That proves beyond all bounds that the game isn't what is commonly accepted as golf in the United States of America.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

"Bravo for the Washington School Board!" Exclaims Lifelong Educator Who Likes Its Speech-Correction and Other Good Work.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Please permit a frequent visitor to our Capital City of rare and renowned beauty, who is a lifelong educator and has occasion to make inquiries into operations of the public school system of the District, to offer his praise and admiration for the excellent work which the District Board of Education is doing.

In more respects than one the schools of the District lead those of the States. They have a well-organized department of "speech correction," which is doing splendid work.

Superintendent W. S. Patterson, strongly assisted by Mrs. Grace W. Atherton, his principal teacher, presides over the special section known as "special activities" with efficiency, grace and marked intelligence. It was an agreeable surprise to find they have a large number of children and youngsters listed under various classifications of marred and broken utterance, and that a large corps of trained instructors work heroically with these.

Having had occasion to study conditions in the State boards of education, I do not know of a State that has furnished itself with such a provision for removing this dreadful handicap from the wards of our Nation. On the other hand, I have often found that children who stammer badly, or who have other serious defects of speech, are turned away from the doors of schools as incapables. Where allowed to enter, they go through the grades and high school and on to graduation from college, stammering as they started. That should not be. Children embarrassed and handicapped by broken speech are as truly the wards of the Nation as are bright, unafflicted children. Surely provision should be made suitable to their needs. Some of the brightest, most influential and usefully active men I know are cured stammerers who seemed originally to be doomed to a life of inferiority. They needed only to be helped.

Bravo for the Washington School Board! It shall be my pleasure to tell some of the State boards of the advance work being done by it.

E. R. CARSWELL.

Rhode Island and Virginia Representation in Congress.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The article in last Sunday's Post by David Rankin Barbee, entitled "Agriculture to Lose Many Congress Seats," contained several erroneous statements of historical fact which I would like to call to your attention.

Quoting from the article: "Rhode Island began Statehood with one congressman and from the first census, in 1800, to the last one, she had two. Now she slips back to her colonial status." In the first place, the first census was in 1790, not in 1800, the census taken this year being the fifteenth census. The article then entirely overlooks the fact that after the census of 1910, Rhode Island's representation in Congress was increased from two to three representatives, which she has at the present time. By reason of this, she had five electoral votes in the elections of 1912, 1916, 1920, 1924 and 1928. As a result of the 1930 census it is indicated that her representation will be reduced from three to two, but not to her colonial status of one.

Referring to Virginia, the article states that she reached her nadir in 1880 when her delegation sank to nine, jumping back to ten in 1890, where it remained. The fact is that the nadir of nine was reached in 1870, not 1880, due to the separation of West Virginia in 1863, and it jumped back to ten in 1880.

"Benjamin Franklin Boulevard" Would Cause Confusion, Says Correspondent.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The suggestion of a correspondent in last Thursday's Post that B street, skirting the public building triangle on the south, with its proposed extension to the Union Station Plaza, be named Benjamin Franklin boulevard is a good one, sentimentally considered. An objection to it is that it is contrary to the Capital City street naming system.

To the inconvenience not only of strangers, but of old residents, our orderly scheme of street nomenclature has been too often disregarded in the past. In some cases there has been a duplication of names.

In the city directory you will find Jefferson avenue, Jefferson place and Jefferson street, as well as Jackson street, Jackson alley, Jackson place and Jackson Hall court. Already we have a Franklin street and a Franklin place. Why make confusion worse confounded by adding Franklin boulevard? In the naming of streets why not hereafter adhere strictly to the common sense alphabetical and numerical system?

An Old Boy Gets Gay and Is Rarin' to Go 'Long With Suggestion to Change Men's Hot-Weather Dress.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Referring to recent correspondence relative to the adoption of appropriate summer wear by men, let us have the movement under headway at once.

The initiative should be taken by men of pleasing personality who can stand the buffetings of outraged tradition. I am about 70, bent and skinny, with a furtive glance and a wart on my nose, so am not ideally fitted to lead this soul-stirring reform. But you can bet your boots I'll proudly take my place in the procession, wearing 'em short 'n thin, and as jauntily as worn by those with more "it."

Come on you rah!-rah! boys—disregard the "Don't be a sill!" of the bubbling subdeb! You lean and fat men—yes, even hardheaded old roosters whose minds closed to new ideas a generation since—hop on the band wagon! METHUSELAH.

San Domingo Relics Grace Benton Home

Chest There Which Once Contained Bones of Columbus.

IN an attractive setting far out on Reservoir road, on an original land grant to Lord Calvert, stands a Georgian house, recently purchased by Dr. Frederick L. Benton, U. S. N. Medical Corps, retired, and Mrs. Benton, who have established their home there and added to the charm of the place with numerous pieces of rare, old furniture and hangings picked up during their residence of three or four years in Santo Domingo.

The house, built in 1797, radiates the atmosphere of early republican days. It stands on a bluff overlooking the river, affording a wonderful view. Old records seem at variance whether it was built by Col. Carberry or Abner Cloud, although they reveal that it was leased for 40 years at the rental rate of 10 cents a year, which gradually increased to $40 annual rental.

Here in the eight-room cottage Thomas Jefferson used to come to visit his friend Thomas Main. Both men were interested in agriculture and Thomas Jefferson was so impressed with a pamphlet written by his friend treating of the transplantation and management of hedge plants that he had it published with an agriculture article of his own, the pamphlet being printed in Washington in 1807 and is now in possession of the Library of Congress. The Main article formerly formed a part of the library of Thomas Jefferson.

Vague bits of history and lore of the War of 1812 cling to the old house. And within in the large rooms Dr. and Mrs. Benton have arranged some delightful pieces of furniture brought from ancient Santo Domingo, many of which boast interesting island lore.

In their possession is a chest in which rested the bones of Christopher Columbus during some repairs to the old cathedral some years ago. The bones of the discoverer of the New World were placed there by the priests and kept there during the remodeling. As an expression of gratitude to Mrs. Benton for the clinic established in Santo Domingo for the care of natives, the nuns of the cathedral presented her the priceless chest, which is made of cedar, uncarved, but nicely dovetailed and displaying rare workmanship. It was a precious object in the convent and probably was brought to Santo Domingo by the Spaniards several centuries ago.

In their house are other antiques, rare tables and chairs with the charm of history added to make them interesting objects in the decoration of the historical cottage.

Dr. Benton served in Santo Domingo as brigade surgeon and during their stay of three and a half years gave invaluable services to the native population through the founding of a clinic which afforded two beds and a dispensary for the treatment of unfortunates. Mrs. Benton worked constantly with the nuns in the succor of those ill and in need of care.

Upon their return to Washington, where both Dr. and Mrs. Benton always had lived, the former retired from the naval service, some ten years before retirement age, and is now established in practice here.

Allan Hoover Guest At New York Dinner.

Mr. Allan Hoover, son of the President and Mrs. Hoover, was the guest of honor at a small dinner given by Miss Helen Masters Bunting in the summer garden of the Tuscany on Thursday evening in New York. Her guests were college friends of Mr. Hoover's at Stanford University.

For Normal Girlhood

"My daughter Magdalen did not seem to develop as she should. At times she had no pep at all and couldn't get her school work very easily. For four years we doctored her off and on. Then a friend told us how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped her years ago, so I got a bottle for Magdalen. Her nerves are quieting, her general health is better and she is now as normal as other girls."—Mrs. J. Bartholdi, Thompson's Addition, The Dalles, Oregon.

HIDE IN THE DARK

By FRANCES NOYES HART
Author of "The Bellamy Trial"

After the Second Gong.

Gavin followed the spacious gesture toward the corner with eyes fairly luminous with interest.

"Did you, now! And just how did you come to crash into it?"

"Well, it was black as the pit and I was feeling my way along the wall, trying to get at the door. I ran bang into the rotten thing—it came slopping out all over my ankles like a tidal wave. I got as nasty a crack in the shin as I've had in a couple of cycles, too, if that's of any slight interest to you."

"Of the greatest interest, I assure you. You mean that all this happened on your way upstairs, just after the lights went out and before the first gong sounded?"

"Now, don't you wish I'd say yes to that?" demanded Joel with more than a trace of belligerence. "Oh, I'm not as dumb as I look. I heard you asking Jill if some one couldn't have eavesdropped on her when she was making a rendezvous with Doug right about in that corner. No, sir, it was not before the first gong rang. It was after the second gong rang."

"You hadn't confided in us that you were in this room at approximately the time of the murder, had you?"

"You're darn shouting I hadn't. And as far as I'm concerned," added the impenitent Joel, "it would have been all right with me if you hadn't ever found out that I was within a mile of it. Not after that crack of Larry's about even Caesar's wife not being above suspicion! If involving me means involving Ray, you can bet your life that I'm going to fight like a wild cat every time I catch any of you trying to pin anything on me. I'm the lad that got her into this mess and I'm the lad that's going to get her out."

"My dear fellow, there's not a man of us here that doesn't feel exactly as you do. I'd be the last person in the world to blame you for a moment for trying to keep free of incriminating evidence—our only difference would be as to the safest method to go about it. I'm sorry if my manner has been offensive. I don't want to put in a bid for sympathy, but I pledge you my word that I'm not at all in love with my present job. I have every intention of seeing it through, however. You could help me quite a bit, if you felt like it."

"I've been talking through my hat," said Joel, with fervent simplicity. "All right, fire ahead—I feel like it."

"The time element in this thing interests me considerably," explained Gavin Dart. "I want to narrow it down all I can. How long after the first gong sounded were you in this room?"

"Oh, about two minutes maybe. It was like this. I was worried half crazy about Ray and I wanted to get hold of her to tell her how sick I was about the way that I'd lit into her, but she was doing her best to keep out of my way—you were, weren't you, Ray?"

"I certainly was," said the little owl solemnly. "I certainly was."

A Trail of Perfume.

"So the only idea that I had from the time that we started out was to track her down and explain to her how I felt about things, and see if I couldn't get her to see them my way. Well, you'll probably get a good laugh out of the way I started out, but I can't help that. All I knew was that I had to get hold of her, and I only knew one way to do it. She uses some funny kind of perfume—I could find it in the dark, all right, but I don't know what you call it. What in hades do you call it, Ray?"

"It's wallflowers. English wallflowers!"

"Well, whatever its name is, it's what I was after. I started out after some one who brushed by me on the third floor landing. I couldn't be sure that it was Ray, but I could tell that it was a girl, because her arm was bare. I trailed her down the north corridor for a bit, but I lost her somewhere on the second floor, so I thought I'd have a shot at the first floor. I went crashing down and struck out for this room. It was quieter than the tomb and the only thing that I could smell was the wind—some one must have left a window open or maybe it just came down the chimney—anyway, there weren't any more wallflowers around than you'd find in Iceland, and all of a sudden I got a rotten panicky feeling that I wanted to get out of this place. I'd almost got over to that door into the service quarters when I turned square around and started clawing my way back along the wall to get into the hall and up to the second floor again—I had a hunch that she was up there—Ray, I mean. I was going pretty until I crashed into this darn tub right at the corner."

"Wait a bit, will you, Joel? Did you hear anything at any time that you were in this room—anything that seems at all suspicious, I mean, now that you look on it?"

"Not a doggone thing. The only sound that I heard the whole endurring time was me lighting into that avalanche and telling it what I thought of it—good and soft and emphatic. As soon as I got my breath back, I lit out again for the second floor—that's how I got back to that rat's nest of rooms down the corridor that I was telling you about."

"This all helps a lot, of course. Now just how close should you say that you passed to the sofa at any time during this performance—I mean either coming or going?"

"Well, look, I'll show you—that's the surest way." He was on his feet, all his eager interest at the service of his late adversary. "I came in, almost over to that door when I changed my mind and went into reverse. I cut around this way, just short of that cabinet and came back along the wall, like this, past those windows and this other cabinet and right here was where I came a cropper. I landed on the tub right at this angle—if I hadn't been the ass of the world, I'd have remembered that we'd shoved it off there. Well, you can see yourself what happened, can't you? It caught me right above the ankle and I was as good as——" he broke off, staring down at the tub as though he were suddenly and incredibly confronted with Medussa's head.

"By God, Gavin, there it is!"

"There what is?"

Something in his voice brought the contemplative inquisitor abruptly to his feet.

The Weapon Recovered.

"The knife. . . . Good night. They must have just pitched it in without even—— Look, the water's all red."

Just behind him the door from the chapel opened with the quiet deliberation of fate itself, and Tom Ross and Kit Baird came through it, more quietly still. Kit pushed it to and stood leaning against it, a curiously arresting light in his eyes. Gavin Dart, half way between the fireplace and the transfixed Joel, turned to meet it.

"Hello there, back already? And without a knife, I take it?"

"Without a knife." Kit drew one hand slowly from his pocket and stretched it out, opening the fingers with a curious reluctance. "We found something else, however, on a little landing halfway down the stairs from the Priest's Room. . . . It's an earring—a diamond earring. Any one recognize it?"

Hanna Dart extended toward him one long white hand, the great eyes, frozen to something far beyond fear, fixed on the little, little glittering fountain sparkling in his palm.

"I recognize it," she said in a voice clear and strange as ice. "Will you give it to me, please? It is mine."

The Missing Earring.

"Just a moment, Kit," Gavin Dart laid a detaining hand on the outstretched wrist, staring down at the pretty trinket as though it were something inexpressibly ugly. "You say that this is yours, Hanna? I thought that you told us that you had put your earrings in the bedroom on your way upstairs?"

"That wasn't true, Gavin; I never put them there. The other one's here, tied in the end of my handkerchief."

She rose, unknotting the crumpled scrap of lace and lawn, and handed him the little glittering heap with steady fingers. It was through Gavin's that something like a tremor moved as he retrieved the one from Kit's hand and dropped the pair of them on the table beside him.

"And what, exactly, was your object in lying about them?" he inquired evenly of the tall girl standing before him, motionless as a statue of ivory and gold.

"Gavin, you mustn't try to frighten me or I'll say stupid things. It's because I was frightened when I saw that the earring was gone that I made up that foolish story about leaving it on the dressing table."

"I see. And when did you notice that the earring was gone, if we are now in your confidence?"

"Just after the lights went on—just after I saw—Doug. That mirror over there—it's right on a line and I could see myself standing there—and one of the earrings was gone. I put up my hands quickly as though I were covering my face and got the other one off and twisted it up in the corner of my handkerchief. No one was looking at me. No one was looking at any one but—Doug."

Kit said quietly: "I was looking at you—in the mirror. It showed me exactly what it showed you, Hanna." She said in her grave, lovely voice: "Did it, Kit? I didn't know that. That makes me a little duller than usual, doesn't it?"

Kit Turns Inquisitioner.

"And will you tell me exactly why you decided to go through all this elaborate deception?" inquired Gavin.

"But, Gavin, I've told you why, haven't I? It was because I absolutely lost my head. I didn't want any one to know that one of the earrings was missing. You see, I was afraid that I might have lost it on those stairs and I meant to get away as quickly as possible so that I could look for it. And then I couldn't get away."

"You were on those stairs, then?"

"Oh, yes, Gavin; don't you see that's how the earring was there?"

"Apparently I am more successful as an investigator than as a judge of character. I'd have staked my life on your candor and integrity; and yet in a moment's panic you find it easier to lie than breathe. Well, I'm not enough of the stoic Roman to pursue this ghastly farce to a logical conclusion; I'll hand over the role of inquisitioner to any one that wants it. How about you, Larry?"

"I'll take a hand for a bit, if you don't mind," interposed Kit pleasantly. "There are two or three things that I'm not quite clear about even now. Why not sit down, Hanna, and help us to straighten them out?" He pulled forward a chair.

She said: "I'd rather stand, please. What is it that you want to know?"

"Suppose we begin at the beginning. How did you know about these stairs?"

"I didn't know about them. I just—I just happened to find that door at the back of the closet."

Something young and wild and imploring appeared for a moment behind the clear serenity of the tall goddess' eyes, signaling to him frantically to turn back before it was too late, to have done with questions that lead further into darkness.

Kit turned his head away so that he would not see the desperate messenger.

"How did you happen to find it, Hanna?"

"I was following some one—some one that started down the stairs just ahead of me when the gong rang the second time."

"You knew who this person was?"

"I wasn't sure—only that it was a man. I knew that because there were only men in front of me and no one passed me."

"Why are you so sure of that?"

"Because I started the second that the gong rang and I had my hands stretched out on either side of me, like this—— He went straight down to the second floor and turned off into a room at the right. I stood in the doorway for a minute, listening, waiting to find out what he was going to do next and then I heard a queer little rustling sound at the other end of the room; I put my hand out and felt the paneling and knew that it was Lindy's room and that the noise must be coming from her closet. After a moment it stopped and there was a creak and then a click as though a door were closing; then everything was perfectly still. I thought—I thought that Doug was probably hiding in the closet and that the other person must have found him there. I got across the room somehow; the closet door was open—I couldn't understand that, because of the click, but I went on in anyway. There was a lot of tissue paper all over the floor and some boxes, too, but the closet was empty. I felt twice all around the walls to make sure, because I couldn't, simply couldn't believe it; and the second time my hand touched the doorknob. It wasn't fastened very tight; it turned under my hand and I'd have fallen if I hadn't caught at the handrail; that saved me. I knew then that I was on some kind of a staircase.

A Bit of Light.

"I went on down a little way again and then suddenly I realized that there was a landing and I stopped to listen. I didn't know at all where the stairs came out, and it was terribly dark and still. I felt as though I should die of terror if I couldn't get out of that horrible, closed-up place." She put out her hands as though to push back even the memory of it, her eyes dilating strangely under the delicate brows. "I got back up the stairs somehow and through the closet and across to the door—I was just outside it in the hall, when I heard—I heard Jill scream. That was what I told you, Gavin—you know that I told you that, and it was absolutely true. The only thing that I said that wasn't true was about the earrings and that was such a little thing. Are you still angry with me, Gavin?"

It Takes You Back 108 Years

WHO "got the break," the Washingtonian of a century ago, who had the vote and not much else, or the Capitalite of today, who has everything else but no vote? Many answers will be suggested by an interesting compilation of facts assembled by Arthur E. Demaray concerning the Capital City in the days when the White House was "way out in the country." A Record That Grew From Disaster

Having its inception with the smallpox epidemic of 1894, the career of Dr. J. Ramsay Nevitt, a devout churchman, offers many significant highlights in the progress of the Capital.

Why Fighters Go Wrong

Ned Brown, an authority on sports in general and the prize ring in particular, makes plain why the fistic gladiators of the present era of short fights and many fouls do not "stand up" like the old-timers who fought all day with their bare fists. ENGLISH MINISTER TO PREACH IN CITY

Dr. J. W. G. Ward to Fill Pulpit of Dr. Jason N. Pierce at Service.

PLANS STORY SERMON

An English minister, who happens to be at present pastor of the First Congregational Church of Detroit, the Rev. Dr. J. W. G. Ward, will fill the pulpit of Dr. Jason Noble Pierce at First Congregational Church tomorrow. He will preach "a story sermon." This is the way, it seems, that Jesus taught—by telling stories.

In a long ministry in three countries—the British Isles, Canada, and the United States—Dr. Ward has served a number of prominent churches.

After studying at Nottingham Theological College, in England, he occupied the pulpits of Bootle, Liverpool; New Court, London, and Emmanuel, Montreal, and succeeded the great English preachers, Richard Baxter, Ossian Davies and G. Campbell Morgan, as the minister at Tollington Park Church, London.

Dr. Campbell Morgan is one of the greatest preachers and Bible teachers this or the past century has given to history, and his pastorate at Tollington Park Church was a notable incident in his ministry. To have succeeded such a man in such a pulpit was no small achievement.

During the World War Dr. Ward served with the British fighting forces in France, directly in the fighting zone, and was often under fire. Sometimes he preached to the soldiers and sometimes he entertained them with dramatic readings and recitals, and in whichever role he appeared there were cheers for the faithful dominie.

Jewry Much Opposed To Calendar Change

Religion Jeopardized in Moveable Sabbath, Rabbi Says.

By DAVID RANKIN BARBEE.

Rabbi Abram Simon, representing his own congregation, and voicing the sentiments of Jewry of America, is much concerned and exercised over the proposal, now resting in the bosom of a congressional committee, to change the calendar so that we will have thirteen months of four weeks each. His concern, of course, is with the old Hebrew Sabbath, which, by this legislation, will no longer be an immovable day of rest, but so elusive, it seems, that his highness, Old Nick himself, could never keep up with it.

This movement to revise the calendar is no new thing, for it has been the dream of scientists and industrialists and the antireligious for centuries. Its present inspiration, it seems, is big business, which is desirous of the change on the ground that it will promote "efficiency, accuracy and convenience." Whether this is so or not, is one of those questions that can not be answered to the satisfaction of everybody. It is like the five-day week, which Henry Pord is championing, regardless of that terrible Commandment, which says: "Six days shalt thou labor." There is no getting away from that "shalt," except by doing away with the Commandment itself. But what is a Commandment from on high between industrialists?

RABBI ABRAM SIMON.

Held to Date Only to 360 A. D.

A weekly newspaper with a very large circulation recently had an interesting statement relative to the Jewish Sabbath in its "Question Box." This statement has so tremendously excited the Jews who have read it, as well as the Seventh Day Adventists and the Seventh Day Baptists, that it is reproduced here, together with Dr. Simon's answer to it, which he has asked the Church Page to use:

"When did the Jews adopt Saturday as their Sabbath?

"The period from sunset Friday to sunset Saturday was adopted by the Jews as their Sabbath about 360 A. D. It is erroneous to suppose, as many do, that the ancient Jewish Sabbath always fell on what corresponds to our Saturday and that the weekly cycle has never been broken. In ancient times the first day of the Jewish year was also the first Sabbath of the year and the day was determined by the high priests or the Sanhedrin by observing the new moon. A Sabbath followed every seventh day thereafter until the end of the year. Consequently, the Sabbath was not a regularly recurring seventh day in the sense that our Saturday or Sunday is, and the Sabbath did not fall on the day corresponding to our Saturday more often than it fell on other days of the week. At that time, of course, all the days began and ended at sunset. The Jews, after being scattered over the world, found the ancient Hebrew calendar difficult to follow, and about 360 A. D., under the leadership of Hillel II, they began to adopt Saturday as their regular Sabbath."

Now Dr. Simon does not believe this is true, either historically, Scripturally or from well known tradition. Hear ye him:

"The statements in this article as to the wandering character of the Saturday Sabbath have no basis in scripture or Jewish historical reckoning. Even in the days of Moses the Hebrews could count up to seven. Whatever instability there was in fixing the holy days by the recurrent phases of the moon did not apply to the Saturday Sabbath. The confusion lies in the use in the Bible of the word 'Sabbath' to the holy days and the seventh day or rest. Every day of rest was called a Sabbath, but Saturday was 'the' Sabbath. This confusion is found in Leviticus, especially with the reckoning of the seven weeks after the Passover 'Sabbath.' In other words, the Saturday Sabbath was fixed as early as the day of Moses.

Claim Held Unreasonable.

"From Moses to Hillel II was a period of 1,500 years. Is it reasonable to believe that a people, devoted to the Sabbath as ordained by the Fourth Commandment, would have worshipped for fifteen centuries during its most fruitful creative religious history on a wandering, unsettled, undetermined Seventh Day of Rest?"

Another celebrated rabbi, the Rev. Dr. M. Hyamson, who has been placed in the forefront of the battle to "safeguard the fixity of the Sabbath," goes more fully into the details of this matter than our own Washington rabbi does. He sums up the case for the industrialists, insurance companies and other elements of big business which find the weekly payroll and the calendar month so opposed to each other in the matter of accounting that they wish the simplest form possible adopted, regardless of tradition, custom, history, or even the sun himself.

"Our year is a solar year," says Dr. Hyamson," and its length coincides with the time it takes the earth to complete its annual pilgrimage around the sun. This is 365 days and 6 hours, so for three years we have a solar or calendar year of that length, and on the fourth year, which is leap year, one day is added, making the year consist of 366 days. We are confronted with other difficulties in the matter of the months, for some of them have 30 and some 31 days and one, February, has 28 days and in leap years 29. Every month, except February, has four weeks and two or three days; and none of the months begin on the same day of the week.

"The calendar reformers propose to substitute for this system a new one, consisting of thirteen months of four weeks each, each month to begin on Sunday and end on Saturday, and likewise the year of the new calendar will begin on Sunday and end on Saturday. This obviously would enormously simplify the calendar—but there is one objection to it.

"A year of thirteen months of 28 days each would amount to 364 days, and the solar year is one day longer, and in leap years two days. The advocates of calendar reform airily get around this by declaring that extra day in ordinary years as Dies Non—a day that never existed—and in leap years there would be two of these nonexistent days."

Dr. Hyamson got down to brass tacks, so far as the Jewish people are concerned, with this example, which shows how the revision will work:

"The year 1933, when this reform is proposed to be inaugurated, will begin on Sunday. The last Saturday of the thirteenth month of that year is the 364the day. The next day, Sunday, is the 365th day. What is proposed is that the new year of 1934 shall begin on Monday, but that Monday shall be called Sunday. If Monday is to be called Sunday, then Tuesday would be called Monday, and Wednesday would be called Tuesday, and Thursday would be called Wednesday, and Friday would be called Thursday, and Saturday would be called Friday.

"The Jewish religion," he declares, "does not tolerate fictions. And the ignoring of a day of the week and calling it a blank day is a fiction, which observant Jews are forbidden to recognize in regard to their Sabbath—a divinely appointed institution which has been kept by the Jewish people on the fixed seventh day of the week for the last 3,500 years. If this new calendar with a blank day were introduced, it would be necessary before 1934 arrived, to publish announcements that the 52 Sabbaths of the year would have to be observed on Friday, according to the new calendar. The year 1934 will have another blank day, so the Jewish Sabbath, in 1935, would have to be moved back to the Thursdays in that year, and by 1937 the Jewish Sabbath would be falling on every Monday of that year."

Sees Jews Ruined.

Dr. Hyamson shows further that "the observant Jew would be ruined economically by the constant change in his day of rest." More than that—"if his material circumstances made it impossible for him to observe his Sabbath on the true divinely appointed day, the loss of the Sabbath would jeopardize the continuance of the Jewish religion."

In every community in which I have ever lived—and I have lived in a number of the chief cities of the South—the Jewish citizens have been among the best citizens, the most liberal and progressive in their ideas, and the most generous with their means to every good cause. They give largely to Catholic and Protestant charities; they support cultural movements like music clubs, lecture associations, little theaters, art, everything that interests the human mind. And they keep their religion to themselves, never proselyting, never obtruding it, and never mixing it up with politics. Their history and traditions of theocratic government make them shrink from everything of that sort. It was probably with something of this nature in his mind that Dr. Hyamson exclaimed—and he is fully indorsed by Dr. Simon:

"Speaking on behalf of the Jewry of America I wish to say that Judaism is not reactionary or obscurantist. It is not opposed to progress. The Jew will do all he can to promote efficiency in business—the purpose sought by the advocates of calendar reform. But the interests of his religion are dearer to him than material gain. The Sabbath is the soul of the Jewish religion, which has preserved the life and the morale of the Jewish people. The Jews are not opposed to the reform of the calendar, provided the fiction of a blank day which destroys the continuity of the week is not introduced, and provided that the Jewish Sabbath and its position in the regular week as it is now will not be tampered or interfered with in any way."

Will Preach in Brightwood.

A member of the faculty of the Bible Institute at Providence, R. I., Mr. Terrell Crum, will fill the pulpit at Brightwood Park Methodist Church twice tomorrow.

Religious Centers Attract Ministers Taking Vacations

Washington Preachers Away From City Mostly Seek Out Institutions of Own Denominations for Summer Work.

Some of Washington's ministers spend their vacations at notable religious centers, where they get a spiritual revival and blessing. They do not always seek out the centers sustained by their own denominations, but most usually they do.

The Rev. C. H. Butler, pastor of Columbia Heights Lutheran Church, with Mrs. Butler, has been spending his vacation at the celebrated Moody summer conferences at Northfield, Mass., founded by Dwight L. Moody. Mr. Butler has completed his vacation and returns to his pulpit Sunday morning.

Dr. W. L. Darby, secretary of the Federation of Churches, is a Presbyterian minister, and he is spending the month of August at Pen Mar, Pa., among the Lutherans, and is staying at Augsburg cottage. It does the Presbyterians good to rub elbows occasionally with the followers of sturdy old Martin Luther.

Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen, pastor of Luther Place Memorial Church, is at Biglerville, Pa., among his own folk and in his ain countrie, teaching at the Lutheran Leadership Training Camp, of which he is a faculty member.

Dr. Albert Joseph Macartney, of the Church of the Covenant, and Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, are in Los Angeles, attending Bible conferences and preaching in various important churches.

The Rev. Harold F. Beatty, pastor of Georgetown Lutheran Church, the oldest congregation in the District of Columbia, has gone to Tarheelia to visit his mother, and on Sunday he will have the honor of preaching in the church where she worships and where he grew up—St. Mark's Lutheran Church at Charlotte. Not every minister can preach to his mother. The Rev. P. H. Williams, pastor of the Lutheran Church at Union Bridge, Md., and son-in-law of John P. Richter, will preach at Georgetown Church Sunday. Not every minister can preach to his father-in-law.

Mr. Robertson has been keeping open house at his church all summer and preaching a searching gospel to them.

Tomorrow the meeting will be at the First Methodist Protestant Church, on Fourth street below E street, and the Rev. Freeley Rohrer, minister of the Metropolitan Presbyterian Church, will preach.

Mrs. Nicholas Brady Will Not Become Nun

Mrs. Nicholas Brady, the widow of the multimillionaire who died recently, has denied from London that she intends taking the veil, endowing a convent or changing her mode of living.

Her sister, Mrs. John Cavanagh, in Norwalk, Conn., characterized the story sent out from Rome as "preposterous." This cable said that Mrs. Brady intended becoming a nun, wished to be Mother Superior, and would found a convent in Germany.

AT COVENANT

DR. CHARLES E. JEFFERSON,

CANDLER KEPT AWAY BY ILLNESS OF WIFE

Absence of Bishop Is Severe Disappointment to Mount Vernon Place Church.

PASTOR ON HIS VACATION

Bishop Warren A. Candler, of Atlanta, Ga., the venerable senior bishop of Southern Methodism, was to have preached at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church Sunday, but a telegram from him yesterday stated that owing to the serious illness of his wife he could not come here.

This is a severe disappointment to these Southern Methodists, for they are very fond of and very proud of their great episcopal leader. It is also a serious disappointment to this Church Page, for we had prepared a "powerful piece" on Bishop Candler, whom we have known since the roystering days of a childhood that goes a long way back into history.

Mexican Church Started.

Bishop Candler has but recently returned from Mexico City, where he met with a Methodist commission erected for the purpose of setting up an autonomous Methodist Church in Mexico. This church will know no North, and no South, no Union and no Confederacy, no slavery and no abolitionist; but, like the autonomous Methodist Church in Japan, it will be a Methodist Church of Mexicans, for Mexicans and operated by Mexicans.

There are only two such Methodisms in the world. Those noted above. In Mother England the Wesleyans are numerously divided. Whenever they get rich, the poor folks leave the church and set up one of their own. This is in line with the proverbial prayer of Father John Wesley: "Lord let not my people become respectable."

In the United States there are as many varieties of Methodism as a certain Methodist pickle manufacturer has brands of his output. And for that matter, the Lutherans and the Presbyterians and the Baptists and some of the other Evangelical churches had their divisions. Let no proud and haughty man point his scornful finger at the Methodists for splitting up. They are an energetic body.

Pastor Is Absent.

Dr. W. A. Lambeth, the popular pastor of Mount Vernon Place Church, is not here to fill his own pulpit. He is still summering in the Piedmont of North Carolina, and Sunday preaches at Main Street Methodist Church in Thomasville. You, may not have heard of Thomasville, but probably you will some day. It is an industrial town, a large furniture manufacturing city, at which Grand Rapids turns up its cabinet-nose, though it should not.

The Rev. H. R. Deal, the junior pastor of Mount Vernon, will fill the pulpit morning and evening.—D. R. B.

Catholic Organization Hits Rum Propaganda

The Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America, in its fifty-ninth session at Pittsfield, Mass., this week, adopted the following resolution: "This union condemns the propaganda which not only encourages lawlessness among youth, but instills in them a conviction that alcohol drinking is a comparatively harmless form of amusement and good-fellowship.

"It laments the bad example set by the drinking habits of many parents and condemns the lack of moral courage shown by hosts and hostesses in many Catholic homes on the occasion of weddings or other social festivities, in offering intoxicating beverages to guests."

CHRISTIAN CREDENTIALS.

The time is ripe for the reconsideration of Christian character. A critical age will ask, "What do ye more than others?" In the busy rush of our prosperous years business counted for more and Christian character for less than par. Now that large groups are finding time for thought and reflection, there is an insistent inquiry as to what is really worth while and a new inquiry into the claims of Christianity on life.

Christianity must be more than a mere creed if it is to be valid. True, there must be a creed. "I believe" must precede all that logically follows. But somewhow, by some sort of common consent, too many have stopped at that point. It is important that we believe wholeheartedly some things. Without some sort of belief, life would be empty indeed. Worth-while existence can not be built up on negations. Faith is positive. Doubt is negative. The one motivates action. The other paralyzes all action. Man lives by faith.

But there must be a corresponding activity. "Faith without works is dead, being alone," said a sage of long ago. The trouble with much of our modern religion is that it has not been in evidence as a method of life. What the world needs, and needs very much, is a great deal of Christian living. "We want your Christ, but not your Christianity!" cried out the Mahatma Ghandi to the American missionaries.

That there may be a valid Christian credential we must have the faith that makes us distinctively Christian, and this must be followed by that type of living in society, in business, in every human relationship, that all men may know that we have been with Christ and that we have learned of Him.

The very essence of Christianity is exemplified in the Master when he went about "doing good."

Emerson said, "What you do thunders so loudly in my ears that I can not hear what you say."

Men who are right in God's sight,

FAMOUS MINISTER WILL PREACH HERE

Rev C. E. Jefferson, Long Broadway Tabernacle Pastor, Guest.

NOTED ALSO AS AUTHOR

The congregation of the Church of the Covenant will hear the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Jefferson tomorrow. In 1898 Dr. Jefferson entered upon his most notable pastorate, that of the Broadway Tabernacle, New York City, which he made one of the foremost churches in that city.

He has just resigned from that pastorate, bringing to a close one of the most influential ministries in the history of the American pulpit. For 32 years he has filled the pews of the great church, which is close to the business center of the metropolis.

Visitors to New York always went to Broadway Tabernacle if they were religious-minded. It is said of Dr. Jefferson that, knowing he would have a congregation made up in part of strangers from all parts of the country, he made his preparations for his pulpit deliverances with that fact particularly in mind.

Distinguished as were his sermon efforts, they were not more so than the books that poured year after year from his gifted pen—books that were eagerly read by a large and growing audience. This writer could count 29 titles in the sketch in Who's Who. Every book was on a religious subject and every title arrested the attention of the book reader.

Dr. Jefferson is next to the last as pulpit supply for Dr. Albert Joseph Macartney, minister of the Church of the Covenant, who has been spending his vacation on the Pacific Coast, but who will return to his pulpit early in September.

Orthodox Greeks Celebrate Today

Feast of Transfiguration Will Be Observed in Southwest.

One of the great holy days in the Greek Orthodox Church is the Feast of the Transfiguration, and at its annual celebration their temple of worship is crowded with reverent members of the faith. On this Sunday there comes a recurrence of this feast, and the little Greek Orthodox Church at Sixth and C street southwest, will be the scene of the celebration. Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Samantzupolos are sponsoring this service, which will be opened with a high mass.

The rector of the church, the Rev. Thomas Daniels, will be assisted by other Greek Church dignitaries, and the church will be beautifully decorated with palms and cut flowers. A painting showing the transfiguration of Christ, given to the church by Mr. and Mrs. Samantzupolos and Mrs. James Constantinople, will be exhibited for the first time.

Special prayers for President and Mrs. Hoover and for the American people will be said during the services.

St. Margaret's League To Have Communion

Members of the Communicants' League and the organized workers of St. Margaret's Episcopal Church will make a corporate communion at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow morning, at which time the Rev. Robert Shores will be the celebrant.

Dr. Bruner Will Preach At Fifth Baptist Church

Fifth Baptist Church, "the popular people's church," will hear its former pastor, the Rev. Dr. Weston Bruner, at both services.

Dr. Bruner was the second pastor of this church, and was succeeded 21 years ago by Dr. John E. Briggs, of Person County, N. C., who is still preaching the old-time religion to his faithful flock. In the intervening years Dr. Bruner has been preaching the Gospel and spreading old fashioned Baptist doctrine over most of the Old South, his ministry being in Texas, North and South Carolina, Georgia and Virginia. Now he is back home, and many of the old-timers will be glad to see and hear him.

Colored Schools Hold Exercises at Closing

Closing exercises in colored graded schools were held yesterday at the Sumner, New Bell, Cleveland, John F. Cook, Deanwood, Lovejoy, Mott and Phillips buildings, affording opportunity for representatives from all grades to participate in programs of recitation and song. Attendance and promotion certificates were awarded so that classification of students may be properly readjusted at the opening of schools next month.

The schools have been conducted this year under the general direction of A. K. Savoy, assistant superintendent, in the absence of First Assistant Superintendent G. C. Wilkinson, who is attending the University of Pennsylvania, and Assistant Superintendent Eugene A. Clarke, who has been in charge of summer classes at Morgan College, Baltimore.

College President to Preach.

A college president, the Rev. Dr. J. T. T. Hundley, of Lynchburg College, Lynchburg, Va., will take Dr. Benjamin H. Melton's place in the pulpit of the Ninth Street Christian Church tomorrow.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

NOW IS THE TIME TO REMOVE PLANTAINS.

AUGUST is the month to wage war on the plantains that have taken a hold in your grass plot. Earlier in the season removing these weeds was a back-breaking job, but now they have lost there grip in the soil and can be pulled as can an onion in the garden.

So many people blame the abundance of plantains that annually appear in their lawns on the manure they spread over the grass in the fall. They feel that this is especially true if they used the ordinary stable manure. This is a mistaken idea.

Experience has taught landscape men that well rotted manure contains very few viable seeds. The only way to make sure about this, however, is to test the manure before you use it. This test is a very simple one, so simple that I should advise every one to make it in order to ascertain whether there is any real danger, particularly if this manure is to be used on a grass plot. If the manure is to be used on herbaceous borders it doesn't make so much difference. In such a case the weeds can be easily lifted as they appear.

To test manure for weeds, spread some of it over the bottom of a cigar box and keep it warm and moist. In a week or ten days weed-seedlings will begin to appear on the manure's surface. If they fail to appear you can be reasonably sure that the fertilizer is safe to use in any part of the garden.

This is also a good time to remove caterpillar nests from your trees. Never attempt to burn these nests while they are lodged on the bushes. If you do you will be sure to injure the trees. Better take a long pole and drive nails into the end of it, not one or two, but many. Make the pole's end fairly bristle with nails until it resembles a round brush.

A little practice in using this will enable you to roll up the offending nests on the nails with little trouble. Once on the pole the nests can be easily removed. It is best to do this in the evening after the caterpillars have come home to roost. Then you will be sure of getting the entire colony.

NEW UNION'S CHIEF REPLIES TO GREEN

DELEGATES TO BE SENT

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 15 (A.P.).—John H. Walker, national secretary-treasurer of the reorganized mine union, said today that Illinois members of the group which is opposed to the John L. Lewis branch of the United Mine Workers of America "will do nothing to embarrass the State Federation of Labor" at the convention to be held here next month.

Walker, who resigned the presidency of the State federation several months ago to aid the anti-Lewis miners, made his announcement following publication of a letter from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, instructing officers of the State federation to bar members of the reorganization group from the convention.

Will Elect Delegates.

Local unions in Illinois affiliated with the group which is waging a fight against Lewis for control of the miners' union, however, will elect delegates to the convention. Walker said he indicated that if the credentials of these delegates are rejected no fight will be made to force recognition.

"We would like to continue as a part of the great society of trade unions in Illinois and America," Walker said, "but there are powerful unions which have done much for the laboring people which are on the outside of the A. F. of L.

"While it would cause regret to many of the leaders of this movement to be denied membership in the State and American federation, the barring of the union from the federation could not seriously handicap its power for good to the miners of Illinois and the Nation.

Trust Betrayed, Claim.

"The miners of Illinois, who are now being called dualists by William Green, are just as good union men today as they were when they were paying Mr. Green's salary," Walker continued. "They have simply shaken off the control of men they could no longer trust. They are the men who built up the original United Mine Workers of America and now, refusing to be parties to their own betrayal, they have reorganized their union so that it once more stands for the things that trade unionism should stand for."

Instructions to bar the Howat-Germer-Walker followers from the State convention were sent by Green to Victor Olander, secretary of the State convention, in a letter which was made public yesterday.

Storms Over Sea Halt Lundgren Hop

Start of Globe Flight May Be Held Up Several Days, Is Word.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Aug. 15 (A. P.).—Adverse reports on ocean weather today caused Ted Lundgren to postpone departure on his proposed flight around the world at least until tomorrow and probably for several days.

A storm area was reported off the Azores, moving toward his course from Newfoundland to Europe. Until that has passed the ship will stay here.

Lundgren said tonight that when he left this field he would announce his crew, which it is believed will include Roger Q. Williams as copilot. He will go by way of Old Orchard Beach, Me., stopping there to take on fuel.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

IT was stated some weeks ago in this column that the then impending negotiations between the motion picture theater owners of Washington and the local musicians' union would prove to be less of a local confab than ever before in the history of either, and that the New York home offices of the chain-theater organizations now controlling the Capital's first-run theaters would say the final word looking to any adjustment, or severance of relations, that might come out of the conferences precipitated by the expiration on August 31 of the contracts currently in operation. That, as it turns out, was what might have been called socking the nail right on the old noggin.

On word from New York, both the local musicians and stage hands were given two weeks' notice yesterday—but not until an impasse in the negotiations with the musicians had been reached.

The bone of contention, it seems, was the intensely provocative Article V of the present contract, which stipulates the minimum number of musicians each theater shall employ—whether it wants, or needs, that many or not. Conditions have altered appreciably during the three-year period that has intervened since the present contract was executed and Article V, as a result, has become anathema to the theater managers. With that distasteful clause definitely eliminated, they were ready to talk wage scale.

The musicians, on the other hand, expressed a willingness to discuss wage scale only with the proviso that Article V remain in force without change, but only with those managers who were actually to employ musicians.

Such was the status of the conclave when the two weeks' notice was given the musicians. Without orchestras, stage shows could not be successfully presented and thus the need of stage hands would be automatically removed. They, therefore, also were given two weeks' notice.

Although both sides are avowedly in most desperate earnest, it is not inconceivable that all this may eventually prove to have been but one more impulsive gesture in a protracted controversy that may yet be adjudicated, if not agreeably, at least acceptably to both sides. This, I may hasten to add, is purely my own conjecture, based upon recollections of other similar disagreements, so tangled and so long drawn out that the new working arrangements finally arrived at had to be made retroactively effective to September 1 to preserve an unbroken working year.

However, if both sides prove obdurate—which likewise is not an inconceivable contingency—and things remain as they are as this is written Friday night, Washington on August 29 will join Baltimore, Brooklyn and other cities in controversy in presenting exclusively audible screen entertainment, sans pit and stage musicians and backstage crews.

Now don't say I didn't tell you and please don't pop one of those Thomas A. Edisons at me! Save any one you like.

That cherubic and placid publicist, Mr. Sam Rubin, chief cymbal whanger for the Loew interests in Washington, on Thursday departed these precincts for Newport, R. I., to escape the indefatigable hospitality of Room 808 in the hostelry that is the same as "two on the aisle" to the profession, and incidentally to elevate the social tone of the New England resort city for a fortnight.

Martin J. Quigley, millionaire publisher of The Exhibitors Herald-World—on behalf of which we awarded some bronze plaques to certain of the local picture houses for excellence of sound reproduction not so long ago—and an old college chump of our office mate, Mr. Jonathan J. Daly, Mayflowered briefly in our midst Thursday night and yesterday morning, returning to New York in time for the duplex premiere of "Hell's Angels," in the Gaiety and Criterion theaters last night.

When we sardined into the last row of the loge at the Fox yesterday afternoon to view the first de luxe performance of the new bill, it was with regret that the continued absence of Frankie Jenks as a result of his early-week adventure with the vivisectionists was noted. Fanchon and Marco's "Trees" idea was presented without benefit of master of ceremonies.

The Warner Bros. neighborhood houses—at least those on my more habitual beats—are being slapped in the face with a lot of paint brushes.

It just occurs to me that in making up the motion picture department of The Sunday Post, it was necessary to delete a paragraph from the movie lead to make it come within a curtailed space. It was a paragraph about Rin-Tin-Tin that I still believe to be of interest.

This most sagacious of the living police dog actors is insured for $140,000, and in addition to that carries a personal liability policy for $25,000. He has been on a movie pay roll continuously for the last eight years and has earned in the neighborhood of $500,000. A 15 per cent interest in the pictures in which Rinty has appeared has netted his owner and trainer, Lee Duncan, a regular income of $250 per week.

Now, of course, you will want to read the entire Sunday piece to find out what we were talking about—if anything!

That stuff that dribbled down out of the air off and on for a couple of days was rain!

Smart women favor cotton for general daytime wear. It is unsurpassed for sports and spectator sports.

For instance, take this jaunty frock of daffodil yellow pique. A brown leather belt nips the natural waistline. Tiny crystal buttons echo the brown shade and accent pointed edge of the inset chemisette. The inverted pin tucks of front shoulders add trimming note. Especially interesting is the box-plaited arangement across the front of the skirt. They give a delightful flare.

Style No. 8122 can be had in sizes 16, 18 and 20 years; 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. In the medium size, 3¼ yards of 35-inch pique is sufficient.

Cubs Conquer Robins, 4-3, In Tenth

By WILLIAM WEEKES.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—Young Danny Taylor's second double of the afternoon off old Adolfo Luque in the tenth inning of another dramatic battle today hoisted the Cubs to a 4-to-3 victory over Brooklyn's desperate Robins.

The blow, a solid smash to right field for which Babe Herman made a brilliant but vain attempt, scored Woody English from second base and proved a staggering punch on the collective Brooklyn chin. It gave the National League champions three victories in the four-game series, and was their fourteenth triumph out of nineteen games this season, along with moving them two full precious games ahead of the Flatbush clan in the standing.

Contest Is Pitchers' Battle.

The contest had been a thrilling pitching battle between Luque and Charlie Root, one which kept an overflow throng of nearly 45,000 spectators in a constant uproar.

After the first inning, and until the ninth when Brooklyn tied the score to send the game into extra innings, Root pitched almost perfect baseball, and any little slips by the Cub right-hander were more than offset by a defense through which it would have been almost impossible to toss a handful of birdshot. Double plays jerked Root out of trouble of his own making when he walked two men in the fourth and spoiled another Robin drive in the sixth.

The prize catch of the game came in the Robins' half of the tenth, and was produced by Kiki Cuyler on blistering Babe Herman's tremendous smash to right center. Cuyler reached from near the right-field foul line to clear into Hack Wilson's territory to snare the drive, which looked labeled for three bases.

The Cubs were smothered until the fifth, when three doubles into the crowd squeezed out one run. Danny Taylor started the inning with his first double and raced home on a hit of the same proportions by Grimm. Grimm was caught at third on Farrell's grounder, but Root punched another "crowd" double into left field. Ground rules, however, held Farrell at third and Blair was thrown out.

Root Checks Robins Until Ninth.

The National League champions tied the score in the sixth on a double by Cuyler and a single by this same Danny Taylor.

Root held Brooklyn until the ninth, when Ike Boone, batting for Rube Bressler, doubled to center and a single by another pinch batsman, Harvey Hendrick, who appeared for Glenn Wright.

Taylor, who was sent out yesterday to play left field in place of Riggs Stephenson, failed to do much Thursday, but had a carnival today. His first double was turned into a run, and his single sent Cuyler in with the tying run. While his last smash sounded taps for the Robins' hopes of gaining an even break in the series.

Root Is Enigma For Herman.

Babe Herman found Root nothing like the other Cubs pitchers who worked in the series. Root fanned him the first two times he came up and forced him to roll out to Blair on the two other occasions. Root gave the Robins only eight hits in 10 innings and fanned four men. Luque gave up only one hit in the first four innings, but was socked for 11 more in the next five and two-thirds sessions.

The crowd which watched the tense struggle was even greater than the throng which saw the Cubs win the first game of the series, 3 to 2 in 11 innings. An approximate total of 160,000 persons saw the four-game series, bettering the mark set in the last Brooklyn appearance in Wrigley Field when about 140,000 watched four games.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

BUCKY HARRIS' Detroit Tigers open the second half of the Western invasion here this afternoon when the Nationals, following a day of complete rest as far as baseball was concerned, resume their pennant chase.

While President Clark Griffith and many of Johnson's men are still talking pennant, this probably is for publication, more or less, for, in the writer's opinion, other than a miracle—and miracles seldom happen nowadays—only a train wreck in which the Mackmen might figure would give the Nationals a chance to cop the 1930 gonfalon and even then they should look for plenty of opposition from Bob Shawkey's New York Yankees.

Although booked to play yesterday while the Nats were idling, rain prevented the games in which Washington's closest rivals were to figure, which means that the Mackmen still lead the parade by eight games, while the Johnsons retain their two-game margin over the Yankees.

Nats Entitled To Credit.

While many of the home fans appear to be quite disappointed at the showing of the Nationals, this probably is due to the fact their appetites at one time were whetted for a slice of world's series melon. As a matter of fact, the Washington Club is entitled to plenty of credit for what it has done. Starting the season generally figured as being doomed to finish well down in the second division, Manager Walter Johnson and his charges have upset the dope right and left and, in other cities and among the players of other teams, they are looked upon as miracle men.

They have traveled at a .609 gait to date, hold the series edge in games played so far over all opponents except the St. Louis Browns and Athletics, the latter enjoying but a one-game margin, and every regular in their line-up except Ossie Bluege is pounding the ball at better than .300. As to pitching, Johnson has received a good enough brand to have given his team many more victories, its failure being due to the fact that the batters have failed too often in the pinches; in other words, far too many hits have been wasted.

After all, it is the hit in the pinch which decides ball games and a glance at the column in the averages headed

CARNERA FIGHT OFF AS SAILOR IS PICKED TO MEET ARGENTINE

Another Long Shot For Chicago Janitor

Chicago, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—John Heelan, a Chicago police station janitor, who dabbles with horse racing, and whose Paul Revere came in and paid $152 for $2 at Lincoln Fields last year, sneaked in with another long priced winner today.

Heelan's 2-year-old, Plutarch, grouped with Good and Fast in the field in the first race at Hawthorne, beat E. B. McLean's Portcodine by a length and paid $121.82 for $2. Heelan had $10 on Plutarch's nose today, the same as he had on Paul Revere a year ago.

Matching of Heavies for 15-Round Bout Surprise Move.

Yankee Stadium Will Be Scene; Sharkey Gets $100,000.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—The signing of Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight, and Victorio Campolo, of Argentine, for a fifteen-round bout at the Yankee Stadium September 25, was announced late today by the Madison Square Garden Corporation.

The signing of Sharkey and Campolo came as a surprise to the boxing world, as the management of the Boston sailor had been considering a September bout with Primo Carnera in Chicago. As a result Mique Malloy, Chicago promoter, will have to look elsewhere for an opponent for the man-mountain of Europe.

The negotiations for Sharkey's services came to an end when both the Garden officials and the American heavyweight's manager found that Sharkey was under contract to fight once more for the Garden corporation. Campolo has been under contract to the Garden for nearly a year.

Before the deal was closed Sharkey's manager drove one of the hardest bargains since the days of Gene Tunney in his second fight with Dempsey. Sharkey gets his $100,000 guarantee and also a privilege of taking 45 per cent of the net receipts—a cut seldom heard of in the fighting ranks.

Stribling vs. Schmeling Plans Announced.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 15 (A.P.).—The Atlanta Journal said today that "Pa" Stribling announced in a long-distance call from New York that Joe Jacobs, American representative of Max Schmeling, had agreed to a heavyweight title match between Schmeling and W. L. (Young) Stribling, to be held next June, probably in Berlin or Chicago.

The elder Stribling told the Journal the match would be promoted by Jeff Dickson, London promoter, if it is held abroad.

Stribling said Jacobs agreed to the match on the condition that Schmeling would first engage in three "warm-up" fights, all to be held abroad and promoted by Dickson. The dates of these engagements, Stribling said, probably will be some time in November, December and February.

Stribling Reaches U. S., Eager for Fights.

New York, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—The S. S. Aquitania docked late today bringing young Stribling, Macon, Ga., heavyweight, home from a two-round knockout of Phil Scott in London.

Stribling said he was ready to fight any man in the world and felt that he could punch with the best of the heavyweights since his sensational one-round knockout of Otto Von Porat in Chicago and his defeat of Scott. He much preferred, however, that his next bout be with Jack Sharkey, who was signed today to meet Victorio Campolo at the Yankee Stadium September 25.

He prefers to make his next American appearance in Chicago, if possible, because Nate Lewis, matchmaker, gave him a chance against Von Porat—a knockout which brought the youthful Georgian back to the top as championship timber.

MRS. MOODY IS WILLED $20,000

poor of St. Mary's parish, where Phelan was born, and another $50,000 for a park in Chinatown, where the church is located, was provided. Several California historical organizations benefited.

In addition to specific bequests, the senator willed the residue of the estate after 25 years to Noel Sullivan, nephew, and Alyce Murphy and Gladys Doyle, nieces.

Tennis Chief Declines Opinion on Status.

New York, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—The question of whether acceptance by Mrs. Helen Wills Moody of a bequest made "in appreciation of" her tennis efforts would endanger her amateur standing probably will be referred to the amateur rule committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, said Louis B. Dailey, president of the U. S. L. T. A.

"It's a poser," remarked President Dailey, declining to express an opinion.

The question is understood to be without precedent in tennis, but one tennis official suggested as a possible parallel the case of Bobby Jones, who was offered a house by appreciative citizens of Atlanta and declined to accept it.

A leading member of the amateur rule committee, which is headed by Holcombe Ward, of New York, indicated, however, that to compel Mrs. Moody to decline the bequest on pain of professionalizing herself would be "going too far."

In the rules of the International Lawn Tennis Federation, of which the U. S. L. T. A. is a member, the definition of an amateur contains the following:

"Any lawn tennis player is an amateur who * * * does not receive, or has not received, directly or indirectly, pecuniary advantage by the playing, teaching, demonstrating or pursuit of the game."

California Net Chief Sees no Violation.

San Francisco, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—Roscoe Maples, president of the California Tennis Association, said today he is unable to see, after a casual study and without precedents for guidance, how former Senator James D. Phelan's $20,000 gift to Helen Wills Moody "could possibly affect her amateur tennis standing."

Although it was his understanding the will gave as the reason for the gift "that she brought the tennis championship to California," Mr. Maples said, "after all it was just a gift from one Californian to another, proud of honor done the State," and an act of friendship.

"Senator Phelan," Maples said, "did fine work on behalf of children's playgrounds in San Francisco. He was interested in inspiring interest in tennis among the children. Mrs. Moody's fine example and help to this end always gratified him. I am not surprised that he has left her something in his will. It is characteristic of the man and couldn't be, it seems to me, construed as anything except an acknowledgement of his appreciation, a well-merited reward for unselfish service and a friendly act of a personal nature."

Pirates and Phillies Divide Double-Header

Pittsburgh, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—Pittsburgh and Philadelphia divided a double bill here today, the Quakers annexing the first, 7-5, and the Pirates taking the second in ten innings, 3-2.

Freddie Brickell, former Pirate, who made three hits, one a triple, and scored three runs, was the big factor in the Phil victory.

Comorosky's triple in the tenth inning of the second fray put the game in the bag for the home team.

Steve Swetonic, Pirate relief pitcher, took up the burden in each contest, substituting in the second when Spencer, who started the game, was injured as he crashed into Davis in trying to score in the fifth.

AMERICAN BOAT WINS.

Cards Slam Frankhouse To Down Braves, 8-4

St. Louis, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—The Cardinals made it three out of four over the Boston Braves by taking the fourth game here this afternoon, 8-4, as Jesse Haines worked well on the mound for the Cardinals, Chick Hafey hit his twenty-second home run and George Watkins, playing first base in the absence of Jim Bottomley, out with an injured hand, also drove for the circuit.

The Red Birds drove their former teammate, Fred Frankhouse, out of the box in the fourth inning, but not before he had permitted enough scores to take the blame for the loss.

M'LEAN BOWS IN DOUBLES PLAY

Special to The Washington Post.

CULVER, Ind., Aug. 15.—Jack McLean, Washington, D. C., and Henry Barclay, Baltimore, lost the final set of a postponed semifinal doubles match in the national boys' tennis championships on the Culver Military Academy courts here today.

When darkness halted play yesterday McLean-Barclay stood one set all with Jay Cohn, Santa Monica, and Jack Lynch, Taft, Calif., the latter winning the first set, 6—3, but the Eastern pair, rallying to take the second, 13—11. In the deciding set played early this morning McLean and Barclay never seemed to get underway, losing, 6—1.

Cohn, who will defend his national boys' singles title in the finals against Lynch tomorrow, had his flat forehand drive working to perfection, forcing the Eastern pair, so that he and Lynch could storm the net and smash an overhead or angle off a zipping volley for the placement.

Cohn-Lynch Beaten In Finals.

Culver, Ind., Aug. 15 (A.P.).—Wilmer Eines, Columbia, S. C., and Judge Beaver, Gainesville, Ga., won the national junior tennis doubles championship here this afternoon, defeating a pair of 17-year-old Santa Monica, Calif., boys, Billy Doeg and Larry Meyers, 6—3, 8—6, 6—4.

The boys' doubles championship went to Frankie Parker, of Milwaukee, and George Boynton, of Atlanta, who upset Jay Cohn, Santa Monica, Calif., and Jack Lynch, Taft, Calif., 6—2, 6—4.

As a result of semifinal play in the singles today, James Bobbitt, Pasadena, Calif., will oppose Hines tomorrow for the junior championship, and the boys' title will be defended by Jay Cohn, Santa Monica, Calif., against Jack Lynch, of Taft, Calif.

David Fox Is Victor; Readers Are Given a New Test.

THE Bureau of the Census scored its second victory within a week in The Post's "Spot the Ball" contests yesterday when the contribution of David G. Fox, of the 900 block Kennedy street northwest, an employe of the bureau, proved exactly correct.

Mr. Fox, in his third attempt to win the four choice box seats to games at Griffith Stadium, spotted the ball figuratively on its stitches, as indicated in the upper of the two pictures above, with the arrow indicating the location of the little white sphere.

Although the height of the ball in the picture was deceiving to many of the hundreds of Post readers who submitted selections, Mr. Fox allowed properly for its high trajectory. He was presented last night with four box seats to today's opener of the Washington-Detroit series.

To win, Mr. Fox was forced to spot the ball exactly, as the selections of three other contributors were the barest of a fraction of an inch removed from the correct spot. They were from F. E. Finnel, of 3730 Georgia avenue northwest; B. F. Crown, of 725 Thirteenth street northwest, and I. E. Rehlander, of 3621 Newark street northwest.

The lower of the two pictures above carries as its reward to the winner four box seats to Monday's Detroit-Washington game.

The ball, of course, has been eliminated from the picture by The Post's artists and it is the task of the readers to locate it. If it is not spotted correctly, the nearest selection wins.

The lower picture provides plenty of latitude for choices. The ball might logically be in many places. It looks like a steal of second base by Sam Rice, or it may be a hit, or a walk, or a force play. What do you think?

Merely clip the lower photograph. Mark an X where you believe the ball to be, affix your name and address and send it to The Post's "Spot the Ball" Editor so that it is received by him before 6 p. m. tomorrow when the contest will close. The winner will be announced in Sunday morning's Post.

Bootleg Pitcher Squares Accounts for Old Lorton University Against Cops

A BOOTLEGGER with a change of pace is the campus hero and the historic black and white colors of Old Lorton University are flying high this morning. The occasion for the celebration is a 13-6 victory scored by Lorton (District prison farm) over the District Police Department Nine.

If there is anything the boys at the country place like better than a stroll down Pennsylvania avenue these days it is a victory over the cops. Most of the boys have already seen the police have their innings, and effectively, and the annual game affords the guests of the District a means of retaliation.

And while the bootlegger was delivering the goods the Lorton summer colonists had the satisfaction of seeing the cop do the running with no other incentive than chasing a baseball. So effective was the punch of the home boys that three policemen who tried to fool the oldest Lorton inhabitants into thinking they were pitchers were escorted to the prison hose a mighty groggy trio.

Finney Kelly, of the Eighth Precinct, who should have known better, was the first victim. It is not known whether Finney had met any of the opposition personally before the game, but they greeted him like a pardon. Before Finney could be given the green light toward the bench the Lorton prides had stolen a 6-0 lead and the first inning wasn't over. Officer Cox tried to insert some discipline, and upon failing turned the task over to Officer Sine, of the Traffic Bureau. The latter fared well for three frames before being relieved by Officer Seger, of No. 10.

Word must have been passed around that Sager was a good fellow. He seemed to be getting by with murder. It might have been because the Cops tied the score in the seventh inning but at any rate Sager became extremely unpopular in the ninth. He used all the tricks known to the trade (pitching of course) without avail. Officer Wetherall, of Precinct Nine, finished the frame which netted seven runs.

In addition to the bootleg hurler, the boy at second base pulled some grand larceny again in robbing the Cops of hitting while a colored left fielder, who once made a grass widow of a popular make of auto, imitated Sam West to gain the hero roles.

If the police can muster nine men today they will play the Army Medicos on the Walter Reed Hospital diamond.

SARAZEN'S 67 TOPS $10,000 OPEN PLAY

Italian Breaks Par by Five Strokes in St. Paul Tourney.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 15 (A.P.).—Gene Sarazen, a great money player, with his eyes focused on another bag of gold, led a spectacular assault on par over the Keller County course today and snatched a one-shot margin in the big struggle for the $10,000 St. Paul open golf championship.

The stocky New York Italian professional, whose big clubs carried away the largest cash prize in golf's history at Agua Caliente, Mexico, last winter, whizzed around the championship course today with a brilliant 67—five lusty strokes under par, which not only netted him his scant advantage, but gave him a new competitive record for the course.

Farrell and Hackbarth Stroke Back.

One stroke behind him at the end of the quarter-way juncture of the 72-hole medal struggle were Johnny Farrell, of New York, like Sarazen, a former National open champion, and Otto Hackbarth, the veteran professional from Cincinnati, who made his first appearance in championship play in three years.

Three other well-known shotmakers scored 69's to land among the leaders. They were Johnny Goodman, the Omaha youth who upset Bobby Jones in the national amateur at Pebble Beach last year; Tony Manero, of White Plains, N. Y., and "Lighthorse Harry" Cooper, of Chicago. Manero muffed a 5-foot putt for a 68 on the final green.

Four others toured the 6,552-yard stretch in 70's—Horton Smith, of New York, one of the big favorites went out today with a great 33 and then slumped slightly to take a 37 on the way back; Charles Lacey, the young Briton from Clementsein, N. J., who scared the national open field during its second round; Harold McSpaden, a dark horse from Bethel, Kans., and Willard Hutchison, the lanky professional from Chicago.

Hagen, Armour, Mehlhorn Trail Leaders.

Four more of the big favorites failed to join the perfect 72's. They were Walter Hagen and Tommy Armour of Detroit; Bill Mehlhorn, of New York, and Ed Dudley, the big pro from Wilmington Del. Harrison (Jimmy) Johnston, of St. Paul, national amateur champion, experienced considerable trouble but ended his journey with a 74, two over par.

Sarazen's score was not only the most brilliant today but the steadiest. He collected five birdies and carded the rest of the holes with perfect golf, going out in 33 strokes and coming back in 34. He hit his shots well off the tee, his irons were true and his putts, while not sensational, were deadly.

His card was:

Par, out	4	4	5	3	4	3	5	4	4	—36
Sarazen, out	3	4	4	3	4	3	4	4	4	—33
Par, in	4	4	5	3	4	3	4	4	5	—36—72
Sarazen, in	4	4	4	3	4	3	4	3	4	—34—67

British Polo Team Here for Cup Play

Hubbell Blanks Reds; Terry Leads With Bat

Cincinnati, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—With Bill Terry, league-leading batsman, again showing the way, the New York Giants won the second game of the series from the Reds today by a 5-to-0 score. The victory enabled the Giants to gain a game on the second-place Brooklyn Robins and remain in a position of contendership for the pennant.

Terry figured in four of the five Giant runs with three hits in five times at bat, while Carl Hubbell allowed the Reds only four hits altogether. In the fourth inning, Terry inserted a double between two singles and brought the Giants their first two runs. He drove a home run over the distant left-field wall in the sixth to make it 3-0, and his single in the eighth aided in the scoring of the fourth Giant rally.

GALLANT FOX 4-5 CHOICE OVER WHICHONE TODAY

Racing Stars To Meet in Travers

Special to The Washington Post.

Saratoga Springs, Aug. 15.—A steady rain began at 9 o'clock tonight, which interfered with plans to keep the harrows working during the night and made it probable that the Travers will be run on a heavy course. Opinion is divided whether this will jeopardize the chances of either Whichone or Gallant Fox the more. Both are regarded capable of running creditably on a fast or slow track.

By GEORGE DALEY.

SARATOGA RACE TRACK, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 15 (N. Y.W.N.S.).—Five 3-year-old colts were named this morning for the sixty-first running of the Travers Stakes, at one mile and a quarter, tomorrow afternoon, but it will be a two-horse battle between the Belair Stud's Gallant Fox, champion of his age this year, and H. P. Whitney's Whichone, champion 2-year-old of 1929 and the Fox's greatest rival.

The course of the Saratoga Association has been the scene of many famous duels of the turf, but none of the few in more recent years has attracted more interest. Not even when Gallant Fox and Whichone met in the Belmont Stakes two months ago. During this month they talk and think of nothing but horses at Saratoga Springs, and for a week the talk has been of nothing but the meeting of these colts.

The beautiful course of the Saratoga Association in all probabilities will entertain the largest crowd in its history. Preparations have been made with this end in view as indicated by following the lead of Pimlico and running the steeplechase as the first race on the card so as to turn the overflow from the stand into the infield.

Gallant Fox Rules Favorite.

Gallant Fox rules favorite here this evening with followers of the sport who are discussing the race on the street corners and in the lobbies of the hotels. He is quoted at 4 to 5, with Whichone 6 to 5, while you can write your own ticket on Sun Falcon, Caruso and Jim Dandy. It is more than likely that only three horses will go to the post, for Caruso and Jim Dandy are also nominated for the Waterboy Handicap at one mile, which will precede the Travers on the card.

One reason why Gallant Fox rules favorite, though Whichone may be the choice at post time, is that the track was still heavy from the rain of the day before, and though Billy Clare worked the racing strip there was little promise of fast going for the big race.

Gallant Fox comes up to the race tomorrow the champion of his age, with successive victories in the Wood Stakes, the Preakness, the Kentucky Derby, the Belmont Stakes, the Dwyer and the Classic to his credit. He has done everything that has been asked of him, and done it well, winning on six different tracks under all sorts of conditions and handicaps. Since winning the Classic Stakes at Arlington Park Chicago, he has rested up from his arduous spring and early summer campaign and is fresh and good again, thought not a few of his well wishers would like to have seen him go to the post with a race under his belt.

Workouts Have Been Fast.

However, he has done everything asked of him in the way of work, for last Saturday he went a mile and a quarter in 2:07, and the same distance on Monday in 2:04 3-5, topping off his efforts with five furlongs in 1:00 2-5 yesterday. Earl Sande will be in the saddle tomorrow.

It was generally agreed that Whichone did not run his race in the Belmont Stakes two months ago, and his owner and trainer expected the son of Chicle and Flying Witch to reverse the placings on the Dwyer Stakes, at Aqueduct, but a quarter crack developed on the eve of that race. Now Whichone comes back to the races better than ever.

In the last ten days he just galloped to victory in three Stakes, the Saranac Handicap, at 1 mile; the Whitney Stakes, at 1¼ miles, and the Miller Stakes, at 1 3-16 miles. He wound up his training with a half mile in :49 this morning.

From all outward appearances, Whchone's feet have healed beyond expectations, but they still receive every possible care and attention. More than that, he will run in bar plates, which, if the track remains heavy or is cuppy, will place him at somewhat of a disadvantage. However, this is the luck of racing, and horses can not have tracks made to order for them.

Sonny Workman, first-string jockey of Mr. Whitney's stable, in all probability will have the mount on Whichone, although there was some talk this afternoon of Pony McAtee being in the saddle. It had been the intention to ride McAtee in the Dwyer had Whichone gone to the post, and Tom Healey, trainer of Whichone, and Louis Beard, the racing manager, will decide definitely tomorrow afternoon.

Olmsted Nine Will Tackle O'Briens

Start Senior Play-Off; Insect Rivals in 2d Contest.

District, County Nines in Crucial Battles; Juniors Play.

TWO championship play-off games and eleven other contests, the majority of which have a bearing on title races, are offered sandlot baseball fans by the Capital City League tomorrow. The two struggles which involve section winners will bring the Olmsted Grill and C. A. O'Brien Nines into action in the senior class on the North Ellipse field at 3 o'clock, while the Georgetown Insects and Wonder Boys are booked to fight it out on diamond No. 4 at 11 o'clock.

Three of the unlimited sections will present games with an important bearing on the disposition of the titles. In the District section, the Army Medicos travel to Congress Heights for a tussle with the Anacostia Eagles, which will virtually mean elimination to the loser.

The St. Joe Club, battling to stay in the race, will entertain the Foxall Nine on the Plaza while the Woodmen and Burroughs are due to clash on diamond No. 4 of the Monument grounds. The leading Columbia Heights Team is not scheduled for a league game.

Montgomery Race Close.

Out in Montgomery County, the section race there may or may not be settled. The principals in the pennant battle are playing on different fields, the Takoma Tigers facing the Kensington Firemen on the Wheaton diamond while the Chevy Chase Nine plays at Rockville. A loss for either the Tigers or Chevy Chase while the rival club wins will end the race. If both clubs win or both lose a play-off will be necessary.

In Prince Georges County the Mount Rainier Club, setting the pace gets a forfeit from Berwyn but the Dixie Pigs will entertain the Bowie Club on the Seat Pleasant field at 3 o'clock while Brentwood visits Hyattsville. The Dixie Pigs, on the trail of Mount Rainier, will be guarding against an upset.

Bethesda Plays Lionels.

The junior class also presents an outstanding contest. The Bethesda and Lionel nines are booked to clash on the west Ellipse at 3 o'clock in a battle which is likely to settle the second series. Both of these rivals have earlier games, the Lionels meeting the Clifton Barbers on the west Ellipse at 12:30 o'clock and the Bethesda team facing the Y Flashes on diamond No. 7 at the same hour.

Today's contests will conclude the Peewee series, which championship has been annexed by the Lionels. The schedule will bring two games: Colony Theater vs. Lionels and Joe Cronins vs. St. Paul's.

NOLANS PLAY POHANKA.

The Nolan Motor Co. Nine will meet the Pohanka Motor Co. Team on the North Ellipse today at 3 o'clock and will face the Southern A. C. tomorrow at 1 o'clock on diamond No. 9.

STANLEY-DEMOLAY PLAY.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

—Saratoga Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Aug. 15.—The long-looked-for battle, begun as far back as 1929, and renewed at Belmont Park last June in the Belmont Stakes, flares again tomorrow in the Old Travers—oldest stake in the United States, begun before the Civil War—in which the test will be final as between the two leading 3-year-olds, GALLANT FOX and WHICHONE. This race will draw the largest crowd of the season, unless the Hopeful on the last day tops it.

Both colts are in the best condition. WHICHONE has three winning races behind him since the meeting started here. GALLANT FOX is unbeaten this year, having won consecutively the Wood Memorial, the Preakness, the Kentucky Derby, the Belmont Stakes and the Classic, the last-named stake being at Arlington Park.

The Travers should decide the 3-year-old championship beyond question, or show if WHICHONE is a better horse than the Woodward star. It is understood Gov. Roosevelt will be at the beautiful Saratoga course, and it will be Travers and Governor's day combined.

Five 3-year-olds have been named for the Travers, but interest, of course, is only centered in the two great colts mentioned. The others are CARUSO, JIM DANDY and SUN FALCON.

GALLANT FOX will rule the choice on his record, but WHICHONE will by no means be without followers. Many horsemen rate GALLANT FOX the greatest since Man o' War. He is the more consistent. His old pilot, Sande, will ride him. Workman will ride the Whitney hope.

The beautifully bred WHICHONE, while soundly beaten by GALLANT FOX in the Belmont, is a better horse now than he was then. He has trained in sensational style, has ran the same way, and the stable connections have much more confidence in him than in the Belmont Stakes.

Off his 2-year-old races, the son of Chicle—Flying Witch, will be hardest kind of a horse to down tomorrow afternoon. His victory Tuesday in the Miller Stakes was a most impressive effort. The manner in which he trimmed his field, coupled with a swiftly run race, indicates he is in the peak of his form.

GALLANT FOX, by right of his extraordinary record and his winning race over WHICHONE, is picked to win. The Belair star is a real distance runner and probably the best 3-year-old seen in the last ten years. There will be no excuses on the score of condition. His final workout was impressive, 5 furlongs in 1:00 2-5, and a mile and a quarter in 2:05 2-5, going very easily all the way. He will be a hard horse to whip.

WHICHONE has been given a long careful prep and now appears in the height of his form. Never better, the Whitney ace promises to go in better shape than before this year. Workman is riding in great form. WHICHONE'S Miller victory speaks for his fitness. WHICHONE was reported to have been troubled with a quarter crack early in the season. Maj. Beard, in charge of the Whitney breeding farms, issued a statement Thursday and said that the horse was once more in sound condition.

GALLANT FOX will be favorite and expected to run the race of his career today to lead the victor of the Futurity to the wire for the winning portion of the $30,000 purse.

W. R. Coe's CARUSO seems superior to SUN FALCON for the third honors. The last-named colt has been a frequent winner this season, but hardly measures up to WHICHONE and GALLANT FOX. Jim Dandy appears outclassed.

The Spinaway Stakes of $10,000 added is the secondary attraction on this exceptional card. Twenty-two fillies of the highest class will battle it out for the glory of winning the thirty-ninth renewal of this famous filly stake.

PANASETTE, a galloping winner at the meeting, is the one most fancied of this large field. A rapid beginner, the daughter of Whiskbroom II has the foot to jump into the lead at the start and the quality to stick it out for the 6-furlong journey. She is easily one of the foremost 2-year-old fillies of the year.

George D. Widener's SOVIETTA promises to make the most trouble for the Whitney miss. This filly was off badly in her recent start, and under the conditions her race back of PANASETTE must be thrown out. She seems the one to beat. Third money may go to AMERISK, another good one. But for being such a sluggish beginner the Middleburg filly would be a stronger contender.

FIRST RACE—The Steeplechase, usually run as the second race, will be the opening event of the day to allow the crowd to go to the infield after the race.

Mrs. Payne Whitney's JOLLY ROGER, which holds a warm spot in the hearts of all cross-country followers, is the choice in the Beverwyck Steeplechase Handicap, at about two miles. BANGLE figures to prove a worthy rival despite his crushing impost of 170 pounds. BEELZEBUB looks third best.

SECOND RACE—GUN ROYAL, off recent good form, shapes up far superior to the large field in the second sprint affair. He has VOLTEAR and HACKY H. to fear.

FOURTH RACE—The Waterbury Handicap draws a high-class field of older handicap performers. GOLD BROOK, which displayed an improved race last week, is given the call over BOBASHELA, a steady-going fellow from the West. The last-named horse has trained well and is fit and good. FOLKING and DR. FREELAND may fight it out for the show money.

SIXTH RACE—RIP VAN WINKLE, a highly regarded 2-year-old, is selected to capture the closing event, at five and a half furlongs. COMMUTER and SIR JOHN ALDEN are the contenders.

The track should be in good condition. Harrows were worked all night Friday. The two leading horses in the Travers carry equal weights.

SEMIFINALS DUE TODAY AT RYE

Van Ryn, Mangin, Sutter and Bell Will Battle.

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 15 (A.P.).—With rain forcing the postponement of matches today, tennis fans will receive a bargain bill tomorrow, when all of the semifinals in the Eastern grass court championships are played at the Westchester Country Club.

Play in the men's singles will bring together John Van Ryn, East Orange, N. J., and Gregory Mangin, of Newark, in one-half of the draw with Clifford Sutter, intercollegiate champion from New Orleans and Berkeley Bell, Austin, Tex., meeting in the other half.

Women's singles scheduled are: Miss Marjorie Gladman, Santa Monica, Calif., vs. Miss Clara Zinke, Cincinnati, and Miss Helen Marlowe, Los Angeles, vs. Baroness Giacomo Levi, Rome, Italy.

Van Ryn and Mangin In Doubles.

The men's doubles will find H. G. H. Lee and S. J. Perry, the English combination, paired again Van Ryn and Mangin, and Keith Gledhill, Santa Barbara, Calif., and Ellsworth Vines, Pasadena, Calif., matching strokes with Bell and his Baltimore partner, Eddie Jacobs.

The women's doubles on the card are Miss Edith Cross, San Francisco, and Miss Mianne Palfrey, Brookline, Mass., vs. Miss Virginia Hillearg, Philadelphia, and Miss Dorothy Andrus, Stamford, Conn.; Miss Marjorie Gladman, Santa Monica, Calif., and Miss Josephine Cruickshank, Santa Ana, Calif., vs. Miss Virginia Rice, Boston, and Miss Zinke.

ALEXANDRIA LEGION TEAM OUT OF TITLE SERIES

Gastonia Nine 8th Region Champ

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Aug. 15.—By virtue of a 13-to-8 victory over the Alexandria, Va., Legion team here this afternoon, the Gastonia Juniors will represent the Eighth region of the league, comprising the States of North and South Carolina, Virginia and Tennessee, at the Charlottesville, Va., series next week for the championship of the Eastern half of the United States. The little world series will be held the week following at Memphis, Tenn.

Alexandria, starting off with a two-run lead in the first inning, held up well during the first half of the game but Pitcher Hudson blew up in the seventh inning and was replaced by Nicholson. Phillips hurled the entire game for Gastonia.

Davis' Catch Turning Point Of Contest.

Davis, left fielder for Gastonia, made the most beautiful play of the afternoon, climbing several feet up a steep outfield bank to grab a high one lifted by an Alexandria batter. This play marked the turning point of the game. C. Y. Bazard is manager of the Gastonia team, each member of which was presented with a medal by C. M. Wilson, of the national headquarters of the American Legion, who was in charge of the series here. Phillips granted 14 hits; Hudson, 13.

New York Plans Wild Greeting for Sir Thomas

New York, Aug. 15 (A.P.). — Sir Thomas Lipton, British merchant and yachtsman, arrives tomorrow for his fifth attempt to lift the America's Cup, of which he has said, "I would swap all the trophies I have for that mug the Americans hold."

It is Sir Thomas' sixty-third voyage to America—he's been a regular caller ever since 1867—but tomorrow, for the first time, he is to be given the sort of reception that New York accords distinguished guests, the crowned and uncrowned heroes of the day.

At quarantine the titled merchant will be transferred from the Leviathan to the decorated city tug Macon, on which more than 100 prominent men have been invited to act as reception committee. After the ride up the bay among the tooting harbor craft he will be taken up Broadway under police escort.

Though the veteran yachtsman comes as a foreign invader intent on carrying away one of America's proudest trophies, he comes also as an old friend and frequent visitor, and he will be received as an honored guest.

BROWN AND HUAT MATCHED

New York, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—Jeff Dixon, Paris and London boxing promoter, announced today the signing of Al Brown, generally recognized as the bantamweight champion, to box Eugene Huat, French and European champion, in a fifteen-round bout in Paris October 4. Brown will sail for Paris September 6.

POLO MATCH DELAYED.

New York, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—Because of rainy weather and the soaked condition of playing fields, the postponement was announced today of the match between the four Ashton brothers of Australia and the United States Army Team, scheduled tomorrow at Meadowbrook. The match probably will be played next week.

Alexandria Golfers Play At Fredericksburg Today

ALEXANDRIA, Aug. 15. — Alexandria's twelve-man golf team, representing the Belle Haven Golf and Country Club, travels to Fredericksburg Saturday via automobiles for a return golf match with the Mannsfield Hall Golf and Country Club Team. The Fredericksburgers defeated the Alexandrians here last Saturday, 31½ to 21½. Several new players will be seen with the Alexandrians. It is understood all places but two have been filled.

"Doc" Dreifus and Art Ludlow, two Alexandria ball players, are performing with the Culpeper Athletic Club in week-day baseball competition.

Mount Rainier, leaders in the Prince Georges County Baseball League in Maryland, will be entertained by the St. Mary's Celtics Baseball Team Sunday afternoon at Baggett's Stadium at 3 o'clock. Bill Rapp, former baseball star with Georgetown University, is the latest addition to the Celtics. He will play third base for the Virginians Sunday.

The annual intraclub regatta of the Old Dominion Boat Club will be staged on the 1-mile straightaway course of the Potomac River Saturday at 2 o'clock.

Twelve events will feature in this regatta. The Bachelor-Benedict race between two eight-oared crews of representative members is attracting attention. The winning crew in this race will oppose the junior eight-oared combination in the classic of the day. A swimming race will be an added attraction if weather permits.

The O. D. oarsman scoring the greatest number of points will have his name engraved on the plaque presented by Capt. J. Sid Douglas as the club champion for 1930. Parke Bell won the honors last year.

The Del Ray Athletic Club Baseball Team will mix with the St. Martin's A. C., of Washington, Sunday on Edward Duncan Field. Finney Gardiner will pitch for the Del Rayans. Raymond Peverill, popular local impire, has signed a contract to officiate in all of the Del Ray games for the remainder of the campaign.

G. W. Grid Squad to Train At Y Camp Near Annapolis

THAT the George Washington University Football Team will use as its training site Camp Letts, summer camp of the Y. M. C. A., 8 miles outside of Annapolis on the Rhode River, was learned from reliable sources last night.

The camp has been the Y's summer camp for boys for the last few years and has accommodations for 280 youths. It is located directly on the river, has ample ground for several gridirons and offers excellent facilities for training quarters.

Although no word was forthcoming as to the exact manner in which the camp was chosen by Colonial officials, the reports of two George Washington football players who acted as councilors there during the past season are thought to have made a favorable impression with those who were looking for a place for the Colonials to train.

At present it is thought that about 50 players will be taken to camp by the Colonials' coaching staff, which will start work at Camp Letts on September 8. The squad will train there for two weeks before returning to the city for the opening of school on September 24.

The establishment of a training camp for George Washington's 1930 eleven, announced exclusively in The Post a month ago, marks the first time that the Buff and Blue Eleven has ever gone out of the city to train. The necessity of a camp was felt, however, when it was realized that the 1930 G. W. team would be faced with prominent opponents, including such schools as Navy, South Dakota, Rutgers and Tulsa.

REPAIR SHOP WINS.

The District Repair Shop Nine, champion of the Departmental League, defeated the Columbia Heights Team, leading the District section of the Capital City League, yesterday, 4 to 3. The pitching of E. Wesley and the fielding of Buscher were the features. The Repairmen were bolstered by Tots Long and Handsome Fitzgerald, two veteran sandlot stars, who will play with the club next season. The Repairmen want games with teams having fields. Call National 6000, branch 488, before 10:30 a. m.

BALSTON VS. LEESBURG.

The Balston baseball team, which has been reorganized, will entertain the Leesburg team on the Balston field tomorrow at 3 o'clock. Balston players will report at 2 o'clock.

putter, he managed to stagger over the first nine holes in par and then burned up the course with 32, 4 under par, on the way back.

Hackbarth, the first man to finish his eighteen-hole round, went out in 35, 1 under par, and came home in 33. An eagle on the 510-yard twelfth where he sank a 75-yard pitch shot, was the high shot on his card.

Because of today's low scores, indications were that 154 strokes would be necessary to crowd into the final two rounds of play. Another eighteen-hole round will be played tomorrow, after which all but the low 64 and ties will be scratched for the final 36-hole drive Sunday.

3 NET TITLES IN REACH OF CONSIDINE

Reaches Men's Finals and Semifinals in Both Doubles.

Special to The Washington Post.

MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK, Md., Aug. 15.—Bob Considine, District of Columbia champion, advanced to the finals of the Western Maryland championship yesterday by virtue of a straight set victory over Edgar Alcorn, of the University of Pittsburgh, 6—2, 6—2, 6—2. Tomorrow he meets John O'Loughlin, young Pittsburgh luminary, who reached the final round after a terrific encounter with Bill Ramsay, of Lafayette.

O'Loughlin, with the first two sets to his credit, saw Ramsay even the match and lead 1—0 in the fifth. The final scores were 6—2, 6—2, 3—6, 2—6, 6—2.

Considine had matters pretty much his own way in the other semifinals match. Alcorn seemed nervous from start to finish.

Three D. C. Women Gain Semifinals.

Three Washington netwomen gained the semifinal brackets in the women's singles. Mrs. Ruth Martinez defeated Helen Carson, 6—3, 4—6, 6—0, in the feature match of the day; Marywill Wakeford, defending champion, put out Mrs. Margaret Graham, 6—2, 6—4, in an all-District tussle, while Frances Walker reached the semifinals by walking over Miriam Sullivan, of Pittsburgh, 6—3, 6—0. Margaret Carspreken, of Morgantown, whom many see as the tournament winner, put out Evelyn Claybrook, 6—0, 6—1, after Miss Claybrook had accounted for a Washingtonian, Betty Cochran, to the tune of 5—7, 6—3, 6—2.

Considine and Lieut. S. K. Robinson reached the semifinals of the men's doubles by a quick victory over Clardy and Shield, 6—3, 6—2. Considine and Frances Walker also achieved the semifinals in the mixed doubles when they defeated Betty Cochran and Paul Sullivan, 6—1, 6—1.

TIGERS OPEN SERIES WITH NATS TODAY

"Runs Batted In," shows wherein the Nats have faltered. Only Joe Cronin has come up to the mark in this respect, his 150 hits having propelled 94 mates across the plate. Heinie Manush runs second, having driven home 71, with the others trailing far behind.

Although he led the league much of the time earlier in the season and always has been well up among the elite of the league's batters, Rice, with his mark of .362, has driven home but 52 runs with Bluege, despite a present stick-mark of .292, credited with knocking 59 runs over the plate. Among the other regulars, Judge's figures in this respect are 60; and Myer's and West's 47 each. By comparison, Dave Harris, used mostly as a pinch hitter, has driven 45 mates past the check-in station despite the fact that he is credited with but 60 hits.

It was this failure to hit with men on bases which caused the last two trips through the West to be such disastrous ones and which practically killed the Nats' pennant chances.

Team Improved In Home Stand.

The Johnsons have done much better since returning home, the result being six victories in eight games and they are determined to carry on at close to this rate of speed during the remainder of this home stay, realizing that it is necessary that they do so if they are to beat out the Yanks for the runner-up berth or to be in a position to take advantage of either the needed miracle or train-wreck involving the leaders mentioned above.

The Tigers are here for four single games, weather permitting, with two veteran pitchers likely to oppose each other this afternoon. Pilot Johnson plans to call on "Sad Sam" Jones, while it is George Uhle's turn to toil for the Bengals. The home team will be seeking its sixth straight.

Pitcher Fred Marberry is scheduled to have the plaster cast removed from his broken right wrist this morning and to begin immediately the slow task of getting his salary wing back into pitching condition. He believes that he can do this within ten days or two weeks.

Trainer Mike Martin reported last night that "Fats" Fothergill's drive, which almost tore off Pitcher Carl Fischer's left shin in Thursday's game and which put the young southpaw temporarily out of action, did nothing more than badly bruise Carl and that he will be ready any time he is needed.

BALTIMORE'S LEGION NINE WINNER

Defeats Uniontown, 4-2, in Final Fray; Spenglers Score.

Special to The Washington Post.

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Aug. 15.—The Baltimore Team defeated the Uniontown Team representatives by a score of 4-2 in Region No. 10, of the American Legion junior championship series.

Baltimore will now play the Gastonia (N.-C.) Team at Charlottesville, Va., for the right to represent the Eastern section in the little world series at Memphis, Tenn.

Talley, the Negro youth who defeated the Spengler Post, of Washington, was a hero in defeat today. His wildness filled the bases and forced over a run and a Baltimore player came through with a triple that scored all of Baltimore's runs in the first inning. Talley pitched sensationally thereafter.

Report of Hauser Bid By Chisox Unfounded

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 15.—According to George Weiss, business manager of the Baltimore Internationals, there is no basis for the report that the Chicago White Sox have made an offer of $75,000 for First Baseman Joe Hauser, former Philadelphia American player.

"We not only have received no offer of this amount for Hauser from the Chicago Americans, but have not received any offer from any big league club for him," Weiss declared, adding, however, that several major league scouts have been here looking at the player, who has poled out 54 homers this season—only six behind Babe Ruth's all-time mark of 60.

The Chicago Club also denies having made any proposition to the Orioles. "We haven't even mentioned the subject to Baltimore and no such deal has been contemplated—there is nothing to it," Secretary Harry Grabiner, of the Chisox, today announced in Chicago.

LOSSES REGAINED AS SHORTS COVER

U. S. Steel Gains 5⅝ Points While Average Rise in 90 Stocks Is 4.3.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY UP

New York, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—The stock market played the old game of running the shorts to cover today and played it hard.

In a helter-skelter rush to protect profits, the bears bid up their trading favorites 3 to 12 points and more during a tumultuous last half hour that was reminiscent of other days. Sales in the final 50 minutes were nearly 850,000 shares, or about 250,000 more than for the two forenoon hours.

The professional character of the movement was apparent. With the exception of the break in the drought, news was scarce, and the market plodded wearily along until about 2:30 o'clock without paying much attention to the weather. Bullish feelers in the tobacco stocks spread to the volatile chemicals and soon trading became a scramble to buy the limited floating supplies of many important shares.

The large bear interest had been well advertised. Since early in the week Wall street had heard that speculators for the decline, both professional and amateur, were short as much as 5,000,000 shares, and by yesterday it was reported that some of the bull operators were planning a coup. When the turning point came there was not enough stock to go around and prices mounted accordingly.

Grains Show Better Tone.

Grains showed a better tone. Wheat closed a cent and a half higher, although under the best, on a bullish Canadian crop estimate and reports of Russian buying in the dominion market. Bullish private crop estimates, unfavorable Illinois advices and a better cash market helped corn, which improved 2¾ to 3⅜. Cotton sold off sharply into new lows for the season, but covering stopped the break and the market closed at net losses of only 2 to 13 points.

Stocks were irregular in the earlier hours. There was further selling of the coppers and miscellaneous shares, including Republic Steel, Shell Union Oil, Columbia Graphophone, International Nickel and Caterpillar Tractor, all of which made new 1930 minimums on small declines. Warner Bros. Pictures sagged 3 points on the new financing, while a few rails and some of the other amusements were heavy.

The general dullness of the market discouraged very strenuous short selling, however, and when the tone began to improve around midday there was moderate covering which gradually increased in volume until the big squeeze of the final dealings. Several strong stocks closed 2 or 3 points under the top on quick profit-taking, but in general the last sales were at the day's best figures.

Monday's Loss Recovered.

The average gain made by 90 stocks was 4.3 points, slightly larger than Monday's loss, part of which had already been recovered. The utilities, harboring an extensive short interest, rallied 5.2 and the industrials 4.7. Covering in the rails was not so insistent and the group's advance was just above a point.

U. S. Steel made the spectacular climb of 7⅜ points, although its net improvement was reduced to 5⅛. American Can up 9¾, closed 7½ higher. American Telephone soared 5⅞ and held its rise.

There were rallies of 6 to 8 net in Allied Chemical, Air Reduction, American Tobacco, Auburn Auto, Eastman Kodak, Vanadium and Westinghouse Electric. Sears Roebuck, Standard of New Jersey, Bethlehem Steel, Atchison, Rock Island, Southern Railway, Radio, Consolidated Gas, North American and many others gained 2 to 3. Delaware & Hudson and Du Pont 5 and General Electric, Houston Oil and Johns-Manville 3 to 4. American Machine & Foundry (old) was the high flier, soaring 30 points. J. I. Case was up 12.

Foreign exchanges tended lower, although sterling and the French franc were firm. The peseta made another new low.

INVESTMENT ISSUES SEND BONDS HIGHER

Rail Sales Again Lively as Utility and Industrial Indices Advance.

C. & O. 4½S AT 1930 TOP

New York, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—A strong demand for investment issues carried the bond market into new high ground today for the second time this week.

Trading in railroad issues, which has at times been the only bright spot in an otherwise dull market, was brisk, and buyers were forced to offer good premiums over the previous figure to complete their purchases. Many issues which have been dormant for weeks at a time appeared in the trading, with gains of one or two points. Most of the legal issues considered in the prime investment class held firm and it was the so-called second grade group, whose advance carried the group up 0.3 of a point in the averages to the highest figure since 1928.

The averages showed an advance also by industrials and utilities, and the market for 30 bonds stood at 100.9, a gain of 0.2 of a point for the day. As on Thursday, there was an outbreak of spirited bidding during the final hour for carrier obligations. The list closed irregularly higher with the volume of sales slightly below yesterday.

Easy Credit Continues.

The late rally of shares, the heavy oversubscription of the Treasury's current bill offering, and the maintenance of the easy price of credit contributed to the improvement.

A large inquiry developed for a wide list of carrier obligations. Such standard issues as Pennsylvania debenture 4½s, St. Louis, San Francisco 4½s, and Rock Island 4s, legal for savings banks, were firm and active. Atchison obligations were in demand and the general 4s advanced ½ point to a new peak. New highs also were reached by Chesapeake & Ohio refunding 4½s, Chicago Union Station 4½s, Lehigh Valley 4½s and general 4s, Missouri, Kansas & Texas 4s, Soo Line 6½s, New York Central debenture 4s, Warren 3½s which soared 2¼ points, and Pennsylvania, Ohio & Detroit 4½s.

Advances of utilities were in a thin market, and more active issues such as American Telephone 5s, American Water Works 5s, Consolidated Gas 5½s, Detroit Edison 5s, and Utah Light & Traction 5s worked a shade lower.

American Smelting at Top.

The American Smelting 5s was among the high grade industrials to make a new high. White Sewing Machine 6s sagged further to a new low, with a loss of 3 points.

Stock privilege issues moved uncertainly through the day but closed firm in sympathy with the rally in equity issues. Transcontinental Oil warrant 6½s and Warner Brothers 6s, rallied, the former establishing a new year's peak. U. S. Governments were dull and steady. Foreign bonds were narrowly traded. Turnover was small.

A new offering for tomorrow is a $7,000,000 4 per cent issue of the City of Chicago, priced to yield about 3½ per cent.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—Authoritative reports of big damage suffered by the corn crop since the Government's last estimate gave corn values a lively whirl upward today. A leading unofficial expert announced the eleven principal corn-growing States showed a total of 1,419,000,000 bushels over and above the August U. S. Government forecast. Trade both in corn and wheat developed greatly increased activity and strength as a result. Wheat at one future deliveries jumping almost 5 cents a bushel from an early low level today, and No. 2 cash corn, the ordinary contract grade, soaring 5 cents above.

Closing quotations on corn were nervous, 2¾@3½ cents higher than yesterday's finish. Wheat unsettled, 1¾@1¼ cents up, oats 1@1¼ cents advanced and provisions showing 15@25 cents gain.

According to the unofficial report which started corn and wheat values leaping upward today, the Government's first August corn crop of but 1,419,166,000 bushels, compared with the Government estimate of 1,392,000,000 bushels. Furthermore, continued additional deterioration was suggested where the drought remained unbroken. The eleven States referred to are Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas. The condition of corn in these States was figured as ranging from 32 per cent to 65 per cent of normal, with Kansas the lowest and Minnesota the highest.

Topmost prices of the day both for corn and wheat were reached just before the close and were strongly associated with quotations current for a while after the opening, when rains in parts of the Ohio Valley and in Kansas led to an outburst of selling from traders who professed belief that crops would be helped to a material extent. Later, however, opinions were that the rains in the sections named came too late to be of much use, so far as crops was concerned. Meanwhile, increasing evidence was noted of widespread failure of ears to form on stalks and there were reports also that the lower hanging crop, heretofore withstanding drought and heat, was suffering serious damage. Especially disappointing because the soy bean acreage this season had been increased greatly and was dependent upon more than usual as a substitute for corn and other feed.

Wheat prices received part of their upward momentum from less favorable Canadian wheat crop advices, today's reports indicating a lowering of previous estimates of yields. The North American wheat export situation was regarded also as healthier. Oats offerings were light.

Provisions rose with hogs and grain, and as a result of correct belief that the warehouse stocks to be shown at the close would show decided curtailment of Chicago stocks of lard.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—September, 88¾c, 91½c; December, 94¼@95c, 99½c; March, 99¾c, 1.03⅝c; May, 1.02¾@1.06⅛c. Corn—September, 97 1.01½; December, 92, 1.00; March, 94½, 1.01¾; May, 98½, 1.01¼.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

HIDING SERIOUS DESEASE.

ONE reason for the prevalence of contagious disease is the fact that so many people are poor neighbors and bad citizens. This is a harsh, cruel statement. Therefore the facts on which it is based should be hurried forth.

The United States Public Health Service is trying to establish what they call a morbidity registration area similar to the registration areas for birth and deaths. They propose to enter into this morbidity registration area any State in which 75 per cent or more of the cases of six preventable diseases are reported to the local health departments.

In a sense, being in the registration area is a guarantee by the U. S. Public Health Service of the kind of protection against contagion the people of a State are getting. It is a sort of mark of honor which outsiders may know of and residents may boast of. Illinois made application for entrance to this to-be-established area. Investigators were sent into the State to ascertain the facts. They made house to house calls on one-tenth of the households, ascertained the facts in them, and from those data estimated conditions.

The diseases chosen for test were: Diphtheria, infantile paralysis, scarlet fever, smallpox, typhoid fever and tuberculosis. Diseases such as measles, whooping cough, chickenpox and mumps were not on the list because it was assumed that parents are careless about them and will be for some time.

Chicago came out exceedingly well. It was a little low on tuberculosis but, taken as a whole, that city was well above the deadline. Cook County, outside Chicago; Evanston and a few other cities, made a poor showing. The people of that county get little protection by the Government from bad neighbors.

Only 26 of the 102 counties in the State were above the deadlines. About two-thirds of the diphtheria, typhoid fever, smallpox and scarlet fever was reported. About one-third the cases of these diseases are never reported, even though they are known to be such by the families and physicians. Ought not the friends and neighbors also to know? Is less than that fair or honorable? About one-half the consumption is reported.

Only one-third the cases of infantile paralysis are reported. Between now and October a good many children will have infantile paralysis. It is well for the people to know how much of this disease results from hiding cases.

RECURRING KIDNEY STONES.

A reader writes: Please tell me what you think of this case. A young lady in her twenties has a large stone taken out of her kidney. A few weeks after she came home X-rays showed one in the other kidney (at the time the first stone was taken out none showed in the other kidney). In a few months she had the second stone removed and after she was home a few weeks another stone formed in the first kidney and she has to have it taken out. Do you think when she has this one taken out another will form in the second kidney again? She has been on a diet and drinking spring water, but it doesn't seem to do any good. She has had these three inside of ten months.

REPLY.

I think she is in a pretty bad way. This can not go on indefinately. Have these stones been analyzed? A diet to prevent kidney stones should be based on analyses of stones removed or, failing that, repeated analyses of urine. The diet which prevents one type of stone might promote another type.

THERE IS NO DANGER.

S. writes:

1. Is there any danger that a person might get cancer from taking care of a cancer patient?
2. Is cancer contagious?
3. What precautions should a person take, in caring for a person with cancer of the bladder, not to catch the disease nor to give it to others?

REPLY.

1. No.
2. No.
3. Follow the rules of cleanliness. No special procedures are necessary.

DIAL FLASHES

Because of failure of technical apparatus to function satisfactorily in last-minute tests, the attempted broadcast of a conversation between a deep-sea diver and airplane passengers, which was scheduled for yesterday afternoon, was canceled by the National Broadcasting Co.

Two of the leading women tennis players of the world, Sarah Palfrey, of the United States, and Betty Nuthall, of England, will be introduced to a radio audience this afternoon during Ted Husing's "Sportlants" (WMAL, 5:15 p. m.)

Frank Russell, vice president of the NBC in charge of the Washington office, recently underwent an operation for appendicitis. A few hours before he was rushed to the hospital he was playing golf with Harry Butcher, in charge of the CBS office here.

Another of those persons who are unable to tear themselves away from their professions long enough to have a real vacation is B. A. Rolfe, orchestra leader. He spent a large part of his time at Saratoga Springs listening to an orchestra directed by Vincent Lopez.

Station WLW, Cincinnati, has completed arrangements with Capt. William S. Brock whereby a running account of the national air races, starting in Los Angeles the first favorable day after August 23, will be broadcast from his plane, which is entered in the race.

Robert Brown, WLW announcer, will accompany Brock. Stations along the route will pick up the signals from the plane and will rebroadcast them, being the first time such a race has ever been described.

The women's air derby from Los Angeles to Chicago will be started tomorrow afternoon by a gun fired 2,000 miles away in the studios of WBBM, Chicago, and carried over the CBS network to Long Beach, Calif., where it will be heard through loud speakers on the flying field.

A forerunner of the football season is the announcement that three of the country's best known football coaches, Knute Rockne, Glenn Warner and Tad Jones, will pick the probable winners of the important football games this season every Friday evening at 9:30 o'clock over WMAL. These experts will prophesy the results and probable scores each week. The program starts September 5.

Dare Interprets the Mode

A convertible fall ensemble that fills every possible need! (Dahray designs.)

Paris, August 15.

THEY have to be planned, of course, because just haphazardly one can never put two and two together and make seven or eight.

I guess I'd better tell you what I am talking about! Of course, today's illustration should give you an idea, but then how are you to know that a crepe de chine dress in a smart and tiny print, a woolen coat lined in the same printed material, and an extra little jacket and overskirt can be made to mean your entire fall wardrobe?

Scarcely a smart model in the Haute Couture collections these days but has its this or that or the other thing which gives the ensemble a different air entirely when it is removed. A cunning shoulder cape is taken off of the shoulders and tied around the waist. A dress will have a coat, and another short little jacket for the days when her coat doesn't suit her fancy. An afternoon dress will have a couple of colors delicately printed in it, then a reversible jacket in one of these colors, lined in the second color, and the dress will be worn one time with one jacket and another time with the other.

And what's more, all of the combinations are worn with the same accessories, and all of them are chic. It takes just the original planning it out and no further thought once it is executed than that of thinking how smart you look in it.

• • • •

Four garments, fifteen ensembles! That's just exactly what next week's leaflet tells you how to make! And every one of the ensembles is complete in itself and as smart as ever it can be, no fooling. Today's illustration will give you somewhat of an idea about it—and when you send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet telling you how to make the separate pieces that make so many ensembles, you will be in on the know like the rest of us.

• • • •

When you have quite decided that you are neither beautiful nor charming—don't eat worms—develop your sense of humor.

Do it consciously, but not seriously, and don't be unkind for the sake of wit. Biting satire is tolerated only in genius; even then it is never very clever.

Cultivate a nice, rich, kindly amusement at life, yourself and your fellow men. And, besides being a great deal happier, you will have acquired both a sense of humor and certain charm.

• • • •

This fall sees the return of embroidery, only hinted at in the summer modes, now definitely established for fall and winter modes. Little is needed, but it's just this little extra touch that gives a garment its distinction. Especially does it help the little tot's togs.

Two types of design are most popular—tiny, stylized flowers, and geometrical designs without any particular form, but much color.

• • • •

And tomorrow we have another weekly Dare fashion letter. It'll be in The Sunday Washington Post as usual.

Au Revoir!

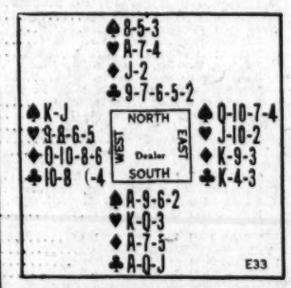
WORK ON BRIDGE

This article is intended for the Auction and Contract Bridge beginner.



Suppose that you held South's cards in the above hand, that you were playing No Trumps, and that West led his fourth best Diamond. Of course you would play the Jack of Diamonds from dummy, hoping that the lead had been from King-Queen; but when East's King covered, you would appreciate that you would take only one Diamond trick. Plan how you would play the rest of the hand before you read what follows:

The Correct Play.

South should not win the first Diamond because it is likely that the lead has been from a five-card suit, in which case East holds only three Diamonds; and in this hand it is important to exhaust East's Diamonds so that he will be unable to continue the suit should he obtain the lead later.

Before playing to the first trick, Declarer can count upon winning one Spade, three Hearts and one Diamond; to make game he must win four Club tricks all told. North can not get in the lead three times as would be necessary to work the Club finesses (that hand would have to get in twice to lead Clubs and once afterward to cash its long Clubs), consequently Declarer must play his Clubs by leading them from the South hand. That means that East may win a Club trick; consequently the necessity of holding up the Diamond Ace until the third trick so as to exhause East of Diamonds.

After winning the third lead of Diamonds (trick 3), South should lead Clubs. It will be noted that East, winning with the King, would have no Diamond. Played in this way Declarer will make one Spade, three Hearts, one Diamond and four Clubs.

If North had held two more entries (for example, the King and Queen of Spades) Declarer's plan would have been to finesse the Clubs, and so the hold-up would not have been of any advantage as West would have obtained the lead if the finesse failed. Under these conditions Declarer would try for a grand slam and South would take the first trick; but with the cards as they are, the hold-up and the Club leads from South constitute the only plan that makes game possible.

Notes on the Goofus Pelicanus

You know, of course, of the Pelican
Whose beak can hold more than his belly can;
But Goofus Pelicans have him beat,
For they preserve what they can't eat—
That is, they eat all they can
And what they can't, they can't!

What Today Means to You

"LEO."

IF August 16 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. to 11 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 5 p. m. and 9 p. m. to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 6 a. m. to 7:40 a. m. and 7 p. m. to 8:30 p. m.

Astrological influences on this date are widespread in their effect and generally good, both outside and in the home. Propitious for social advancement, sports and pleasures. Attend to all important business before 12 noon.

The child born on this August 16 will have an active and impressionable mind and a restless nature. It will be a hard worker, but given to worry. It will be quaintly conceited, very proud, and personally fastidious.

You are not content unless you can be in a perfect maelstrom of activity. You do not understand the meaning of the word "rest," and although you enjoy and demand changes, you never desire real inactivity. "Thrillers," with murder, detectives, crooks, and vamps entering into their pages are the books which appeal to you. As a child you insisted upon exercising your own tastes and revolted against parental restrictions and discipline. As a man or woman, you revolt against prohibitive "don'ts" of the still sterner world, and the restricted horizons of tradition and custom. You want space and freedom, and you have a rash and almost ungovernable spirit.

You have considerable respect for self, and belief in your own abilities. You want to create your own destiny, although fate will many times step in and sadly mix up your plans. As time goes on you will find it useless to plan far ahead and will learn to live more in the moment. You are not of a domesticated nature. As a woman you loathe the intricate duties of a home. As a man, you are a useless person about the house and demand considerable service. You are, however, a good provider. You are an ardent enthusiast for most sports and a keen motorist. You are a lavish host or hostess, and a genial one. Overactivity and excitement will tend to produce nervous troubles, and rest will often be required to restore harmony to the system.

Successful people born August 16:

1. Henry W. De Saussure, jurist. Chancellor of South Carolina.
2. Nathan Hale, journalist and author.
3. Amos Kendall, Postmaster General under Jackson.
4. George Jones, one of the founders of the New York Times.
5. John Pierce, inventor of the Pierce (microscope) cell.
6. Lavoisier, chemist.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

HE IS BENEATH HER.

DEAR Miss McDonald: Do you believe that a girl can really be in love at 16 or 17 years of age? I am 17 years old and entering my senior year in high school. Last year I met the boy, who is the only one in the world for me. He is 18 years old. We have agreed to wait six years. By that time he expects to be settled.

I go out quite a bit with other boys and lately have started to compare him with them. Most of the comparisons find him the victor, but other boys who have had a better education than he has make me realize that I am above him, as I am enrolled in one of the foremost women's colleges. In spite of all this, I love him deeply and would be very unhappy without him.

Please pardon the length of this letter, and I thank you in advance for the excellent advice I know you will give me. I am, anxiously awaiting your reply. "BETTY."

Well, fortunately you are planning to wait six years, and in six years many things can happen, when one is young and seeing the world and all its glories. In six years there will be several other boys. Yes, strange as it seems. And in six years you may have learned the difference between loving a man and loving the idea of having an escort to take you out and tell you how adorable you are. You know, Betty, you may some day marry a man who has just as little education as this boy, but if you really love him, you will not feel "above" him. You will love all the things he has that thousands of years in school could not give some men. Intelligence is what counts, not college. We are grinding out illiterates from our colleges by the thousands every year. They can not spell, they can not write, they can not think. And they can not make a living.

When you have time, sit down and ask yourself just what you believe makes a man a good husband. Is it the years he has spent in college? It is "looks?" What things count most? No man has all the things a girl wants. She must seek the things that matter most. Education matters a lot. But college is not necessarily education. If your man is intelligent, then whether or not he went to college means nothing at all.

Do some serious thinking in the next six years, Betty. Perhaps you will stop feeling "above" people.

This column is for you! Your experiences, opinions and suggestions will help those who read this page. Express your views and help those in need of advice. You need not sign your name.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

SPICES.

(Bureau of Chemistry.)

Spices are used to some extent in making nearly all kinds of pickles, but chiefly for sweet mixed, and dill pickles. Various combinations are used, depending on the kind of pickles to be made and the flavors desired.

Peppers (black and cayenne), cloves, cinnamon, celery seed, caraway, dill herb, mustard (yellow), allspice, cardamon, bay leaves, coriander, turmeric and mace are the principal whole spices for this purpose. Ginger and horse-radish root are used sometimes.

All of these spices may be purchased in bulk and mixed as desired. Mixed whole spices, specially prepared for pickling purposes, sold in the stores, are, as a rule, satisfactory. Care should be taken to see that they are of proper strength.

Oil spices may be desirable under some circumstances, but their effect is not so lasting as that of the whole spices.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

ARLINGTON BRIDGE WIDENING INDORSED

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Prepared to proceed with the county's part of widening the bridge across Four Mile Run at the county line, on Mount Vernon avenue, leading into the City of Alexandria, the county board of supervisors, at its meeting yesterday instructed County Engineer C. L. Kinnier to advise the officials of the city to that effect. Chairman Edward Duncan added that the county is anxious to have the work completed before winter and wants it done by contract.

The board pointed out that with the widening of this bridge one of the most dangerous points along the road will have been removed. The county last year widened its part of the road from the bridge to a point where it joins the Government road. The City of Alexandria is now widening the road up to the bridge.

Replying to a recent request made by the supervisors that provisions be made by the Federal Government for adequate approaches to the new Mount Vernon boulevard, County Engineer Kinnier read a letter received from R. W. Dunlap, acting secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture. The letter in part, is as follows:

"The plans for the highway, prepared by this department and approved by the commission for the celebration of the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington make provisions for access to the highway near the south shore of Four Mile Run, and at another point approximately three-quarters of a mile farther north, near the north shore of Four Mile Run. The pavement is being widened and separated by intervening islands so that traffic entering or crossing the highway at this point would not have to cross opposing lines of traffic at the same time.

"The department does not feel that it is obligated to make provisions for connection with the Memorial highway beyond the limits of the property acquired for right of way or for park purposes for the highway."

The board appointed Harry C. Saffell, Ashton C. Jones, Edgar W. Pumphrey, William H. Payne and John R. McCormick as commissioners to review the property of S. N. Samaha used by the county for widening Wilson boulevard, with the view of placing a value upon it that the county may pay for it. It appears that at the time surveys were being made for the widening of Wilson boulevard a section of the property of Samaha at Fort Myer Heights was taken and used. He now is asking the county to pay him for it.

It appearing that the sewer crossing a stream, leading from Virginia Highlands, is blocking drainage during storms, the board has instructed County Engineer C. L. Kinnier to write to Henry C. Morris requesting that he lower the sewer, which, it is said, will remove the condition at that point.

Chairman Duncan announced that officials of the Virginia Public Service Co. will be asked to attend the meeting of the board to be held Saturday, August 30, for the purpose of taking up with the board the question of rates for street lights and to give reason why the county does not enjoy the same rates as Alexandria.

The Jefferson District Volunteer Fire Department was granted permission by the board to take one piece of fire apparatus to Long Branch, N. J., August 21, for the annual State firemen's convention.

Plans for the parade which will be the feature today in connection with the annual convention and jubilee held by the Arlington-Fairfax Volunteer Firemen's Association have been completed, according to an announcement last night by Chairman John R. Mossburg.

Headed by the Boys Band from Washington the parade will leave promptly at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon from the Jefferson District Firemen's Hall on Frazier avenue, Virginia Highlands.

The line of march follows: Along Frazier avenue to Mount Vernon avenue, Mount Vernon avenue to Columbia pike, along Columbia pike to Arlington, thence along Bingham road to Shelley road, to Clarendon avenue, to Clarendon, thence by way of Wilson boulevard to Ballston, to Memorial drive, to East Falls Church, turning right into the Lee highway, to Cherrydale, to Rucker avenue, through Lyon Village to Wilson boulevard, to the carnival grounds. More than 30 companies from nearby Maryland and Virginia will be in line.

Prizes will be offered for the best equipped department, the department having the largest number of uniformed men in line, the best decorated equipment and the best decorated private automobile in line.

The judges will be Capt. Chapman, Capt. Moxley and Private Eskridge, members of the District of Columbia Fire Department.

State Game Warden W. Harry Johnson has announced that on September 1 the squirrel season will open in the following counties, closing on September 30 and reopening November 15, continuing until January 31, 1931, inclusive: Arlington, Fairfax, Fauquier, Loudoun, Prince William and Stafford.

Johnson states that as a result of the continued drought, the department has been busy netting streams where the water is low for all fish and removing them to deep water.

Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth states that despite that suits for the collection of delinquent real estate taxes have been filed in the county clerk's office only a short time, many persons are availing themselves of the privilege of saving additional court costs by paying all their delinquent taxes. He further says that he feels confident that many more will pay before it comes time to take the cases into court.

Work of remodeling a section of the third floor of the courthouse for the offices of County School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp is being rushed and indications are that his offices will have been moved to the third floor by the end of the month.

The offices are being moved in accordance with a request made by the county board of supervisors that the board needed more rooms on the first floor for the county engineer.

Charged with assaulting Boyd Greyson, colored, William Ferguson, colored, was held yesterday for action of the grand jury by Police Court Judge Harry B. Thomas.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA looked like the superintendent of a construction gang. In the midst of housecleaning, after the swing around the circle, vacation over, she had a bevy of scrubwomen, window-washers and whatnot cluttering up the premises.

"Oh, dear, oh, dear, oh, dear," she sighed. "Whattum I gonnah do?"

"Whattuh y' gonna do?" I asked, flabbergasted. "What haven't you done?" I was looking for my tropical worsteds, as the tailor nicknamed 'em. There wasn't a sign of any male clothing in the closet. The place was topsy-turvy.

"If you'd only get out-a the way and let me alone," said Luella, "I might bring this place back to normalcy."

Back to normalcy. She was just three administrations behind the times.

* * * *

"IF I could only find a pair o' pants——" I began.

She looked at me, standing there in my dressing gown, an expression of horror covering her countenance. One poke in the ribs with a broom and I was on the way to the third floor back.

"And don't you come down here 'till you get your pants on," she shouted up the stairway.

* * * *

'TWAS beyond me. I couldn't find any pants or coats. Not even a vest—and I told her so.

"It's a good thing you married me," she declared, "or I don't know what'd happen to you."

"No?" Well, if I hadn't married you this would never have happened."

"What would never have happened?"

"My being pantsless——"

She started an intensive search for the missing garments; lost, perhaps, in the general melee.

* * * *

SUDDENLY, Luella sat down in one of the old Heppelwaites. A great light broke over her which I mistook for the sign of discovery.

"Have you found 'em?" I asked, hoping for the best; that she had remembered where she put 'em.

Her face was a blank.

"Luella, answer me!"

It took her several minutes to snap out of it. Then, sheepishly, she confessed. Before I got out of bed she had sent every one of my suits to the cleaners.

And there were customers waiting for me in the office.

Danville Mayor Ends 38th Year

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Aug. 15.—Capt. Harry Wooding today completed his thirty-eighth consecutive year as Mayor of Danville, a record believed to be unexcelled by any other mayor in the United States.

Referred to as America's oldest mayor in point of service, Capt. Wooding, now in his 89th year, is still hale, hearty and abreast of times. The robustness of his physique is best revealed when it is said that his doctor's bill for the past 45 years has not exceeded $10. He says he feels as young as twenty years ago and, in his opinion, owes his long life and good health to the maintenance of an even temper, a refusal to allow official business disturb his mind, an ability to make friends with the younger generation and by accepting changing conditions as a normal development of the times.

Capt. Wooding first made his race for mayor in 1892, when he defeated four opponents by a majority larger than the combined total vote of his opponents. In subsequent elections a dozen times have other candidates aspired to defeat him, but he has always triumphed. Looking backward, Capt. Wooding finds that there is not a public servant, save City Sergt. P. H. Boisseau, now in office who held sway when he took up the reins of government.

Native Churches Held Mission Goal

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 15.—"Foreign missionary activities of the Christian Church can not succeed unless they are able to establish an indigenous native church in missionary lands and not a weak reproduction of American or European Christianity on foreign soil," Dr. J. Stuart Holden, pastor of St. Paul's Church, London, tonight told the Massanetta Springs Bible conference.

Dr. Holden, who until recently was chairman of the China Inland Missions, sponsored by Great Britain churches, has made a lifelong study of the foreign missions field.

"The Christian Church in China," said he, "must be Chinese; in India, it must be Indian, and in Africa, African. Christianity does not denationalize people. Rather does it give a new, strong and pure character to national consciousness."

Woman Held Suicide Now Feared Murdered

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 15.—At the request of neighbors, who said they had "new facts in the case," Sheriff W. Grimm this afternoon started a new investigation into the death of Mrs. Henderson Lowther, 32, wife of a Davisson Run farmer, from two revolver shots in the heart Monday afternoon at her home.

It would be inadvisable to make public these facts at this time, the sheriff said, but it is now suspected that the woman was murdered. Her death was pronounced suicide by the coroner.

Registered Mail Pouch Is Stolen

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 15.—Investigation of the bold robbery of a registered mail pouch at the Baltimore & Ohio station about 3:30 o'clock this morning has brought no clew, although the authorities have the fingerprints of the robber, left on one of the three registered letters that he dropped while making his escape.

The registered pouch, consigned to Fort Worth, Tex., came in on a westbound train for transfer to another train and had been locked in the transfer office. While the clerk was out, the robber tore through a wire screen, broke the lock on the door and grabbed the pouch and five loose registered letters.

In making his getaway, crawling through a fence in the rear of the station, he dropped three of the letters. The authorities are as yet unable to give the value of the matter stolen. The robbery took place while the clerk was absent ten minutes.

Methodists Will Open Purcellville Parley

Special to The Washington Post.

Purcellville, Va., Aug. 15.—The Fourth Quarterly Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South will open at Bethany Church South at Purcellville tomorrow at 10:30 a. m.

Dr. E. V. Regester, of Alexandria, will preside. Trustees, superintendents of the Sunday school and chairmen of the other boards will make reports.

Augusta County Hay Crop Failure

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., Aug. 15.—Augusta County, which in 1927 led Virginia in the production of hay with 50,000 tons, this season will harvest not more than one-third of a crop, according to this county's reply to Gov. John Garland Pollard's drought situation questionnaire. Augusta is the second largest county in this State.

Compiled largely by Joseph C. Coiner, Augusta's agricultural demonstration agent, information forwarded to the governor was made public here today. Coiner estimates the corn crop this year will not be more than 10 per cent of the normal yield. In 1927 Augusta raised 1,500,000 bushels of corn. In the same year 75,000 bushels of oats were harvested. This year Coiner estimates the crop will be but 10 per cent of normal.

Midseason gardens are practically a failure, Coiner reports, and there has been scarcely any pasture since the first of this month. The drought is general over this county, he asserts. There will not be sufficient local feed for stock requirements this winter.

100 Gallons of Liquor Taken Near Bedford

Special to The Washington Post.

Bedford, Va., Aug. 15.—One hundred gallons of alleged rye whisky and 586 bottles of home brew were seized at the home of "Sport" Waldron, between Stewartsville and Vinton, this afternoon by Prohibition Officer E. A. Newman, assisted by Paul Howell, Guy Newman and W. H. Whitten.

One barrel containing 60 gallons was found buried in an outbuilding, and this was destroyed. In another place a barrel containing one-half-gallon glass jars filled with whisky was dug up. On last Saturday 562 bottles of home brew were destroyed and about three weeks before that date 1,820 bottles of the same were destroyed. Waldron was seen to leave the place this afternoon, according to the officers, and a warrant has been issued for his arrest.

Confederate Veteran Dies in West Virginia

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 15.—Anthony J. Shanholtzer, one of the oldest residents of Hampshire County and a Confederate veteran, died at his home at Frenchburg after a brief illness due to his advanced age of 86 years.

He was born in Hampshire and, with the exception of the time he spent in the Confederate service, lived there his entire life. Surviving are his widow, four sons and three daughters.

Sleepy Creek Fire Is Out of Control

Sleepy Creek Mountain's Blaze Imperils Noted Game Haven.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 15.—Despite efforts of about 50 fire fighters, the conflagration on Sleepy Creek Mountain, near the Morgan-Berkeley County line, which has been raging for more than a week, has gotten beyond control and is now 6 miles long and nearly 4 miles wide, according to a statement today by Fire Ranger Frank Files, of this county.

Ranger Files stated that the fire is the worst in the Eastern Panhandle in perhaps half a century and that efforts are being made to keep it from spreading into the famous Meadow Branch, which is a haven for much game, including deer. More fighters are being recruited from Berkeley and Morgan Counties. Back fires have been started in an effort to head off the much-feared disaster. If these back fires fail, according to Ranger Files, only heavy rains can prevent miles and miles of mountain forest from being wiped out.

Two Counties Remove Restrictions on Water

The Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission announced yesterday that all restrictions against the use of water in Prince Goerges and Montgomery Counties had been removed.

Since August 8, there has been a prohibition against the use of hoses for sprinkling lawns or gardens, and the withdrawal of this ban now permits residents of the two counties to resume proper care for their grass, shrubbery and flowers.

Thieves Fail to Break Safe.

An unsuccessful attempt was made early yesterday to force a safe in the store of Charles Oshinsky, 924 H street northeast. The place was entered by forcing a door. The cash register was broken open. Two automobile tires were also stolen. The amount of the loot was $30.

ALEXANDRIA RESCUE SQUAD WILL PARADE

FORTY AND EIGHT MEETS

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The rescue squad of Potomac Truck & Engine Company, No. 1, of the Alexandria Fire Department, will give a demonstration at the annual convention and tournament of the Virginia State Firemen's Association to be held at Phoebus, August 26 to 29. The local men will be accompanied by a modern ambulance, the use of which will be donated by B. Wheatley, local undertaker, the vehicle being properly lettered for the occasion.

This year's convention will mark the first time that a rescue squad has participated in the parade, which is a feature of the four-day meeting. No other volunteer or part-volunteer fire department in Virginia has such a rescue squad, and as the association is made up almost entirely of such departments, the appearance of the local organization with a modern ambulance is expected to create considerable interest, and to aid the local department in winning one or more prizes.

In addition to the prizes offered for the department, the Ladies' Auxiliary and the Citizens Band, which will accompany the firemen, will be eligible to compete for four prizes, besides which several individual prizes will be offered. The Alexandria delegation will have approximately 100 uniformed members in line. They will leave here August 25 on the Norfolk & Washington steamer.

The prizes include one for the best appearing fire company in the parade with band, the best appearing company without band, the best band in a concert, the fire company coming the longest distance, the best appearing ladies' auxiliary of a fire company, the State hose race and custody of the association trumpet; a 100-yard dash.

The Alexandria delegation will be taken from all four companies, and will march in the parade as one unit. Fire Chief James M. Duncan, jr., will be in command, and a banner time for all who attend has been promised by C. G. Mugler president of the association.

The August meeting of the Forty and Eight was held last night at Hurshey's, King and Royal streets, when the recently elected officers were installed by Herbert H. Porter, of Clarendon. The new officers are Frank H. Fannon, chef de gare; James D. Preston, jr., chef de train; Franklin DiDier, correspondant locale; Luther N. Dudley, commissaire intendant; Joe Fagelson, garde de la porte; Holly Dove, lampaste, and Sidney Weil, commissaire voyageur. Cheminots are Frank H. Fannon, James T. Preston, jr., Franklin DiDier, L. H. Dudley, Nelson Moffett, of Warrenton; Ernest H. Hinken, of Falls Church, and John Haggerty, of Falls Church.

The local voiture of the Forty and Eight draws its membership from the American Legion posts at Alexandria, Clarendon, Culpeper, Leesburg, Warrenton and Quantico. Last night Voyageur Militaire H. L. (Porky) Flynn was presented with a membership bar for having secured 41 new members for the Buck Keyes Post, of Quantico.

The grand chef de gare of Washington extended an invitation to the local voiture to attend an old-fashioned barbecue and promenade at the Raccar Camp, on the Potomac River.

The police department, at the request of the fire department, has issued a ban against exhaust whistles on automobiles which have become numerous during last few months. The fire department claims that so numerous have become these signals that their own warning signals are being ignored. The use of this type of equipment on an automobile is prohibited by State law and city ordinance.

Richard Weedon, 21 years old, who gave his address to the police as the 500 block of Queen street, was arrested by Officers Jones and McDonald on a warrant charging theft of an automobile from Sam Studds, of Alexandria. The machine is alleged to have been stolen last Sunday while Studds was at the dike, in Fairfax County, and in police court yesterday Weadon was turned over to the Fairfax County authorities by Acting Justice John W. Brookfield. The machine was recovered by the Fairfax authorities near New Alexandria.

A city-wide "Go to Church" campaign is being conducted in Alexandria by Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Quinn, of Baltimore, with headquarters at the Methodist Protestant Church. The object of the campaign is to increase church attendance, and stamps are being sold at the various business houses of the city, to be attached to outgoing mail. According to reports made to the Rev. G. Morgan Compher, pastor of the Methodist Protestant Church, the plan has met with success wherever tried.

Milkman Driving From City Killed

Special to The Washington Post.

Warrenton, Va., Aug. 15.—Dulaney Lee, 29 years old, lost his life late last night while returning in a milk truck from Washington, D. C. He was driving through the rain and either the windshield became obscured or he dropped off to sleep. The truck struck a culvert on a detour on the Lee highway. The impact wrenched the wheel from Lee's hands and made him lose control. The truck then crashed into a large tree and was demolished.

Passersby found Lee, unconscious, and brought him to the Fauquier County Hospital, in Warrenton, where Dr. George H. Davis found he had been dead since the time his truck hit the tree. His left leg was virtually severed and he had suffered severe blows on the head.

Sheriff Woolf went to the scene of the accident, with Officer S. S. Hall and Dr. Davis, the coroner thinking there might have been foul play, but, after viewing the accident and holding an inquest, the police and coroner decided Lee came to his death due to an accident. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Harry Lee, his wife and two small children.

CLINICS SCHEDULED IN FIGHT ON TYPHOID

One Death and Six Other Cases in Month Stir Prince Georges.

RUM MAKER SENTENCED

With six new cases of typhoid fever and one death developed in and around Marlboro, Md., since August 1, Dr. A. B. Hooton, health officer of Prince Georges County, yesterday announced a series of typhoid vaccine clinics to be held at Wells' Corner store to prevent further spread of the epidemic.

The first of the clinics will be held Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, and the inoculations will be repeated at the same hour and location on the two succeeding Wednesdays, Dr. Hooton announced. Three injections of typhoid vaccine, he pointed out, usually give an immunity against the disease for two or three years.

The death thus far was Marian Garner, 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Garner, of Marlboro. Four of the other cases, all of which are serious, are members of a colored family living on the outskirts of Marlboro, while the sixth and last case is another Negro, now convalescent, of the same neighborhood.

Dr. Hooton scouted the theory that the disease might have been spread through polluted water in stagnant streams and pools caused by the drought and declared that if anything the drought should tend to minimize the prevalence of typhoid. He expressed a belief that flies might have been the germ carriers.

Pete Nakonieski, of Baltimore, who had been known to the police of Prince Georges County only as "John Doe" since his arrest August 9 and until his name finally was learned through an interpreter yesterday, was sentenced to three months in the House of Correctino by Judge J. Chew Sheriff in Police Court at Marlboro, Md., on a charge of illicit manufacturing of liquor.

The man, a Russian, had been arrested in a raid on a 1,000-gallon still, one of the largest manufacturing plants ever seized in the county, and all attempts to question him had been fruitless, as he was unable to speak any English.

Through the interpreter he told the court that he had been out of work in Baltimore, and had applied to a man, whose name he said he did not know, for work. The man, he said, had brought his to Marlboro late on the night of August 7, and put him to work tending the huge still which police said had an unusually high-potential output of 120-proof rye whisky.

Walter J. Quick, jr., of District Heights, Md., district forester for the western shore of Maryland, is to become assistant forester in charge of fire control throughout the State, it was announced yesterday. He will succeed John R. Curry, who is leaving to join the United States Forest Service in California on October 1.

Mr. Quick is accredited with greatly curtailing the forest fire menace in Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties through his activities in developing the cooperation of the various fire companies. He has served in the United States Forest Service in Arkansas, North Carolina and Virginia.

Because of the drought which has ruined many crops, the Pomona Grange, of Prince Georges County has decided to cancel its exhibit at the annual Marlboro Fair this year, it was announced yesterday by Thomas Joy, chairman of the exhibit committee, at Brandywine, Md.

A questionnaire asking the attitudes of all candidates in Prince Georges County for the Maryland Legislature, as well as for other offices to be announced later, will be sent out by the Prince Georges Municipal Association, it was announced yesterday.

Its purpose is explained as a move to improve police efficiency and Police Court procedure in the county, as well as an increase in its water supply. The association consists of elected officers of various incorporated towns in the county. John H. Beall, president of the association, has appointed E. B. Hilley, Dr. P. F. Brookens, and Floyd B. Mathias to draw up the questionnaire.

Among the improvements sought by the association are assignment of additional State policemen to the heavily-traveled highways or revision of the law so that towns may receive some compensation for traffic arrests made by their own officers; placing of the county police force under the county commissioners instead of the sheriff, and placing constables under the jurisdiction of the county chief of police.

White Institutions to Start September 9 and Negro on Following Day.

Special to The Washington Post.

Bedford, Va., Aug. 15.—J. L. Borden, principal of Bedford High School, has announced that the local white school will open on September 9, and the colored school on September 10.

A meeting of the county teachers will be held in the local school on September 8. A special meeting of the teachers of the Bedford school will be held that afternoon, to be followed by a reception for the teachers of the local school, given by the Parent-Teacher Association, of which Mrs. Frank H. Mitchell is president. Registration of high school pupils will take place on September 4 and 5. Only one change has been made in the teaching staff, Miss Mary Taylor Gills, of Appomattox, having been appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Miss Alice Lawrence.

A meeting for the colored teachers will be held on September 9, and both the grade and the training school will begin on the 10th. There is one vacancy to be filled in the colored faculty.

Infant Drowns in Water Parents Hauled to House

Huntington, W. Va., Aug. 15 (A.P.).—Little Mabel Romine drowned last night in a barrel of water members of the family had hauled miles to their home, where the drought has dried up all the wells and streams.

The barrel was placed near a porch. The child, 1 year old, crept too close to the edge and toppled into the barrel.

Apple Inspection School Abandoned

Crop, Cut by Drought in Pan Handle, Needs No Extra Hands.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 15.—The drought has cut so seriously into the apple production prospects in the Eastern Panhandle that there will probably be no school for candidates for apple inspection work, it was announced here today.

Ordinarily a school is held at the State demonstration plant to qualify a score or more new men each year to handle the Federal and State inspection work throughout the territory for the growers. The probable reduced production this year, however, has convinced those in charge that the present qualified list will be sufficient for the work.

H. B. Davis, setting up the work here today, said inspection was available for those needing it, but he did not expect any great demand before September 1. Only two men, in contrast to usual ten, are now on hand.

Plans for heavy inspection of bean production here this summer also proved futile because the bean crop failed, it was said, through the drought.

Farm Agent Authorized In Jefferson County

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 15.—After more than a year of resistance, during which several petitions have been turned down because they included names of men who were not regarded by the court as bona fide farmers, the Jefferson County Court this week authorized appointment of a county farm demonstration agent.

Action was taken after examination of a petition, including the names of 159 Jefferson County farmers, and the court appropriated $1,400 to pay the appointee. No one has been named for the post as yet. The county has been without a county agent since the discussion arose, more than a year ago.

Wet Leader to Seek Maryland House Seat

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 15 (A.P.).—John Philip Hill, picturesque wet leader in Congress for several terms, announced today that he would seek the Republican nomination for the Third Maryland District in the September 8 primary. He was beaten on the face of the 1928 returns by Vincent L. Palmisano, Democrat, but a House subcommittee recently recommended that the seat be declared vacant because of Hill's charges of election frauds. Congress adjourned before action was taken.

Palmisano is again in the race and is opposed for the nomination by Philip Schwab, a grocer, politically unknown. The Third District is within Baltimore City.

CHAIN STORE SEEN AS AID TO FARMERS

SESSION AT MARYLAND U.

Special to The Washington Post.

College Park, Md., Aug. 15 (A.P.).—In an address here this morning before approximately 150 farmers, breeders and agricultural specialists of the State, who are attending the first annual farmers' marketing conference given by the University of Maryland extension service, Hutzel Metzger, assistant chief of the division of cooperative marketing of the Federal Farm Board, said: "Cooperative marketing is just another method of doing business and it involves no radical changes from other forms of cooperative business. The beneficiaries of its policies are the producers. The cooperative organization is a form of association particularly adapted to the marketing of agricultural products. This organization must in many instances render a series of services in assembling, grading, standardizing, preparing for shipment, financing and selling and distribution."

Factor in Progress.

Later in his talk, Mr. Metzger stated: "Probably no single factor has so retarded the progress of cooperative business than that directors have failed to recognize the responsibilities of their job."

Following Mr. Metzger the visitors were addressed by W. H. Rowe, United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics, on the subject of "Financing Cooperatives."

That the chain store has proved of real benefit, not only to the consumer but to the grocer of foodstuffs was the subject of a talk given here this morning by James E. Boyle, professor of rural economy, Cornell University.

New Standard Set.

Prof. Boyle said, "The chain store is raising the standard of food products being put on the market and is doing this at lowered costs to the consumer." In addition, it was pointed out, the independent storekeeper should not be materially hurt, for the competition should have a tendency to make him keep on his toes and improve his store and the quality of product he sells.

Others who spoke were Dr. S. H. Devault, Department of Agricultural Economics, University of Maryland; B. B. Derrick, division of cooperative marketing, U. S. Department of Agriculture, and S. R. Newell, associate crop estimator, Maryland, Bureau of Agricultural Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Warren Citizens To Pray for Rain

Union Service to Be Held at Front Royal Tonight, Due to Drought.

Special to The Washington Post.

Front Royal, Va., Aug. 15.—A union prayer service has been called for tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock on the courthouse lawn, at which time prayers will be offered for rain.

Residents of Front Royal and the County of Warren have been invited. Ministers of every denomination have been requested to attend and take part in the service. The streets leading to the courthouse will be roped off during the service.

Bells of the churches of the town will peal the clarion call to worship. Hymns will be sung.

The service is expected to draw thousands, as this section of the State has been hard hit by the drought. Farmers are busy filling their silos with corn, which is not generally cut until September.

Completion of Paving Celebrated by Towns

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 15.—Celebrating the recent completion of the Salem-Sistersville highway as a hard-surfaced route, a caravan of automobiles traveled over it today from Salem to Sistersville and return, making stops at Sedalia, Centerpoint, Wheeling Gas Station, Franks Run, Georges Run, Shirley, Broad Run, Middlebourne and other points along the way.

At each stop there were speeches by W. L. Joyce, Mayor L. D. Lowther and others, of Salem, and band concerts. In addition to reducing the distance between the two cities 48 miles, the new route provides an outlet for rich farming, oil and gas sections.

Baltimore Prisoner Escapes.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 15 (A.P.).—Frank Christie, alias Christano, serving a 30-day sentence for carrying a concealed weapon, escaped from the city jail today and officials expressed the belief that he secreted himself in the rumble seat of the car of Dr. Lawrence Hickman, president of the jail board.

The offense is said to have been committed Sunday night.

According to Capt. Haywood Durrer, of the county road police, who made the arrest, the car was taken in Fairfax County from a place known as the Dyke, which is south of Alexandria. The car was located abandoned near Springfield, by Capt. Durrer after a careful investigation.

Weadon was given a preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace Arthur Kirby at Groveton. There he made a statement in which he declared that he was intoxicated last Sunday night and did not know whether he took the car or not. All that he remembered was that he woke up in the car at Springfield the next morning. Leaving it there he returned to Alexandria.

Fete of Firemen Marked by Parade

Mount Savage Celebration Marks Second Allegany Convention.

Special to The Washington Post.

Mount Savage, Md., Aug. 15.—The celebration of the Mount Savage Fire Company, covering a week of home coming with parades nightly, was marked tonight by a parade of the Community Builders, with the Cumberland membership having about 100 trucks and automobiles, including floats, in line, while Frostburg was represented by 15, Mount Savage, 5, and Midland, 1. A program was observed with an address by Russell Saville, of Cumberland.

The second annual convention of the Allegany County Volunteer Firemen's Association was held in connection with the celebration. It was decided to include Garrett County in the organization, forming a much larger body to be known as the Allegany-Garrett County
